NEW OIL DIVIDEND TO BE $29,000,000

Standard Oil of Indiana to Increase Capital Stock by That Sum and Cut the Melon.

ONCE FINED THAT AMOUNT

But Decision Set Aside as Excessive—Holders of Oil Stocks More Than Ever at Sea as to Values.

Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey who received allotments of the shares of the company's former thirty-three subsidiaries under the dissolution plan are freshly puzzled over values. It developed yesterday that at the annual meeting of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which will be held on March 7 at Whiting, Ind., stockholders will be asked to vote an increase of $29,000,000 in the company's capital, which is at present $1,000,000, thus bringing the capital up to $30,000,000. It is the Standard Oil Company of Indiana which was fined $29,240,000 by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis in August, 1907, whose decision was eventually overturned on the ground that it was excessive.

Inquiries at the Standard Oil office here as to the probability of this stock increase being turned into a melon for stockholders were met with the suggestion that they be made at the main office in Chicago, but it is generally accepted that a melon will be cut, and that the additional $29,000,000 will be turned over to the stockholders as a stock dividend of 2,900 per cent. On the strength of the unofficial information the shares of Standard Oil of Indiana, which uninformed stockholders parted with as low as $1,400 a share shortly after the dissolution and has since sold as high as $4,100, jumped yesterday to $4,000 bid—$4,500 asked.

The position of allotment holders of the old Standard Oil of New Jersey and subsidiary stocks was further complicated by the accepted belief that the increase of Standard Oil of Indiana stock, with its accompanying melon cutting, is only the beginning of a number of capital increases among the subsidiaries whose capital only nominally represents the value of assets. The Standard Oil officials, as well as the newly elected officers of the separated companies, have steadily refused to stockholders all information as to assets, dividend payments, or earning power, and, as was pointed out in THE TIMES a few days ago, they have been almost entirely in the dark as to real values to guide them in buying or selling fractional shares. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana is only one of the former subsidiaries where stock has fluctuated widely in price while the stockholders have been waiting for information. As told in THE TIMES Jan. 28, when a number of letters from the subsidiary officials were cited in which information was refused to stockholders, it was explained that some of the bewildered recipients of fractinal lots had paid as high as 500 for scrip in Colonial Oil necessary to make up full shares, only to learn subsequently that the book value of the stock was a little above 100. On the other hand, besides Standard Oil of Indiana, there have been big jumps in the shares of other companies, such as Waters-Pierce and Swan & Finch.

The latest information obtainable by those outside of Standard Oil counsels as to the value of the various properties is contained in the brief of facts in the Government's dissolution suit. Therein is set forth the net assets at the close of 1906 of the various properties together with their profits for that year.

Standard Oil of Indiana was shown to have net assets of $24,323,937 and to have made, in addition, net profits of $10,516,032 in that year.

Other companies which then had assets far above capitalization may be seen in the appended table, which compares capitalization with assets as of 1906:

Before the $29,000,000 Landis fine was imposed Standard Oil officials seriously considered plans for bringing the capital of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey stock up to $500,000,000 or $600,000,000, which would have more nearly represented the values of the properties underlying the New Jersey company stock. The proposed increase in the Standard Oil of Indiana stock, it is believed, represents this idea among the subsidiaries. In refusing information of its financial condition to stockholders, the Standard Oil officials have taken the ground that the readjustment now going on in the business would make present information misleading. It has been intimated that some of the companies which will suffer under the new conditions will be liquidated.

PICK UP STARVING CREW.

Ship Burns and Sailors Drift About in Open Sea 24 Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 5.—Exhausted and bemoaning the loss of his vessel, the schooner Frank M. Low of Boston, Mass., Capt. W. E. Donovan reached port this morning on the steamship Swannee of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company, with the five members of his crew. The schooner Low, after burning to the water's edge, filled and sank Saturday night thirty miles southeast of Cape Romaine. Capt. Donovan left his vessel with his clothes in flames, and he and his crew were forced to take to the lifeboats as a final resort.

The men encountered harrowing experiences in the small yawl in the open sea, where they drifted for twenty-four hours in freezing weather, without food or water, and only partially clad, until the Swannee sighted them and picked them up. Two of the men were unconscious and the others were utterly exhausted when taken off. The distressed yawl was sighted yesterday afternoon. She had drifted more than sixty miles. The Low left Norfolk on Monday with a cargo of coal for Savannah.

DYNAMITE NET READY.

Simultaneous Arrests All Over Country Will Follow Grand Jury Action.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 5.—With a capias, prepared for each of the thirty or more indictments which are expected from the Grand Jury as a result of its investigation of the dynamite conspiracy, Government authorities are ready to start the machinery to-morrow for wholesale arrests of those accused.

Just as soon as it is known definitely what men have been indicted, a certified copy of each indictment, together with a capias for the arrest of the person named, will be sent to the United States Marshal in the district in which the accused resides. It is thought that the Marshals and other Government agents have been advised of the probable time of arrival of the papers, and that all the arrests will be made the same day and as nearly the same hour as possible.

The Grand Jury will reassemble at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, after a recess since Thursday. It is reasonably certain that reports of the jury's investigations will be made to Judge Anderson during the day. All that will be made known will be the number of indictments voted, and it is expected that it will be late in the week before any rests are made.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 5.—Olaf Tveitmoe, Anton Johannsen, E. A. Clancy, and J. E. Munsey, labor leaders indicted on charges of conspiracy to transport dynamite, entered pleas of not guilty to-day before Judge Wellborn of the United States District Court.

Attorney Davis declared his clients would not seek to compromise their cases. The County Grand Jury resumes its McNamara inquiry to-morrow, and it was expected this might influence the pleas of Tveitmoe and others. Judge Wellborn announced that to-morrow he would fix the dates for the trials.

PHYSICIAN DIES IN FIRE.

Dr. Lewis S. Horton Loses His Life in the Basement of His Home.

Telephone messages from apartment house dwellers on McDonough St., Brooklyn, who saw fire in the basement of 124 Macon St., directly in the rear, brought firemen to the home of Dr. Lewis S. Horton, last evening. The firemen found the whole basement in flames. Urged on by neighbors, the firemen broke into the house and fought their way through the smoke to the basement. They found Dr. Horton dead, his clothes half burned off, on the floor near the kitchen stove.

Dr. Horton was 76 years old. He had that he had died of suffocation and burns.

Dr. Horton was 79 years old. He had been half blind since he retired several years ago. He lived alone in the house, a three-story and basement brown-stone structure, with his son, Lewis Horton, an electrician employed at the Knickerbocker Theatre.

It was one of his hobbies to collect books and papers to send to hospitals and other institutions. The neighbors believe he was piling up magazines and papers in the kitchen, which was stacked high with them, when he put a paper on the stove by mistake, thus igniting the mass of magazines and papers with which the room was littered.

CHICAGO SEES SUN-DOG.

Phenomenon Was Visible Throughout City for Nearly Two Hours.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—A cold weather phenomenon, rarely seen here, a sun-dog, was clearly visible yesterday.

The sun-dog or parhelion was said by those who saw it to be the most perfect ever recalled in this latitude. It was at its best when the sun was about half an hour high.

A circle of bright light, the lowest segment of which was hidden by the horizon, hung about the sun, and there were two bars of light, one horizontal and the other perpendicular, which intersected at the centre of the orb.

The phenomenon, which lasted for about two hours, was explained by the Weather Bureau as being the result of the reflection and refraction of the sun's light by particles of ice in the atmosphere.

It was said here last night the number of idle men in Chicago had been doubled within forty-eight hours. This was accounted for by all ice houses in the ice fields having been filled, and there is no further work there for the men.

TRAIN STUCK IN A SNOWBANK.

Passengers Remain All Night on a Train Near Mapleton, N. Y.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Stuck in a snowbank eight to ten feet deep, caused by the blizzard of yesterday, thirty persons spent last night on a train on the New York, Auburn & Lansing Road between this city and Auburn. The train leaving Auburn at 7 o'clock last evening became stalled in a drift near Mapleton. A relief train was sent out and fared the same fate. Farmers served coffee and lunches to the passengers and many went to the houses of farmers for the night. Another relief train dug them out this morning.

FIRST WHITE CAP CONVICTION

Gov. Marshall Congratulates Attorneys on Verdict in Snoddy Case.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 5.—Tobe Snoddy of Bloomington was found guilty of having been a member of a gang of whitecaps which assaulted Harvey McFarland, and received a sentence of two to ten years in the penitentiary. Ten more indictments against alleged members of the gang will be tried. The Governor urges that all be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. Silas Adams is on trial at present, and a verdict in his case will be reached to-morrow.

Snoddy is the first man convicted of whitecapping in this State, although there have been many trials. As soon as the verdict had been read the State's four attorneys sent a telegram to Gov. Thomas R. Marshall, apprising him of the verdict. Gov. Marshall sent the following answer to Frank Regester, who was prosecutor at the former trial:

> Accept my thanks for yourself and tender my thanks to Messrs. Lauden, Henley, and East, for their services in assisting in the conviction and punishment for the cowardly crime.

The Governor had taken personal charge of the prosecution at the first trial, at the November Term, and after a consultation in his office with Mr. Regester, ordered that the State employ Attorneys J. E. Henley and R. H. East to assist in the prosecution.

"This is not a personal triumph for me," the Governor said, "but it was a vindication of the law—that is, if a new trial is not granted. I was convinced that if there were men guilty of whitecapping in Monroe County a good prosecutor and good attorneys would succeed in convicting those who were guilty."

WHITE SLAVE TRAIL TO BOMB SLAYER

Police at Work on Evidence Given by C. G. Roe of Vigilance Association.

DICKINSON BEFORE CORONER

At Father's Request His Examination Is Adjourned Until Wednesday—Taxicab Driver Wanted.

Acting on information given to them by Clifford G. Roe of the American Vigilance Association, the Detective Bureau and the District Attorney's office began last night investigation of a set of circumstances which promise to disclose the identity of the person who killed Mrs. Grace Walker with an infernal machine in her home at 103 West Seventy-seventh Street last Saturday evening.

Mr. Roe has been here since December investigating the white slave traffic in this city. As soon as he read of the killing of Mrs. Walker he associated that crime with facts already known to him concerning Mrs. Walker and her associates. These facts he has made known to District Attorney Whitman and to the head of the Detective Bureau in the hope that they will lead up to the arrest of the assassin.

On information furnished by Mr. Roe, detectives are now searching the city for Carl Kasebier, a Hungarian, about 40 years old, who was arrested last December and held for the Grand Jury as a result of an investigation which the police made of a white slave case involving Mrs. Walker or Taylor and Olivette Leonard, an inmate of the house Mrs. Walker then kept at 18 West Sixtieth Street.

Mrs. Walker at the time was tried on a charge of harboring the girl in a disreputable house and was fined $50. Olivette Leonard was put in the Magdalene Home, and Kasebier was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of conducting a traffic in white slaves.

The January Grand Jury failed to indict Kasebier, but long before that he had disappeared, and Mr. Roe, who is anxious to find him again, has not been able to catch up with him. Lieut. Busby of the Detective Bureau was put on the case last night and hopes to find Kasebier within a few hours.

Had Grievance Against Mrs. Walker.

According to Mr. Roe, Kasebier at one time was manager of the Belmore Hotel and the Hotel Traymore, in this city, and for a time last December lived with George Herman, a general sales agent for the United Distillers' Distributing Company of 15 New Street, at 406 East Second Street, Brooklyn. Mr. Herman's New York office is at 66 Broadway. On Dec. 5 last Kasebier registered at the Hotel Hamilton, in Allentown, Penn., as Carl Kohler, according to detectives employed by Mr. Roe.

Detectives are now working on the theory that Kasebier had a few scores to settle with Mrs. Walker because of the evidence she gave before the Grand Jury regarding him. This theory was greatly strengthened yesterday as a result of a conversation the detectives had with Olivette Leonard at the Magdalen Home.

Just what this conversation was the detectives will not disclose. A letter that Olivette Leonard received from Kasebier on Jan. 15, 1911, when she was an inmate of the Walker house, to which she was induced to go by Kasebier, is also considered significant, as indicating that Kasebier was suspicious of Mrs. Walker. This letter was sent from Easton, Penn., and said in part:

> Let me know and tell me candidly, as if you write to one you can trust implicitly, how you like your life, whether Mrs. W. does not alone treat you well, but whether you receive your due share of the interest you bring her. You may not know whether you are doing well. Do not confide in anyone but you are sure of their sincerity, and then ask the question I am asking you. Do not throw yourself away. Make yourself to be a coveted rarity, which you are and which you do not know. Mrs. W. is a shrewd and wideawake business woman, who knows the full value of a dollar and knows the secrecy of keeping them.

Mrs. Walker was known at the time she lived in the Seventy-seventh Street house as Grace Walker. When arrested she gave her name as Florence Emerson. Her testimony before the Grand Jury was substantially that Kasebier in Dec. 1910, brought Olivette Leonard to her house and asked that she be kept there, as she was lonely in the house in which she had been living. She admitted that she kept a disreputable house.

One of Kasebier's Victims.

Olivette Leonard, in an affidavit, said she first met Kasebier on a train coming to New York from Baltimore on Dec. 26, 1910. She asked Kasebier the time, she said, and the two fell into conversation. He took her to a boarding house in West Forty-ninth Street, she said, and later to the Walker house in West Sixtieth Street. There she said she was forced to become an inmate. Since then, she said, she had seen Kasebier frequently and received several letters from him.

"All the information I have been able to bring to light regarding Kasebier's connection with the Walker case I have turned over to Detective Busby and Assistant District Attorney James B. Reynolds," said Mr. Roe last night. "I think a great deal of light will be thrown upon the murder if Kasebier can be found. I cannot understand why the Grand Jury refused to indict him. We had a good case against him, and Kasebier must have felt that he was in a tight fix, particularly when Mrs. Walker was convicted. Anyway, he suddenly disappeared before the Grand Jury reported, and we have been unable to find any trace of him.

"My interest in the case is purely from a white-slave investigation standpoint. We got absolute proof that Kasebier picked up Olivette Leonard on a train, brought her to New York, placed her in a disreputable house, and then not only boasted of what he had done, but tried to induce two of our women detectives to go there also.

"My experience in handling several hundred white-slave cases is that severe punishment is likely to follow a woman who gives evidence in a court against a procurer. In most cases, however, the victim is slashed with a knife."

Mr. Roe for several years was an Assistant State's Attorney in Illinois. He was concerned in the white slave and vice investigation in Chicago, and then became Executive Secretary of the American Vigilance Association. The President of the association is Prof. David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford University. It is a sort of clearing house for all similar associations throughout the United States.

Taylor is Dead and Buried.

Little progress, if any, was made by the police yesterday in solving the mystery that surrounds the murder of Mrs. Walker. Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty personally assumed command of the army of detectives at work on the case, and late yesterday afternoon he transferred his headquarters temporarily

APPEAL TO NATIONS AGAINST AIR WAR

Eminent Englishmen Sign a Memorial Issued by the Arbitration League.

CAN NOW BE PREVENTED

But the Opportunity for Agreement Must Be Seized Before Vested Interests Are Formed.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—In a memorial issued by the Arbitration League protesting against the use of aerial vessels in war, the memorialists appeal to all Governments to foster an international understanding which shall preserve the world from what they think would add new hideousness to warfare.

They say the occasion for the necessary universal agreement is unique, in that all civilization protects its desire for peace and good-will and its wish to reduce the burden of armaments.

The memorial deprecates the suggestions that aerial warfare, by reason of its horrors, must frighten men from war, and that the art of flying will never reach full development without the stimulus of war.

To the argument that because men fight on earth and water they may just as well fight in the air the memorialists reply that there has never yet been a moment when it was practically possible to ban war machines of the earth or the water, but there is a moment when it is practically possible to ban those of the air. "That moment," it is added, "is now before us, before these machines have been proved and great vested interests have been formed."

The signatures to the memorial cover a wide range. They include those of Bishops, professors, writers, and scientists, among them being Lord Coleridge, Sir A. Conan Doyle, John Galsworthy, Thomas Hardy, Maurice Hewlett, Frederic Harrison, Sir Victor Horsley, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir William Osler, Sir Arthur Pinero, John S. Sargent, R. A., Sir William Ramsay, Alfred Russel Wallace, and Israel Zangwill.

TELLS HEACOCK'S BRAVE END

Companion of Niagara Victim Last Heard, "Don't Tell My Mother."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 5.—"Don't tell my mother," were the last words shouted by Burrell Heacock across the widening waters of Niagara to Ignatius Roth, his companion from this city. Then the rapid current swept Heacock beyond the hearing and sight of Roth, who had leaped to a neighboring ice floe. Roth saw nothing more of his friend, a projecting point hiding the tragic end of Heacock and Eldridge and Mrs. Stanton.

Young Roth, who arrived home late last night, told how he and Heacock crossed to the Canadian side on the ice bridge and took pictures. Returning, the bridge began to rumble. Heacock dropped the camera, but Roth picked it up. Heacock caught it from him and smashed it on the ice.

"This is no time to think of cameras," he said. "We must fight for our lives."

As they ran Stanton behind them shouted for aid for his wife. Roth and Heacock stopped and Heacock took the woman by one arm, Stanton holding the other. Roth made his way toward the Canadian shore. Leaping a break in the ice, he called to Heacock:

"Can't you make it?"

"No. Good-bye. Don't tell my mother."

Roth then caught the rope thrown him and was drawn to safety.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Although watchers were stationed at the Whirlpool Rapids early to-day, it was not expected that the ice-churning water would soon, if ever, release the bodies of the man, woman, and boy who were swept down the gorge with icefloes yesterday. The appearance of the whirlpool was ugly, and the grinding of the ice jam echoed through the gorge.

SWALLOWS POISON IN STREET

Woman Refuses to Disclose Her Identity to Police—Will Probably Die.

A young woman approached Policeman Shay of the East Twenty-second Street Station while he was on duty at Twenty-sixth Street and Second Avenue shortly before 9 o'clock last night. She said that her name was Mary Lewis, and that she was in deep trouble. When she told the bluecoat she was married he advised her to go to the Domestic Relations Court, and after a few words of advice turned to continue his patrol.

He had scarcely left the woman's side when he heard her fall to the sidewalk, and turning saw her drop a botle to the sidewalk. The bottle was labeled "Tincture of Iodine." The policeman, after calling an ambulance, procured a bottle of milk and made the woman drink it.

At Bellevue Hospital the woman refused to tell the police the name of her husband or her address. The physicians say she will probably die. The police found out that her mother, Mrs. Mary Dougherty, lived at 609 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, and sent for her. Mrs. Dougherty went to the hospital, but she also would not give the police the name of her daughter's husband, or say where her daughter lived.

MORSE COMING HERE ALMOST A WELL MAN

Atlanta and Washington Marvel at the Speed with Which Health Has Returned to Him.

HE MAY START TO-MORROW

And Go to Carlsbad a While—Caller Remarks That He May Be Back in Wall Street in a Few Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 5.—Charles W. Morse has made such rapid progress toward recovery since he was pardoned by President Taft that it is planned to take him to New York some time this week, and Mrs. Morse, who has been with her husband constantly since he was pardoned, said to-night that she hoped to have Mr. Morse in New York in a few days. It is said that they will leave here for the North either on Wednesday or Thursday, provided the improvement in Mr. Morse's condition continues.

As to the plans after reaching New York nothing definite is known. It has been stated that he would go to Carlsbad, Germany, as soon as he was able to travel. From information which is authoritative it appears that if he is able to go as far as New York he will make the remainder of the contemplated journey as soon after reaching New York as possible, after taking time to recover from the effects of the first part of the trip.

Mr. Morse and his wife occupy a suite at the Piedmont Hotel and persons who have seen the ex-banker in the last few days say that the improvement in his condition is marvelous and that it is difficult to believe that a few weeks ago he was reported incurably ill with only a short while to live.

"Why," said one who saw Mr. Morse to-day, "I would not be surprised if he were operating in Wall Street in a few weeks.

"The physicians ascribe the physical improvement to the effect on Mr. Morse's mind. They say that while a prisoner he wouldn't try to get well, but now that he is free he is resolved to recover and hope is aiding in his recovery.

"Some physicians here have never believed that Morse was as desperately ill as he was reported to be, and when he was pardoned many wagers were made that he would be a well man in a few months."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—There is good reason for expecting that Charles W. Morse will soon be on his way to Carlsbad. A Government official who visited the Atlanta Penitentiary on Saturday says that the friends of Morse have their plans all made to carry him from his hotel on a stretcher and take him to New York to sail at once for Europe.

This official was told by those who are nearest to Mr. Morse that he has improved uniformly every hour since his release from prison custody.

The Warden at Fort McPherson and his physicians expressed the belief that with the psychic influence of the prison conditions removed it will only be a matter of time before the former prisoner will regain his health and be able to give his attention to business affairs.

There was no intimation from any source, according to the same authority, that the prisoner simulated extreme conditions of sickness while in prison. Freedom and the lightening of the mental load are accredited with the improvement in his case.

BUSINESS MEN TO AID TAFT.

Club Organized in Chicago—Col. Thompson Out for Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 5.—An independent business men's organization is to be effected to carry on the President's publicity campaign in this city and throughout the Middle West. Among those identified with the Taft campaign is Julius Rosenwald, President of the Sears-Roebuck Company. Several prominent State Street merchants and bankers are to be given places on committees.

The organization of a Taft Club was perfected to-day at a meeting at the Union League Club. Thomas E. Donnely was elected Chairman, and George A. Mason, Secretary. These two officers and five business men were named as a committee to report on the permanent organization of the club. The next meeting will be held at the Union League Club on Thursday.

Col. John R. Thompson to-day sent to Gov. Deneen his resignation as a member of the Governor's staff, and announced that he would support the candidacy of John E. Wayman for Governor as against that of Deneen. Col. Thompson's defection is due directly to the refusal of the Deneen managers to permit a Roosevelt indorsement at the County Convention last Saturday.

CLAUDIA HAINS WEDS AGAIN.

Former Wife of Capt. Hains, Who Killed Annis, Marries an Artist.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Claudia C. Libbey Hains, who was the central figure in the army tragedy of some four years ago, which resulted in the murder at the Bayside Yacht Club, Flushing, L. I., of William E. Annis by her husband, Capt. Peter C. Hains, was married to-night at the home of her parents in Milton, to Reginald Fairfax Bolles, a Boston artist.

Capt. Hains obtained his divorce from his wife two years ago, naming Annis. The divorce was not contested. Mrs. Hains returned to Boston to live with her parents.

The ceremony to-night was performed by the Rev. Dr. A. A. Berle, former pastor of the Shawmut Avenue Congregational Church. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Libbey, parents of the bride, and Matthew Bolles of New York, brother of the bridegroom.

Bolles is a Harvard graduate of the class of 1900, and has a considerable reputation as an illustrator. He will make his home with his bride in the Back Bay district.

How She Was Deceived.

The mistress of one of the fashionable homes near Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street unwittingly told of an experience with her butler to a number of friends at an afternoon tea yesterday. The story runs that the lady in question had given her butler eighteen dollars (one and one-half dollars apiece) for a dozen purple orchids. The purchase was made and admired by every one. The following week a similar order was given the butler, but the purchase was this time "delivered" to the lady, who unthinkingly opened the package and found therein a receipt for seven dollars and twenty cents (sixty cents) apiece. The butler was sent for, admitted he had retained the difference in price—eleven dollars and twenty cents—but pleaded that his madam had admitted the second purchase was of equally good orchids. A compromise was finally effected and instructions given by the madam that all future flower purchases should be made at Fleischman, Forty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, where the eleven dollar and twenty cent saving was effected on the one dozen purple orchids.—Adv.

JUSTICE BURR IS INJURED.

Knocked Down and Dragged Under the Fender of Brooklyn Trolley Car.

Justice Joseph A. Burr of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, was knocked down and dragged twenty feet by a Putnam Avenue car at Court and Remsen Streets, Brooklyn, last evening. He was painfully injured, but refused medical attendance when he was pulled from under the car fender. A cab was called, and he was taken to his home, at 100 Gates Avenue. Drs. A. T. Bristow and J. M. Van Cott made an examination and found the Justice suffering from a fracture of the left arm.

It is believed that the Justice in crossing the street stepped from behind a car that had passed him just as the Putnam Avenue car came along from the opposite direction. It was going too fast for him to get out of the way, and the fender struck him before Andrew Miller, the motorman, realized what had happened.

Policeman Murray of the Traffic Squad, stationed a little way from the spot where the accident happened, pulled the Justice from under the fender. Justice Burr's physicians said late last night that he was resting well. He may be confined to his home for some time as a result of his injuries.

TIPPING IS ILLEGAL.

Also "unAmerican"—Dictum of a Chicago Judge in a Dispute Over Profits.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Tipping was branded as illegal and unAmerican by Judge Theodore Brentano to-day.

Partners in a corporation, which bought the "tip concession" from hotels and cafés, were in the Circuit Court for the second time within a few months, quarreling over a division of the profits of the business. For the second time they heard themselves called violators of the law.

They supplied cafés with attendants whose uniforms contained no pockets, and all gratuities were turned in to the promoters.

GEORGE BROADHURST HURT.

Playwright Falls on Icy Broadway Pavement and Receives Scalp Wound.

George H. Broadhurst, author of "Bought and Paid For" and many other plays, slipped on the icy pavement at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second Street yesterday afternoon and had a bad fall. His head struck the ground and he suffered a scalp wound that was painful if not very serious.

He was carried into Hegeman's drug store, in the Times Building, and later was taken to the office of Dr. Oscar Leiser, at 243 West Forty-fourth Street, who gave him the necessary medical attention.

ROOSEVELT LEADS IN POLL.

Receives More Than Half the Votes Cast—Wilson Democratic Favorite.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 5.—The mail Presidential poll which The Minneapolis Journal is conducting in Minnesota and The Kansas City Star in Missouri shows that ex-President Roosevelt is polling more than half the total number cast. In the Minneapolis poll, out of a total of 6,200 votes, Roosevelt received 2,488, La Follette 1,614, Taft 1,331, Cummins 39, and Hughes 4, for the Republican nomination.

Wilson has a clear majority over all other Democrats, with a total of 474, Bryan 111, Clark 78, Harmon 30, Folk 15, and Debs 13.

In the Missouri poll Roosevelt has 50,225, Clark 10,647, Bryan 8,943, Taft 6,033, La Follette 5,449, Folk 5,871, Wilson 4,670, Debs 1,754, Harmon 1,507, Cummins 785, Underwood 255, Foss 53.

J. J. TURNER'S CAR DERAILED.

Vice President of Pennsylvania Hurt in Fort Wayne Accident.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 5.—J. J. Turner, Second Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was slightly injured this morning and had a narrow escape from death when his private car was thrown off the track at the western limits of the city.

Mr. Turner was en route to Chicago, and his private car was the rear coach of limited train No. 5. The car was derailed and whipped from the track, rolling down an embankment. Mr. Turner received a cut on the head and an abrasion of the arm. One of the porters was slightly injured. Mr. Turner proceeded to Chicago.

GOV. WILSON A BAD BARBER.

On Eve of Stumping Tour He Cuts His Lip While Shaving.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 5.—While shaving in the executive offices of the State House to-day Gov. Wilson allowed the razor to slip, and he received an annoying cut on the lip. The wound bled profusely, and it was finally necessary to summon Dr. William A. Clark.

The Governor will speak in Allentown, Penn., on Wednesday night, and the following morning will leave for Frankfort, Ky., where he will address the members of the Legislature of that State. He will be in Louisville on Saturday, and is to address a large meeting in Chicago at noon on Lincoln's Birthday.

Gov. Wilson addressed the New Jersey Editorial Association at its annual luncheon here to-day at the Hotel Windsor. The Governor spoke in a general way of the power of the press and praised the standards of the papers of this State.

BIPLANE AND AUTO TO RACE.

Contest Over Ice-Covered Hudson Arranged by Two Tarrytown Men.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Arrangements were made to-day for a novel race next Saturday, providing the weather permits. Clinton O. Hadley, who has been making exhibitions at Mineola with his biplane, had the machine brought here last night, and he will race against Fred Koenig in his Mercedes to Nuwburg and return.

Koenig, of course, will travel over the frozen Hudson, and Hadley, who is of the firm of Steurer & Hadley, upholsterers, will follow the Hudson's course in his flight. Hadley built the biplane, and he has had considerable success with it. Men are now working in Koenig's garage putting it together. Hadley hopes to have it ready for a trial flight by Thursday.

The race Saturday is to be for the benefit of the friends of the contestants. Hadley wants to show home folks what his machine can do. Koenig in exhibition driving has beaten the Twentieth Century Limited. While the river is in excellent condition and the ice is very thick, still in places there are big crevices which will make Koenig's task difficult. Hadley will also experience considerable trouble with the winds in the highlands.

LA FOLLETTE NOW OUT OF THE RACE

Manager Announces End of Personal Campaign, but Continued Fight for Principles.

ROOSEVELT MEN REJOICE

Medill McCormick and G. L. Record Tell Progressives the Colonel's Their Candidate.

SENATOR GOING TO EUROPE

Is Badly in Need of a Rest After His Collapse at Periodical Publishers' Dinner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette has practically come to an end, following his collapse at the dinner of the Periodical Publishers' Association in Philadelphia last Friday night. A statement issued from La Follette headquarters here to-night comes as near admitting the plain fact as could be expected.

The Wisconsin Senator's name will still go before the Republican National Convention at Chicago next June, but the active efforts heretofore made by himself and his supporters to win delegates to the convention will now cease, and the attention of the thick and thin La Follete men will be concentrated on the effort to obtain the instruction of delegates to vote for "the thorough-going and definite principles which he has advocated." That is, they will do what they can to have a progressive platform adopted by the National Convention.

Meanwhile there is already a scattering of the rats from the sinking ship, and along with the statement from La Follette headquarters to-night comes a message from Medill McCormick, who has been one of the chief La Follette boomers, urging the Illinois progressives to get aboard the Roosevelt band wagon with all speed and agility.

The La Follette Statement.

The La Follette statement says:

> In any State where his friends find it impossible, because of his present inability to fill speaking engagements, to secure the election of delegates for him, they will best serve the Progressive cause by instructing delegates, where they find it possible to do so, for the thorough-going and definite principles which he has advocated and aided in embodying in progressive statutes, proposed in constructive measures which he has introduced in the United States Senate and in the addresses which he has already made in this campaign.
>
> Senator La Follette finds it necessary to take a few weeks' rest. This may prevent his making speeches in the States which are to hold early primaries, and his friends in those States will make such campaign for him as in their judgment will best serve the progressive principles which his candidacy represents.
>
> Senator La Follette was urged to become a candidate by the most active progressive Republicans of the country, because they believed that he, better than any other man, by the whole course of his political career, represented those principles. He would never have consented to stand as a candidate, excepting in good faith. Though he finds his plans interfered with by his temporary indisposition in fulfillment of the implied pledge which his candidacy made to those who have always believed in the sincerity and constancy of his purposes, his name will be presented to the National Republican Convention and delegates will make an aggressive contest for his nomination, and for a strong progressive platform.
>
> To this end the Progressive Republican Campaign Committee will devote its best efforts. Whatever time Senator La Follette can devote to the campaign after taking a needed rest for a few weeks, will be given subject to such demands as his official duties make upon him.
>
> W. L. HOUSER.

The telegram of Mr. McCormick says:

> Washington, D. C., Feb. 5.
>
> To Illinois Progressive League, Chicago:
>
> Considering all the circumstances, including Senator La Follette's physical condition, in the opinion of the overwhelming majority of progressive Republican members of both Houses of Congress, progressives in Illinois must unite to send Roosevelt delegates to the next Republican Convention. With Roosevelt and Jones the progressives can sweep Illinois and establish in State and Nation progressive administrations, which will substitute a policy of progressive leadership for a policy of compromise with principle and concession to special interests.
>
> MEDILL McCORMICK.

The Jones mentioned in Mr. McCormick's telegram is the Progressive Republican candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination in Illinois.

Urged Him to Withdraw.

There has been something very closely akin to panic in the Progressive camp here since the news reached Washington of the extraordinary performance of Senator La Follette at the publishers' banquet. For some time before that event the inroads made on the La Follette campaign by the Roosevelt boom had been causing consternation among the La Follette faithful, and there is no denying that that fact played its part in the exhibition Mr. La Follette made of himself at Philadelphia.

The Wisconsin Senator had been urged and advised by even his own managers here to pull out of the race for the Republican nomination and throw his strength to Roosevelt. The painful fact had been pointed out to him that he was not popular in the country, and that his candidacy was setting no prairie fires. It was urged on him that if he would not withdraw he might help somewhat in making Roosevelt the nominee of the Chicago convention, and that then he would find himself in the golden seat for the nomination in 1916.

But La Follette put all that aside. He declared with the old La Follette ring that his was a fight for principles and not for office. He did not expect to get the nomination himself this year. He was laboring for a cause and he was the best and truest representative of that cause. In other words he was a better Progressive than Roosevelt and the Statesman from Sagamore Hill would not make the same kind of a stand for the true principles that he would.

That went last week with most of the faithful. But there were indications even before the dinner of the Periodical Publishers that some of the loudest players in the La Follette band were preparing to flop into the Roosevelt procession. And it was noted with pain at the La Follette headquarters here that among those about to flop was the chief newspaper shouter of the whole crowd.

La Follette Men Confer.

Since the lamentable exhibition in Philadelphia on Friday night the La Follette men here have been in almost constant conference trying to determine what they had better do. Some of them have been advising insistently that there should be a general transfer of affection to Roosevelt, but La Follette himself would have none of that. He has made it clear that he does not rate Col. Roosevelt as a Simon Pure progressive, and will not trust him with the custody of the true progressive principles.

There were two conferences to-day, one this morning and another this afternoon. The differences among the faithful were clearly shown by the fact that no two of those in attendance at these conferences would give the same accounts of what occurred at them. Every man was explaining his own idea of what should be done. At the morning conference some of the men who have been most welcome in the most sacred inner councils of La Follette progressiveism heretofore committed the sacrilege of advising the flop to Roosevelt. They wanted La Follette to pull squarely out and throw what strength he could to the Colonel from Oyster Bay.

But, however much broken physically Senator La Follette may be, he was sufficiently strong to cling to his determination not to do that and the statement issued this evening was the best that could be wrung from him. And while that statement was in course of preparation at his headquarters his personal adviser and confidential secretary, Col. John Hannan, was telling personal friends in Washington that the Senator was all right physically; that he had recovered entirely from his "indisposition" of Friday night, and was "about his duties to-day as well and hearty as ever."

Col. Hannan was assuring old friends that La Follette did not regard his experience at Philadelphia "as anything out of the ordinary, but rather as one of a lifelong series of adventures where he has met opposition and has doggedly staid with it."

"Why," Col. Hannan reported him as saying to-day, "I have grown fat on that sort of thing all my life."

Only Sick Politically.

The fact is that Senator La Follette is about as well as ever physically, but he is mighty sick politically. In the past he has come to the physical breakdown stage several times, and has always shown remarkable powers of recuperation. His ability to stand on his feet and talk has become proverbial. It was in one of his spells of physical indisposition that he won the world's record for long-distance talking in the long filibuster that he conducted against the Aldrich Emergency Currency bill four years ago, when he held the floor in the Senate for more than twenty consecutive hours. That performance was almost as extraordinary as the one in Philadelphia last Friday night.

There is still indecision as to how Mr. La Follette shall take the rest promised to him in the statement from his headquarters to-night. He has been urged to go to the Mediterranean for a voyage of six weeks or more. Bermuda has also been suggested and criticised as a place from which return is too easy and prompt. His friends want to get him away far enough so that he will have to stay long enough to do him some real good.

Whatever may be decided on finally will not be undertaken until the recovery of his little daughter Mary from the severe operation which she underwent in Providence Hospital on Saturday. The Senator spent several hours with her to-day. She is progressing very favorably and it is expected that she will recover rapidly.

In considering plans for the proposed rest trip Senator La Follette and his friends are taking into account the stage of legislation in the Senate. He does not mean to be away when the Tarriff bills that are promised from the House come up for action in the Senate and he wants to be here when the final vote on the Lorimer case is had.

It was even said that he does not regard his Philadelphia experience as anything out of the ordinary, but rather as one of a lifelong series of adventures where he has met opposition and has doggedly stayed with it.

"Why," he is reported to have said to this friend, "I have grown fat on that sort of thing all my life."

The Senator spent several hours at the hospital to-day, where his daughter Mary is recovering from the effects of an operation.

G. L. RECORD FOR ROOSEVELT.

He Tells Hudson County Progressives of La Follette's Withdrawal.

George L. Record, Chairman of the Hudson County progressives, made the announcement last night, at the dinner of the progressives in Jersey City, that United States Senator Robert M. La Follette is out of the race as a candidate for the nomination for President of the United States.

Mr. Record in making this announcement said that the progressives would now take up the candidacy of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and that every progressive delegate in Hudson County would vote for Roosevelt. Mr. Record said that the present physical condition of Senator La Follette made it imperative that he withdraw from the race.

The speaker added that shortly before reaching the hall where the dinner was in progress, he had received a telephone message from Washington, that La Follette had withdrawn as a candidate, and that now the progressives from all over the country would work for the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for President. Mr. Record concluded by saying that La Follette had issued a statement announcing his withdrawal.

The progressive Republicans of Hudson County held their dinner in the Grandview Auditorium. The place was packed with progressives, who were anxious to hear the Senator from Wisconsin, who was to have been the principal speaker. La Follette however, because of his present physical condition, has had to cancel all his political engagements for the present and it is understood will go abroad for a rest.

Mr. Record, when he made the announcement that the name of Theodore Roosevelt is to be the choice of the progressives, was loudly cheered. He eulogized La Follette as the man who made a model State of Wisconsin, and who would also have made a model candidate for President, and he regretted that he had overworked himself in recent campaigning.

United States Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota and Charles M. Fowler of Union County, New Jersey, addressed the gathering.

GRAIN ELEVATOR IN FLAMES.

Police Reserves Rescue Twenty-five Horses from $150,000 Harlem Fire.

The thick acrid smoke of burning grain warned Jeremiah Coleman, a watchman, in the elevator and flour and feed mill of William H. Payne & Son, 129th Street and Harlem River last night, that a fire had started beneath him. Coleman groped his way to the ground and shouted an alarm. His cries brought Patrolman Bluhm of the East 126th Street Station on the run. Bluhm turned in an alarm of fire and sent in a call for help to his station house. The reserves under Lieut. Kearn hurried to the fire and ran 25 horses out of the Payne Stables and parked them at 129th Steet and Third Avenue.

When Battalion Chief Andrews arrived the flames had broken through the metal sheathing of the elevator and were streaming from its cupola. The fire was so hot it was impossible for elevated trains on the Second and Third Avenue lines to pass and traffic was halted for 30 minutes. Andrews found the fire spreading to the mill and sent in a second alarm.

Deputy Chief McCartney came with more apparatus and two fire boats, the McClellan and the Lawrence. The two fire boats did not connect with land lines, but put all their streams on the flaming elevator.

More than 100,000 bushels of grain were stored in the elevator. The damage was estimated at about $150,000.

THIRD-TERM FIGHT SHELVED BY HOUSE

Slayden's Resolution, Aimed at Roosevelt's Boom, Blocked by a Vote of 90 to 51.

181 DEMOCRATS DIDN'T VOTE

Thought It Might Show They Are Afraid of the Colonel—Cannon and McCall for It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—With everybody playing politics in the House of Representatives this afternoon, the Slayden resolution seeking the "sense" of the popular branch of Congress on the third-term idea was shelved, for some time at least. The resolution was called up by its author under suspension of the rules, who anticipated that it would pass with a whoop and a hurrah and "seal the fate of the Roosevelt movement." But snags were encountered at the outset, and the House dodged the issue by a vote of 90 to 51.

"I have no comment to make," said Majority Leader Underwood on the refusal of the House to consider the resolution.

"It's simply remarkable with what unanimity a group of politicians will sidestep a stick of dynamite," said another Democrat.

"I am for President Taft for renomination," declared Minority Leader Mann, "but whatever was done, whether the resolution was to-day voted up or down, it was bound to be construed as favorable to Col. Roosevelt."

The House was taken somewhat by surprise when the resolution was called up. It had been referred to the Committee on Election of President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress. That committee had made no report, but Representative Slayden had consulted Judge Rucker, Chairman of the committee, to ascertain whether it would be agreeable to call up the resolution under suspension of the rules, and Mr. Slayden believed Judge Rucker would not feel offended. Representative McCall of Massachusetts strongly favorable to the resolution, had prepared an elaborate speech in which he intended telling the House that the third term was "not an academic but a thoroughly practical question," and when Mr. Slayden heard of this he decided to act.

A Surprise for Slayden.

Toward the middle of the afternoon the insurgent Republicans caught a whiff of what was in the air, but before there was time for them to get their heads together Representative Slayden was on his feet with a double motion to suspend the rules, discharging the Rucker committee from consideration of the resolution, and pass it immediately. A two-thirds vote was necessary. Representative Slayden felt confident that not more than twenty men would vote against the resolution. His first surprise came when Representative Crumpacker of Indiana, the lone Republican of the Hoosier delegation, suggested the lack of a quorum. The doors were closed, members tumbled in from all directions, and there was considerable excitement, likewise feeling, when they learned that the third term idea had been "sprung."

There was a roll call, and when the quorum was announced Mr. Slayden asked "unanimous consent that a second be considered as ordered." In an instant Representative Thetus W. Sims, Democrat, of Tennessee, objected. This meant the resort to tellers to obtain a "second" to the motion.

"Those in favor of ordering a second pass through," declared Speaker Clark.

Instead of making a wild dash to be counted in the affirmative, most of the Democrats clung to their seats. But ex-Speaker Cannon stepped through in a jiffy, followed by Representative McCall and Gen. Henry H. Bingham of Philadelphia, who was the "Father of the House" until the Republicans lost control. Only 48 of the 229 Democrats of the House voted "aye."

"Those in the negative pass through," called Speaker Clark.

The Republicans filed down quickly, and mingled with them were a number of Democrats desirous of being recorded in the negative. Among the Democrats so voting were Floor Leader Underwood and Messrs. Hardwick, Alexander, Sims, and James.

When the vote was announced as 51 to 90 against "seconding" the motion, Chairman Underwood moved an immediate adjournment. But it was so early in the afternoon that Minority Leader Mann pointed to the clock and forced a roll call on adjournment.

Vote Not a Real Test.

The attempt of Representative Slayden to force action on his resolution failed in obtaining any crystallization of sentiment on Presidential third terms. It was almost unanimously admitted that, on its merits, an anti-third-term resolution would be favored by nine-tenths of the House membership, but the wisdom of taking such action as was proposed to-day is variously viewed, and the desire of factions on both sides to "play politics" wrecked the plan.

Representative Slayden openly declared his resolution was aimed at "the Roosevelt movement." One group headed by Representative Slayden, McCall, Cannon, and others, believed that if the resolution were brought forward and passed by a large majority of Republicans and Democrats, it would put an "official seal of disapproval" on Col. Roosevelt's third-term aspirations. A second group, including many Democrats, believed that if the resolution passed it would create the impression before the country that "the Democratic Party is afraid of Roosevelt." The general insurgent view at the time the vote was taken was that if they voted to block action on the resolution the failure of the Democrats to pass it would be heralded as an indication that "even a Democratic House could not oppose Roosevelt for a third term," and that this would help Col. Roosevelt and injure the cause of President Taft.

An hour after the vote was taken there was much shifting of sentiment. Some of the insurgents thought they had acted too quickly when the claim was made that the passage of the resolution might have been just as helpful to Col. Roosevelt among those who might interpret the action as indicative of Democratic fear of his nomination. There was likewise considerable confusion of opinion among Democrats concerning the wisdom of their action.

Taft to Speak at Navy Peace Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—President Taft, Rear Admiral Wainwright, and Charles Francis Adams of Boston will speak at a peace meeting of the Navy League here on Friday, Feb. 23. The league will then be in convention. W. Morgan Shuster, Secretary Meyer, and Jacob M. Dickinson, ex-Secretary of War, will speak at the annual dinner on Feb. 22.

ADELBERT MAY NOT COME.

Emperor William's Son Unlikely to Accompany the Visiting German Fleet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—There is current much misinformation in regard to the visit during the coming Spring of a squadron of the German fleet to this country. While it is assured that the visit will be made, Ambassador Leishman, having suggested to the German Foreign Office that this Government would be pleased to receive such an opportunity to show the hearty good feeling that Americans have for the Emperor's Government and people, and in a measure make a return of the hospitalities shown the officers and men of the First Division of the Atlantic fleet on its visit to the Kiel Review last year, it has at no time been known that the Emperor's son, Prince Adelbert, will come to this country with the fleet, in which he is an officer.

The statement sent out from Milwaukee that an invitation to the Prince to come to that city and be the guest of German societies there, and that this invitation had been acknowledged and accepted through the German Embassy in Washington, is wholly untrue. Nothing whatever of any such invitation or its acceptance is known at the German Embassy here. Such an invitation may have been sent directly to Berlin, but the acceptance would certainly have been sent through the Embassy here.

TAFT TO APPOINT HOOK.

May Send In His Nomination as Harlan's Successor To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—President Taft is expected to send to the Senate on Wednesday the nomination of Judge William C. Hook of Kansas for the place on the Supreme Court bench made vacant by the death of Justice Harlan. There has been some opposition to Judge Hook.

The President also expects to nominate at the same time Justices for the vacancies in the Federal Court at Chicago, the Southern District of New York, and the Eastern District of Wisconsin.

Julius Mayer, former Attorney General of New York, is mentioned for the place there. Judge George A. Carpenter, now on the district bench at Chicago, is said to be likely to succeed to the vacancy in the Circuit Court.

SNEAD TRIAL OPENS.

Three Prominent Families In Texas Involved in Murder Case.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 5.—That Capt. A. G. Boyce tried to run away when he saw J. B. Sneed was about to shoot him, was brought out at the murder trial of Sneed to-day. Leland Hampton, a State witness, also testified that the meeting of the two men was not accidental as the defense contends. He said that shortly before the shooting he saw Sneed looking through a window of the hotel lobby where the tragedy occurred.

Because of the prominence of the three families figuring in the trial only half the persons desiring admittance were able ot gain entrance to the court room to hear the testimony to-day. Judge Swayne advised women not to attend to-morrow because of the nature of the testimony.

Three of the most wealthy and influential families of Texas are involved in the trial which began here to-day. The killing was the sequel to the elopement of Sneed's wife with Capt. Boyce's son, and it is forecast that much of the defense will rest on the claim that the elder Boyce aided in the romance.

The killing occurred in the lobby of a Fort Worth hotel several days after Mrs. Sneed had been returned from Winnipeg, whence she and young Boyce eloped. After the shooting, it is alleged, Sneed said: "It had to be done."

The Sneeds, the Boyces, and the Snyders—the latter the family of Mrs. Sneed—have been well known in Texas since earlier generations began contributing to the State's history.

A. G. Boyce, Jr., remains in Canada. At the earnest solicitation of friends he has made no attempt to return to Texas since the elopement and killing.

S. H. Cherry of Galveston, a traveling salesman, testified to having witnessed the shooting.

Edward Cobb of Wichita Falls, a State witness, said that less than an hour before the shooting of Capt. Boyce either the Captain or Edward Throckmorton had declared: "Within thirty days Al Boyce, Jr., and Mrs. Sneed will be reunited."

The Throckmorton referred to died suddenly late last week after a mysterious illness supposed to have been brought on by alcoholic poisoning. He was to have been the chief witness for the State.

WON'T CONVICT LYNCHERS.

State Deputy Asks Change of Venue for Coatesville Cases.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—In asking the Supreme Court to-day to grant a change of venue in the cases of seven defendants yet to be tried on murder charges growing out of the lynching of Zach Walker, who was burned to death by a mob near Coatesville, in August, J. E. B. Cunningham, Deputy Attorney General, declared that "there is a deep-seated purpose on the part of the people of Chester County not to convict a white man for the murder of a negro."

Several men have already been tried in connection with the lynching, and all were acquitted.

The brief of the Attorney General's department says there is no reflection upon the conduct of the former trials by the County Judges. The Judges impressed upon the various juries the importance of convicting every person shown to have had a guilty participation in the lynching, but the juries failed to give to the evidence the consideration the importance of the case demanded.

"Your petitioners are firmly convinced," the brief continues, "that to try the cases remaining for trial before juries selected from Chester County would only result in turning the administration of justice into a complete mocking and travesty and in bringing further a lasting disgrace and dishonor of the fair name and fame of the Commonwealth."

The petition asks that the cases be removed from Chester County to the Supreme Court, there to be dealt with according to law. The District Attorney of Chester County joined in the petition.

SINCLAIR TO GET DIVORCE.

For Second Time a Referee Reports In Favor of the Magazine Writer.

Marshall S. Marden, a referee appointed by Supreme Court Justice Davis, reported yesterday to Justice Newburger a recommendation that Upton Sinclair, the novelist, receive a decree of divorce from Mrs. Meta H. Fuller Sinclair, daughter of a Clerk in the Criminal Courts.

This is the second time a referee has pronounced in favor of Sinclair's allegation that his wife has been guilty of an offense against her marriage vows with Harry Kemp, the "hobo poet" from Kansas. The first referee, William S. Kelley, also found Mrs. Sinclair guilty, but Justice Davis refused to accept his report, because he had allowed Sinclair to answer certain questions not provided for in the code.

On the first hearing Sinclair was interrogated by his wife's attorney, who tried to show that the novelist had not been a sufficiently watchful husband and was to blame for his wife's elopement with Kemp from his bungalow at Arden, Del., to her mother's home in this city. Mrs. Sinclair did not fight the proceedings and disclaimed authorizing her attorney to oppose a decree.

SOLDIER ENDS HIS LIFE.

Shoots Himself with Rifle, as His Friend Did Last Summer.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Brooding over the suicide of his friend, O. F. Miller, who shot himself through the head with an army rifle in the barracks at Fort Slocum, near New Rochelle, last Summer, John W. Hedden of Troy killed himself in a similar manner to-day, blowing off the top of his head.

Hedden, who recently re-enlisted for the third time, and was to be transferred to the Twenty-ninth Infantry at Fort Jay, Governors Island, left the mess hall while the members of Fort Slocum garrison were at lunch, and going to the barracks placed the muzzle of his rifle in his mouth and pulled the trigger with a string.

STENOGRAPHER OUT FOR AIDING LORIMER

Committee Dismisses Blumenberg, Who Said Detective "Faked" Shorthand Notes.

TO TEST THEIR GENUINENESS

Other Stenographers to Pass on Report of McGowan's Alleged Confession of Perjury.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The whole of to-day's session of the Lorimer Committee was devoted to sifting suspicions arising from the outburst on Saturday night of Milton W. Blumenberg, official stenographer of the Senate and of the committee. In a sensational manner he charged then that the stenographic notes of J. E. Sheridan, stenographer of the Burns Detective Agency, on which the attempt is being made to build up a case impeaching the pro-Lorimer testimony of Charles McGowan, a young Canadian, had been "faked." McGowan's alleged admissions that he received $1,500 to perjure himself by testifying that he never had heard of a hundred-thousand-dollar fund being raised by Edward Hines to help elect Lorimer involve C. F. Wiehe, a brother-in-law of Hines.

It was after a wrangle with members of the committee on Saturday over his accusation against Sheridan that Blumenberg stopped his stenographers from taking testimony and was charged with contempt. To-day he refused to explain his conduct, and was dismissed as official stenographer of the committee. Resolutions were then adopted looking to his punishment at once for alleged contempt, and the committee attorneys began a search for precedents to bring him before the bar of the Senate. Pending those proceedings he will be released from custody and held simply as a witness in the Lorimer case in regard to the stenographic notes.

Sheridan finished his testimony to-day. He insisted that his notes were genuine and reiterated that he had not attempted to record all that came over the phonographic apparatus from the room in which detectives were talking to McGowan, but that he took only what he deemed material. A willingness to submit to any test of speed was expressed. His now famous notebook was turned over to the committee.

After refusing to explain why he had called off his stenographers at Saturday's session, Mr. Blumenberg was put on the witness stand. Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, a member of the committee, tried at great length to wring from him an admission that his charge against Sheridan came after consultations with Edward Hines or other of the Lorimer witnesses or counsel. This implication Mr. Blumenberg stoutly denied, clinging all the time to his assertion that the Sheridan notes could not possibly have been taken from a dictagraph version of a real conversation.

The witness was asked what he said to Hines at the evening session just before he made his statement before the committee.

"I haven't the remotest idea," was the response.

"Why did you sit down beside him?" pursued Senator Lea.

"I probably wanted to call his attention to the fabrication."

"Why didn't you tell members of the committee; you were in its employ?"

"I didn't see any."

"Oh, you know three members were as near to you as Mr. Hines. That kind of answer won't do."

"It must do. I can't give any good reason."

Senator Kern asked if the witness had not at lunch to-day handed a paper to ex-Judge Hanecy, representing Senator Lorimer.

"Yes, he did," interrupted Attorney Hanecy sharply, "and it is here if you want to read it. It contains the names of eleven stenographers of reputation, and if any one of them says these notes are genuine, I will have nothing more to say," declared Blumenberg.

The committee has summoned a number of stenographers to testify, and is considering a number of tests to determine the issue. Blumenberg's examination will be continued to-morrow.

WALDO UNDER COURT FIRE.

Magistrate Freschi Criticises Police Head for Action on Affray.

Magistrate Freschi in the Tombs Court yesterday severely criticised Police Commissioner Waldo for transferring, reducing, and suspending Detective John Maddock, who investigated the case of Edward Dwyer, charged with stabbing Alberto Roberts, a Porto Rican, in the apartments of Mrs. Francis Carrier, at 817 West End Avenue, on Jan. 29.

Magistrate Freschi's remarks were made after Maddock on the stand had told all he knew about the case, which was continued until next week. Maddock testified that at 1:20 o'clock on the morning after the affray in the Carrier apartment, he was informed that an assault had been committed. He hastened to the address and was told by Mrs. Carrier there had been no stabbing. He so reported to the Detective Bureau, whereupon Lieut. John Mannion said that Dwyer had presented himself at the Central Office and would meet him in the West 100th Street Station.

Dwyer appeared at the station house and said that Mrs. Carrier and Roberts had attempted to kill him. He showed a slight scratch on the side of his right hand to substantiate his charge. Dwyer then departed, leaving the detective unconvinced, and as he did not apear at a time appointed, Maddock arrested him on the complaint of Roberts, whom he visited in St. Luke's Hospital, where Roberts was suffering from a number of knife wounds. At the finish of Maddock's testimony, Magistrate Freschi said:

"This detective tells a perfectly straight story, as he did on the first examination. I have known him for a long time, and when he appeared before me as a witness in the West Side Court, I always found him a truthful witness and a good detective. It is unfortunate that he has become involved in this case, through misleading statements of some of the principals. Of course, I cannot speak for the Police Department, but from the testimony given by the officer he could not have done otherwise than he did and keep within the law. I believe he did right under the circumstances. I am convinced that he told the truth and is to be complimented on doing as he did in this case."

Mrs. Carrier did not appear in court. The only witness to testify besides Maddock was Mrs. T. Summers, landlady of the house where Dwyer lived. She testified that Dwyer came home on the night of the stabbing and after washing a spot from his coat, changed his linen. She said he had a slight cut on his right hand at the time.

SUICIDES PARTED IN DEATH.

Flood of Unpaid Bills at Mr. and Mrs. Noble's Apartment.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noble, the Blue Point elopers, who died in a suicide agreement in their apartments, in the Regina, 82 West Twelfth Street, last Saturday morning, less than a month after their marriage, rested in different parts of the city yesterday.

The body of Mrs. Noble, who before her first marriage, to Walter Lispenard Suydam, Jr., was Miss Louise White, remained last night in the White mausoleum at Woodlawn Cemetery. It will be taken to Philadelphia. Noble's body lay yesterday in an undertaking establishment. It was said that it would be removed this morning for burial in the Noble family plot in Sayville, L. I. Funeral services will be held at St. Ann's Episcopal Church in Patchogue.

A score of letters, nearly all addressed to Mrs. Noble, were delivered at the Regina apartments yesterday. They were bills for unpaid goods, it was said. Among the callers was a man who insisted that he wanted to serve papers on any one who might be in the apartment. He wanted a lien on some of the furniture, which had been bought on the installment plan. Only a few payments had been made.

Aside from any financial difficulties which the couple may have faced, the dissatisfaction of Mrs. Noble with the course she had chosen is still believed to have been the real motive for the double suicide. A letter was written to her by Mr. Suydam, her former husband, dated Jan. 12, two days after her marriage to Noble.

"Your letter received," wrote Mr. Suydam, "and my feelings toward you have not been anything but sincere pity since you left Blue Point. I have no hard feelings toward you, and my deep regret is that I was unable to make you foresee what your future would be and help you out of it before it was too late. * * * I am sorry, very sorry, but remember I harbor no ill will, and if you reach the end of things I will help you personally, but not him. Hoping you may be able to save a little happiness from the wreck, with God's help, WALTER, Jr."

ENGINEERS MAY STOP LAWRENCE WHEELS

Threatened Strike of Motor Plant Men Would Tie Up the Entire City.

OTHER UNIONS IN FIGHT

Operatives Leaving City by Hundreds —Haywood Pushes Plan to Send Strikers' Children Here.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 5.—With the threat to-day by District Organizer Cunningham of the Local Union of Stationary Engineers to call a general strike of members of that organization, the city faces a very serious situation. The members of the union, employed in the motor plants of the big mills, declare they are entitled to a 15 per cent. increase in wages to meet the union scale now paid by other corporations throughout the city.

A demand for the desired increase was submitted to-day to the agents of the various mills, who will have until Sunday to reply. Should the demands of the engineers be denied, Cunningham says a general strike will be called. In such a contingency the power plants of the street railway company, gas and electric light plants, water supply departments, and all public buildings were licensed firemen are employed would be affected.

Mayor Scanlon and the Alderman have urged the mill owners to yield, fearing that lawlessness will result, if the streets are not kept lighted.

The engineers' action is generally regarded as the first movement in a new campaign, planned by labor leaders to compel a settlement of the textile strike. For a week no violence has been done by the strikers, owing to the presence of the lerge number of troops. Should the engineers strike the operatives now at work in the mills would be compelled to cease work and not a single loom would turn.

More than a score of prominent local merchants met this evening to devise plans to prevent the cutting off of electric lights. It was decided to appeal to the officials of neighboring towns for a reserve force of competent engineers not affiliated with any labor organization, who can be sent here at short notice.

The American Federation of Labor will take its first step to-morrow toward helping to end the textile strike which is being conducted by a rival organization, the Industrial Workers of the World. Seven meetings will be held to-morrow in order to assemble the grievances of different classes of workmen into one statement. This statement will be presented to the mill agents.

The exodus of workers continues. A local Italian banker estimated to-day that upward of a thousand of his countrymen had left the city in the last week. Many have returned to the old country. Agents from other cities have been here several days, hiring help from among the strikers.

At the suggestion of W. D. Haywood a committee of five has been appointed to obtain as many children of strikers as possible, to be sent to New York City and exhibited at a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden to create sympathy for the strikers.

Haywood announced that everything is in readiness for a strike in the five Providence mills of the American Woolen Company, and that action may be taken at any time.

At the headquarters of the Women's Trade Union League yesterday it was stated that the league has taken no part yet in the project to bring children of the Lawrence strikers to this city.

The idea originated with the Italian Socialist Federation. Raymondo Fazio, the Secretary, said the Federation had a committee at work on the plan in Lawrence and another committee here. He said mothers of children have agreed that they may be brought here to be adopted into families during the strike.

Nominations by the President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Among nominations sent to the Senate by President Taft to-day were: Collectors of customs, District of Genesee, New York, George F. Roth; District of Philadelphia, Chester W. Hill. United States Attorney, District of Delaware, John P. Nields.

to the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station, where he remained until midnight. He frankly admitted to reporters that he was not working on the supposition that Charles M. Dickinson, son of the Postmaster at Champlain, N. Y., who is now in the Tombs, is the only man who could have committed the crime.

It was the straightening out of the Howard Walker-J. Howard Taylor tangle that occupied much of the Commissioner's attention yesterday afternoon. These men, who are known, one as the husband and the other as the intimate of Mrs. Walker, were supposed to be living, although reported dead. It was established yesterday beyond doubt that Taylor died in Plattsburg of tuberculosis on Wednesday, Dec. 13 last, and that he was buried there the following Saturday.

This information was officially communicated to Commissioner Dougherty by the Chief of Police of Plattsburg, and was further verified by a letter found in the Walker apartment, in which a friend of Taylor's wrote Mrs. Walker that "the misery of the poor boy is at last at an end."

As for Walker, Commissioner Dougherty is not at all certain that the report of his death is correct. It was suggested to him that Walker and Taylor were probably one and the same. Both were named Howard and both, it had been said, had gone to the northern part of the State in the effort to ward off tuberculosis. Walker was said by Dr. Osborne to have been an inmate of the Ray Brook Sanitarium, where he is supposed to have died a few weeks or months ago. In order to settle this point Commissioner Dougherty sent for Mrs. Susan Evans, Mrs. Walker's sister, and also called up Dr. Gray of the sanitarium on the long distance telephone.

No Record of Walker's Death.

"Mrs. Evans," the Commissioner said, "assured me that Taylor and Walker were different men, and gave different descriptions of each. She said she had known both of them, and that she knew that the man Walker had been married to her sister. When or where she was married she said she did not know.

"And as for the story that Walker had been in the Ray Brook Sanitarium and had died there recently, I called up Dr. Gray of that institution and had him go over the records of the institution. He has just called me up and says that he has been over the records from 1906 to date, but that he did not find any record of a patient by the name of Howard Walker. I have asked him to make another search of the records, and he has promised to do so, and will communicate the result to me to-morrow."

While he was talking with reporters the Commissioner decided to show them the police exhibits in the Walker case. These consist of two small dry batteries, a yard of bright red waxed cord which was wrapped around the package containing the infernal machine, half a dozen fragments of a five-eights inch pipe which had contained the explosive, pieces of the wood of which the box containing the bomb was made, and the piece of paper on which the address "Mrs. Taylor, 103 West Seventy-seventh street, city," was written and which established the fact that the bomb was sent to the woman from some part of this city.

The exhibit also included two ten cent postage stamps, the cancellations of which showed that they had been cancelled at the sub post office in the Grand Central Station.

"Does the finding of these stamps lead you to believe that the infernal machine may have been mailed to Mrs. Walker?" Commissioner Dougherty was asked.

Bomb Not Sent Through the Mails.

"I had the Post Office authorities make a thorough investigation along that line," the Commissioner replied, "and as a result of their investigation I do not think the bomb was sent through the mails.

"The investigation was made under the direction of the Chief Post Office Inspector, who had all carriers questioned and special delivery and registry records searched. I am informed that the package was not delivered in any of these ways."

"How about the typewritten address? Has that furnished any clue?"

"Not as yet, although typewriting is generally as good, if not better evidence than penmanship. We had samples made of the writing of every machine in the United States Motor Company's establishment to-day, and I had an authority on typewriting to come up here and compare them with the address that was on the box containing the bomb. He reported that the address had not been written on any machine in the offices of the company by which the prisoner Dickinson is employed."

One other matter the Commissioner was asked to clear up was a report that on the afternoon of the murder Mrs. Walker had gone to a nearby cigar store, where she talked on the telephone with some person. In the course of that conversation it was said that she had been overheard to say that she was afraid of a foreigner.

Dougherty said this was all news to him. Mrs. Walker had a telephone in her own apartment, and there was no necessity of her going to a public telephone to express her fears.

Edna Lamarre, the young woman who lived with Mrs. Walker, and who is in the House of Detention, has, according to Commissioner Dougherty, talked very little so far. He did not then know that late yesterday afternoon the young woman had been to Coroner Feinberg's office on Lafayette Street, the object of her going to the office being to permit a woman reporter to interview her. She is reported to have said that she was first taken to Mrs. Walker's by a taxicab driver.

Lieut. Bresnan, one of the detectives at work on the case, said afterward that Dickinson had mentioned the name of the same chauffeur to him and that the police were hoping to get some information out of the man.

Dickinson's Examination Adjourned.

Dickinson was arraigned before Coroner Feinberg yesterday morning. He was cool and collected and did not appear to be at all uneasy as to the outcome of the predicament in which he finds himself.

Thomas M. Dickinson, father of the prisoner, came to New York yesterday morning from his country home up State and was with his son during the brief hearing before Coroner Feinberg. When he was taken to the Coroner's office Dickinson asked and was given permission to call up Mr. Edwards, the chief engineer of the United States Motor Company. Mr. Edwards was not at his office or at his home and the prisoner talked with Mrs. Edwards.

"You can be assured," he said to Mrs. Edwards, "that I am entirely innocent of this crime. I was unfortunate enough to be there when it happened, and that is absolutely all I know about it. My father is with me now, and I want you and Mr. Edwards to know that everything will come out all right, because I am innocent."

Mr. Dickinson, the father of the prisoner, asked for an adjournment of the hearing until Wednesday morning, so that he could get counsel for his son, and the request was granted.

Speaking of his son, Mr. Dickinson said that his boy had worked for various railroads in different parts of the country. He said that he was in New York when his son was ill at Mrs. Walker's apartment, and that at that time he considered her a good woman, who was very kind to his boy. The father said he was not a man of large means, but that whatever he had would be used, if necessary, to clear his son's name.

It was given out at Headquarters yesterday afternoon that a letter written by Dickinson to Mrs. Walker last Friday had been found in the apartment that was occupied by Mrs. Walker. The answer to the latter was also found.

Dickinson's Plea to Mrs. Walker.

In the letter the police say that Dickinson begged Mrs. Walker "to take me back," adding among other things, "Give me another chance. I know you say that I am a bum and that I have no money, but, honest, I will work for you and always love you."

To this letter the police say they found the answer in possession of Dickinson. It was but a line, and read:

"If you know what is good for you, you will stay away from my flat. G. W."

When he received the answer to his letter Dickinson, according to the police, went out and made a night of it. Where he went or what he did they did not say.

Detective Breasnan said last night that in a conversation that he had with Dickinson yesterday the prisoner said that a chauffeur named Philip Snyder knew Mrs. Walker well and might be able to give them the names of some of the dead woman's friends. The police had not located Snyder at midnight last night.

A woman, whose first name is known to be Madge, and whose surname is either Hoober or Hooper, is being sought in Boston. "Madge" is believed to be an intimate friend of the victim of the tragedy. The police think that she may be able to tell the name of a mysterious person who once made threats against Mrs. Walker.

Among Mrs. Walker's effects were found several letters signed "Madge" and post marked Boston. They indicate that "Madge" once lived with Mrs. Walker.

So far as the Boston police have been able to ascertain, a Madge Hooper has lived in the South End section of that city off and on for the last three years, occupying in this interval apartments on Appleton, Chandler, Isabella, and West Canton Streets, and also on Warren Avenue.

This Madge Hooper, who stated that she was a native of New York, was understood to be an actress, and told the friends she made in Boston that she had been a show girl in many of the popular successes of recent years.

SUES AS DAUGHTER OF MRS. CAMMANN

Greenwich Chauffeur's Wife Says She's the Daughter of H. L. Cammann's Dead Wife.

FRIEND'S CHILD, LAWYER SAYS

Provided for in Infancy by Mrs. Cammann to Protect Another Woman's Name—Parents Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Feb. 5.—Rumor which had it for a month past that Mrs. Frank McGuinness, wife of a Greenwich chauffeur, was to lay claim to a daughter's part of the estate of Mrs. Henry L. Cammann of New York, who died in January, became a fact to-day when Mrs. McGuinness filed an appeal and a bond in the Greenwich Probate Court asserting that the "complainant is the daughter and natural heir" of Mrs. Cammann, and "is aggrieved by the order" of Judge Jeremiah Tierney, which allowed the probating of the will which gave the entire estate inventoried at $287,187 to Mr. Cammann.

The appeal has naturally caused a sensation inasmuch as Mrs. Cammann was supposed to be childless and Mrs. McGuinness was supposed to be a foundling without known parentage hereabouts.

Mrs. Cammann was the daughter of the late William Churchill, prominent in New York half a century ago. She was the first woman to take up modern farming in Greenwich, where she ran Northrook Farm, now the estate of J. H. Flagler, as a dairy farm. She married Mr. Cammann, a wealthy New York business man, on June 8, 1898, and no children were born. The Cammann residence on the spot where Gen. Israel Putnam started to ride down the stone steps in Revolutionary days, is one of the show places of Greenwich. This property as well as an island and a shore front opposite Commodore E. C. Benedict's estate, was all in Mrs. Cammann's name.

During her lifetime Mrs. Cammann was very prominent in the D. A. R. and equal suffrage work, and was connected with the Maples Corporation, where she and her husband made their home of late years. She died after being confined to her apartments for several weeks.

Mrs. McGuinness, as far as Greenwich people know generally, was cared for when an infant by a Mrs. Studwel, who received pay for her services. The child went by the name of Anita Smith. She married when young, and her husband committed suicide. It is understood that while she was in straitened circumstances as a widow with infant children some one created suspicion in her mind that she was related to Mrs. Cammann. It is generally understood that she wrote to Mrs. Cammann, asking for information as to the truth of the report and seeking aid. Last year she married Frank McGuinness, an ex-soldier, now a chauffeur out of work.

William P. Mulville, a young attorney, was appealed to by the woman upon the death of Mrs. Cammann, and it is understood that he consulted the Stamford law firm of Kenealy & Keating. They have spent a month investigating her statements. On the other hand, it is said that the attorneys for Mr. Cammann, having knowledge of a possible contest, have obtained affidavits to substantiate their claim that Mrs. McGuinness has no claim to the estate, and have undoubted evidence as to her parentage and that her father and mother are now dead.

It is said that her board when she was a child was paid for by Mrs. Cammann, who in this way kept a girl friend from being disgraced.

Mr. Cammann is at present in the South, and his attorney, Judge George G. McNall, said to-day that there would not be any compromise; that the appeal had no foundation; that he had abundant evidence to disprove all assertions made by Mrs. McGuinness, and that Mr. Cammann would spend his last cent to protect his dead wife's name.

Mrs. Cammann's sister, Mrs. George W. Hubbell, is living in New York this Winter, and a nephew, Roland R. Riggs, lives at 12 West Forty-fourth Street.

LONDON SINGS FOR ITS RETURNING KING

"Home, Sweet Home," at Buckingham Palace Gate, and George and Queen Bow Thanks.

KING SALUTES OUR FLAG

Stands Up in His Carriage When He Sees the Stars and Stripes Outside the Embassy in London.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 6.—"Home, Sweet Home," sang the crowd outside Buckingham Palace yesterday, and in response the King and Queen appeared on a balcony and bowed their acknowledgment.

I am informed on excellent authority that their Majesties were deeply touched by the warmth of their reception, and certainly they had reason to be.

Despite the cold, intense for London, crowds lined the streets of the royal route thickly and the cheering was hearty and enthusiastic, showing a very marked difference from the somewhat perfunctory applause which accompanied the royal progress at the time of the coronation.

American visitors who were in London for the coronation noted that the Duke of Connaught was a greater popular favorite than the King. Yesterday King George's welcome from the crowd left nothing to be desired.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—King George and Queen Mary have returned to England after the most memorable journey ever undertaken together by a King and Queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

After an absence of three months, during which they had been crowned Emperor and Empress of India and had received the homage of many of their princely vassals in the vast Eastern empire, they were welcomed back to London in the most hearty manner.

Their present stay in the British Isles will be only a short one, as they are due to pay a round of State visits to European courts this Spring and Summer.

After breakfasting on board the Medina with Queen Mother Alexander, the Prince of Wales, and the other royal children, their Majesties landed and were saluted by the guns of the forts around Portsmouth. On the quay were drawn up guards of honor of bluejackets and soldiers, who presented arms while a military band struck up the strains of the National anthem.

The King inspected the guard of honor and then boarded a special train, in which he, with the Queen and the royal children, traveled to London through country covered thickly with snow. All the stations along the route were docked with flags.

A large assemblage of notables was waiting at Victoria Station when the train pulled in soon after midday. An archway bearing the words "Welcome Home" in gold lettering on a blue ground was erected across the platform where their Majesties alighted.

Premier Asquith, with other members of the Cabinet, were the first to greet the King and Queen. Then came a group of members of the Diplomatic Corps and prominent officers of the army and navy in brilliant uniforms. The Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London and the Mayors of the principal cities of the British Isles, all wearing their regalia, were also present to welcome their Majesties.

When the greetings were over a procession of five royal carriages was formed. The King and Queen, with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, occupied the first carriage, which was drawn by four horses. With its escort of Life Guards in their brilliant uniforms, shining breastplates and helmets, and floating plumes the procession proceded to Buckingham Palace, passing through Victoria Street to Parliament Square and then along Whitehall and the Mall. The streets were thronged with cheering enthusiasts.

An interesting little incident happened in Victoria Street. As the King's carriage passed the American Embassy King George stood up in the carriage, turned toward the embassy, and saluted the Stars and Stripes flying over the entrance. His Majesty's action drew an additional cheer from the crowd gathered in the vicinity.

The enthusiasm of the crowds reached its climax at Buckingham Palace. After their Majesties had entered it the thousands of persons who had assembled around the railings sang successively "God Save the King," "Auld Lang Syne," "Home, Sweet Home," and "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Their Majesties responded to this demonstration by appearing on the balcony of the first floor, and were greeted with salvo after salvo of cheering.

Religious services of thanksgiving for the safe return of the King and Queen from the first visit ever paid by reigning sovereigns of Great Britain and Ireland to their Indian possessions were held this afternoon in Westminster Abbey and the churches throughout the British Isles.

TO PAY SHUSTER'S AIDS.

Some to Get 3 Years' and Others 18 Months' Pay from Persia.

TEHERAN, Feb. 5.—Arrangements have been made for the payment of the Americans attached to the Persian Treasury Department, who claimed that their contracts had been violated.

Ex-Treasurer General Shuster's three principal assistants, Messrs. Cairns, McCaskey, and Dickey, will receive three years' salary and their traveling expenses. The others will receive eighteen months' salary and traveling expenses.

All the Americans will leave Teheran shortly, with the exception of two who have joined the Swedish gendarmerie.

WE PAY GERMANY $28.10

And Create Good Impression by This Evidence of National Honesty.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The United States has just made to the Kaiser's Government a present of $28.10 in the shape of a rebate on a coal deal. The incident, despite its trivial character, has given the liveliest satisfaction in Berlin, first, because it is entirely unprecedented, and secondly, because it shows the broad-gauge business methods in vogue in the United States Navy.

The German gunboat Conger, attached to Germany's Australian station, called at the island of Guam in August, 1911, for coal. The Condor paid for a certain quantity, but found that the American officials had given such good measure that the bunkers were full before she could take it all on. The Condor therefor steamed away, leaving the surplus coal on the dock.

A few weeks ago the new American Naval Attaché in Berlin, Capt. Niblack, received orders from Washington to pay to the German Admiralty 118 marks, due to the Kaiser's Government for overpayment on the Guam coal. The carrying out of the rebate order was Capt. Niblack's first official act in Berlin, and procured him promptly the good graces of the Admiralty.

TO OPEN BERLIN EMBASSY.

Ambassador Leishman to Entertain Americans on Lincoln's Birthday.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Ambassador and Mrs. Leishman announced to-day that the new embassy will be thrown open for the first time to Americans in Berlin on the afternoon of Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12.

It was the Ambassador's intention to give a Washington's Birthday reception at the embassy, but as it would have interfered with the annual colony dinner ball the same evening, it was decided to entertain on Lincoln's Birthday instead.

Mrs. Leishman has chosen Tuesday as her regular day at home for the Diplomatic Corps.

Englishmen Denounce Sentence on a Well-Known London Lawyer.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Indignation in this country is rapidly growing at the sentence imposed upon Bertrand Stewart, a prominent London lawyer, who at Leipsic on Saturday was found guilty of espionage and sentenced to confinement in a fortress for three and a half years.

Mr. Stewart's trial lasted five days, and when the verdict was announced he declared vehemently that he was innocent and that he wanted everybody in England to know it.

It is suggested that a movement be organized for the boycott by British tourists of all German holiday resorts as a protest against what is almost universally characterized by the newspapers as "a judicial scandal" and "a gross miscarriage of justice."

The feeling against the Germans, which of latt had been subsiding, has become more embittered than ever.

SEARCHING FOR HELIODORUS.

Russian Priest Still in Hiding—Disgraced Bishop Leaves Saratoff.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 5.—The recalcitrant Bishop Hermogenes, who, on Jan. 30 was dismissed from the Saratoff Diocese, and exiled by order of the Emperor and the Holy Synod, left there early this morning for the Zhirovitsky Monastery, his place of banishment. He is making the journey in a drawing room car, and is escorted by several high police officials.

The reactionary priest Heliodorus, abbot of Tsaritsyn, whose banishment to a remote monastery in the Government of Vladimir, for championing the cause of Bishop Hermogenes, was also ordered, is still in hiding, and an active search for him is being carried out by detectives.

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 6.—The bombardment of Hodeida, on the Red Sea, was begun by the Italian fleet yesterday.

According to a news agency dispatch from Constantinople part of the Turkish port has been destroyed.

Hodeida is one of the most important ports on the Red Sea. It is in Yemen, Arabia, about 100 miles northwest of Mocha. In its bazaars are sold various products of Arabia and silk, cloth, and grain from India. Its chief importance, however, is as the centre of the Arabian coffee trade.

The port is also the principal landing place for African pilgrims to Mecca. Its roadstead is somewhat obstructed by coral reefs.

The population of Hodeida is about 25,000.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 5.—The converted yacht Yankton of the United States Navy, with Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, commander of the Third Division of the Atlantic Fleet, on board, arrived here this morning. The Admiral came for the purpose of interviewing the Governor on the subject of the carrying out of torpedo practice by the Atlantic Fleet in the waters along the south coast of this island.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 5.—All the members of the crew of the British schooner Hibernia have been picked up at sea by the British steamer Denis, which left Galveston on Jan. 17 for this port, and has reported by wireless. The Hibernia was on the way from Hantsport, N. S., to Barbados, and was abandoned on Jan. 27. The crew say she was then breaking up.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 5.—It is announced that the sittings of the Special Government Commission, which has been intrusted with the task of studying Russo-American trade relations, will soon begin. The commission is under the Presidency of M. Timashoff, Minister of Commerce and Director of the State Bank.

LONDON IS AMAZED BY 'TURKEY TROT'

The Daily News Cannot Understand Why It Should Be Allowed in Ballrooms.

VERY UGLY, SAYS TIMES

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 6.—The "turkey trot" made its appearance in London last night at the Hippodrome, being danced by two performers, who were said to have removed the objectionable features prohibited by the Bureau of Licenses in New York. The Times says:

"To remove objectionable features of one kind is not always to render a thing free from objection, and we have one very serious objection to urge against the 'turkey trot.' It is abominably ugly.

"Nothing more ungraceful could be imagined than the 'bunny hug' and the 'grizzly bear,' which are attitudes adopted in its performance."

The Daily News says:

"We have seen something of the same kind danced in London before last night. Of course all these dances are sensual in their aim. There is no getting away from that fact on the plea of dancing as an art, and so forth. But this does not apply to their effect on the audiences that witness them, but on the dancers themselves when they are not professionals.

"No reputable hostess would allow such a dance at an ordinary ball, and the wonder to the English mind is that there should have been any question of dancing the 'turkey trot' in American ballrooms."

DAMAGES BY INSTALLMENTS.

Agreement Made by Mrs. Morgan's Gardener with Governess He Jilted.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—"Agreement for disengagement" is the basis of an action brought by Caroline Witt, a governess, against Arthur Allen, described as a gardener in the employ of Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan at Aldenham.

The pair were formerly engaged to marry, but Allen broke the match, his fiancée consenting on the condition that he pay her £100 by installments.

The action was brought to recover one of the installments that was overdue.

DUAL CHINA GOVERNMENT.

Emperor as Religious Head and Actual Ruler Elected by the People.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—A dual government for China is forecasted in the peace negotiations now proceeding at Peking and Nanking, according to State Department advices. The new order, it is expected, will provide for a spiritual and a temporal ruler, the Emperor to be recognized as the religious head of the empire, while the actual executive head will be elected by the people.

Admiral Murdock, in command of the United States naval force in Chinese waters, reports that this is the situation in Nanking.

Other but unofficial reports do not bear out his contention. Yuan Shi-Kai is said to have made the proposal in an effort to retain some tangible shreds of power for the Manchu Dynasty, and the reports add that the Republicans will refuse to accept the plan, even to the extent of resuming the disastrous civil war.

A significant gain for the Republican cause is indicated in the report that Chang-Hsun, the Tartar General at Nanking, who so stubbornly resisted the advance of the revolutionists, has announced his adhesion to the revolutionary cause.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Negotiations between the powers in reference to a joint agreement on the Chinese situation are proceeding on the initiative of the United States Government.

It is believed that the Governments are endeavoring to reach a general agreement pledging themselves to take no steps in China unless all act together.

PEKING, Feb. 5.—An invading force of revolutionaries, which landed to-day at the mouth of the Yalu River, in Manchuria, encountered and defeated an army of imperialist troops, which had come from Mukden. Eighty imperialists and twenty revolutionaries were killed in the battle.

The local Chinese newspapers in their articles are preparing the people for the advent of a republican form of government.

NANKING, Feb. 5.—Wu Ting-Fang, the Republican Minister of Justice; Tang Shao-Yi, the representative of Premier Yuan Shi-Kai, and Wang Chung-Wei, the Republican Foreign Minister, had a long conference to-day with President Sun Yat-Sen on the final terms suggested by the Manchus. It is believed that they have decided upon some modifications, namely, that the Emperor shall retain his title during his lifetime, but that it shall not be hereditary; that he shall have no political authority, and that he shall be permitted to reside in the palace at Peking, with an annual pension of 4,000,000 taels (about $2,500,000.

A dispatch from the Northern Generals embodies a request to the Nanking Republicans to grant the most liberal terms to the court in view of the abdication in order to insure peace and save millions.

TELLS ULSTERMEN TO BEHAVE

Unionist Council Asks Them Not to Interfere with Home Rule Meeting.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who will go to Belfast on Wednesday for Thursday's home rule meeting, will be accompanied by his wife and his mother, Mrs. George Cornwallis West, formerly Lady Randolph Churchill.

The latest reports indicate a decided calming down of Orange feeling, and predictions are now made that Thursday's meeting will pass without untoward incidents.

BELFAST, Feb. 5.—The Ulster Unionist Council has issued a manifesto urging all Unionists to abstain from interference with the meeting at which Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, is scheduled to speak on Thursday on the home rule question.

All loyal Unionists are requested to do everything in their power to prevent any act which might reflect on the Unionist cause.

The Grand Orange Lodge also adopted a resolution to-day against interference in any way with Mr. Churchill.

The self-denying resolutions passed by the Unionists and Orangemen give promise of a peaceful meeting on Feb. 8. The Unionists profess to be satisfied with having forced Mr. Churchill to speak in a Nationalist quarter and in a "ring fenced by bayonets."

The Liberal Association to-night proposed to the Unionist Council that both should cancel their engagements at Ulster Hall for Feb. 7 and 8. A decision on this matter will be taken to-morrow.

MILAN SEES "MERRY WIVES."

Critics Praise Revival of Nicolai's Opera.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

MILAN, Tuesday, Feb. 6.—The German composer Nicolai's pretty three-act opera, written sixty-three years ago, based upon Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor," was revived with great success at La Scala Opera House here last night, after it had been consigned to oblivion for a period of fifteen years. The critics believe the work is destined to become a general favorite.

REVOLT BEYOND CONTROL.

Acting Governor of Mexican State Asks That Orozco Be Made Dictator.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 5.—Gen. Pascual Orozco will be appointed Military Dictator of the State of Chihuahua if the recommendation of the retiring Acting Governor, Aureliano Gonzales, is heeded by the Federal authorities. It was stated in a telegram from Chihuahua to a high official in the capital that the State Government felt itself powerless to control the situation, and that the acting Chief Executive, in tendering his resignation yesterday, offered the suggestion as a possible remedy.

The dispatch added that there had been no disorders in the city since the battle last Friday, and that there was no fear felt for the American residents, who are generally well liked by the native population.

President Madero has not announced his plans. He has shown, however, that he has full confidence in the loyalty of Orozco, but it is known that Minister Calero of the Department of Foreign Relations does not share the President's confidence.

The Japanese Minister has been asked for protection by his countrymen in Chihuahua, who declare their lives are in danger and that many Japanese stores were looted during the recent disorders.

Reports from Durango indicate a feeling of insecurity among the people of that city. There has been organized disturbance, but brigandage is said to be increasing in the neighborhood.

The anniversary of the adoption of the Mexican Constitution was celebrated here to-day with a parade and speechmaking at the Juarez Monument. President Madero attended. His reception by the crowds in the streets and about the monument was apathetic.

A special dispatch received by the Heraldo from Ciudad Camargo, eighty miles south of Chihuahua, says that part of the small garrison stationed there rebelled yesterday. Gov. Gonzales has gone to confer to-day with them.

Telegraphic communication was restored to-day with Cuernavaca. A dispatch just received says that the first train from the capital arrived at Cuernavaca yesterday, bringing supplies and newspapers. The newspapers are selling at half a peso (about 25 cents) each.

Although hundreds of Zapatistas are visible on the hills surrounding Cuernavaca, the town is thought safe, on account of its strong garrison, which comprises considerable artillery.

MORE TOWNS ARE IN REVOLT.

Rebels Seize Two Points in Chihuahua—Fighting in a Third Town.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 5.—More uprisings in the State of Chihuahua are reported here to-day.

Reports received over railroad lines state that Casas Grandes and Pearson, Chihuahua, are in the hands of rebels declaring themselves for Emelio Vasquez Gomez. At Pearson the rebels disarmed the police Sunday and took the town. Fighting is reported at San Andreas also.

Street car traffic between El Paso and Juarez was resumed this morning, and refugees from the disturbed town are returning to their homes. A dozen or more stragglers from the troop train which Gen. Orozco took to Chihuahua yesterday are coming into Juarez. The men, is is said, slipped away from the train whenever stops were made.

WASHINGTON TO BE CAUTIOUS.

Doubts Madero's Ability to Meet Situation, but Awaits Events.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The War and Navy Departments were beset to-day with queries in regard to a possible demonstration of force along the borders of Mexico and at Pacific and Atlantic ports of the Republic. To all inquiries it was stated that no dispatches had been received of a character to show that the disorder in Mexico was spreading.

It is believed that there has been pressure from business interests to induce the Government to intervene to safeguard American capitalists who are operating ranches, mines and factories there under a system of peonage, which constantly provokes resistance.

The feeling that President Madero is not strong enough to cope with any organized uprising is having its influence on the situation, but thus far the Administration regards the condition of affairs in Mexico as promising peace within a short time.

The principal beneficiaries are the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the American Sunday School Union of Philadelphia, and the Moody Schools at Northfield, $10,000 each; the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago and the Utica (Miss.) Normal and Industrial Institute, $5,000 each.

MAY MAKE GERMAN NAVY THE FINEST

Internal Combustion Engine for Warships Reported to be Nearly Completed.

GIVES IMMENSE ADVANTAGES

Latest Type of Dreadnought Would Be Obsolete Compared with a Vessel Equipped with This Engine.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The British Admiralty has received news from a reliable source that a type of internal combustion engine has been brought well toward completion by German engineer experts, which, if it fulfills the expectations of its designers, should give the German Navy an immense advantage in its race for supremacy against the British, and against all the other navies of the world.

A prominent engineer who has learned of the main details of this engine—which its designers have endeavored to keep secret—said to The Associated Press:

"I can conceive that a vessel may be designed, using these engines, which would make the latest Dreadnought obsolete, and it would look as if the revolution were imminent. For such a vessel the radius of steaming might be multiplied by three or four, or the thickness of armor it could carry greatly increased, and the vulnerability much diminished."

In one of the principal works in Germany a marine plant has been completed, after exhaustive studies and expensive experiments by a most able and confidential staff, which can be destined only for the use of the navy. It is of 18,000 horse power, consisting of three engines of 6,000 horse power each; one to each propeller. Each engine has three cylinders, producing 2,000 horse power each, the cylinders being double acting, the explosion occurring on both sides of the pistons.

The incorporation of such an installation in a war vessel means the abolition of boilers and smokestacks, also the saving of the space occupied by bunkers, as the engines would require less than half a pound per horse power an hour, which would mean 100 tons of oil per twenty-four hours for full power, full speed. Any kind of crude or refined petroleum may be used.

The original Deisel engine was invented some years ago and the basic patents have expired, but during the past three or four years a great revolution has been in progress in the perfecting of the reliability, performance of duty, and economy of the type. The principal problems have been to obtain perfect combustion, to enlarge the cylinder units, and to solve the problem of having the explosion transpire on both sides of the piston.

Germany has led in the study and evolution of this engine, and is far in advance of other countries. The internal details of such an engine are easily kept secret, and the perfection of a successful counter-design by any other nation would necessarily require a long period of experiments.

It appears to the scientific men who know of this work by the German engineers that the German Navy may have a profound advantage over its rivals in this engine, which apparently is nearly ready for use. No other navy, it is believed, has advanced nearly so far in work upon internal combustion engines.

"The eyes of the world are on the heavy oil engine," said a prominent American naval officer last night. "The changing from steam to oil is, however, a thing that will not come in a day by any means. There are too many dangers and too many drawbacks to take chances with a new type of engine until its value is absolutely proved.

"When the turbine was invented the navy took up the question of its availability for use in actual service, and found that it failed in many instances. There was trouble with the engine when least expected. It stopped and sometimes ceased to develop its rated power. Such a feature eliminates it from use in the navy until a time when it is better devised to do its work. The danger of a stalled engine in actual warfare is patent. No chances can be taken. The United States Government is not making experiments with the oil engine, but watching what is being done by other countries.

"If any one has invented an engine that will develop one horse power per hour on half a pound of oil fuel, then steam has been displaced. But we must not go too fast. There are many, many things to be considered. There is reliability. A long test and a long time, perhaps, will ensue before this or any other country takes such a radical step."

It was pointed out to a NEW YORK TIMES reporter that oil is the fuel of the future. The best form of engine for the navy is now considered the reciprocating engine driven by steam. An oil-driven reciprocating engine, somewhat similar to the automobile engine of the present day, is looked to as the solution of the problem. The oil to be used in this engine will be heavy or crude oil. The abolition of boilers and smokestacks will tend both to enlarge the inside capacity of the war vessel and to diminish the danger of detection from smoke at sea. It is along this line that the engineers are planning to make any changes that will come. But it is not believed that any 18,000 horse power engine now invented can be as reliable as one of equal horse power driven by steam.

The Deisel motor, which is an internal combustion motor largely used in Germany, has been put to small work. Recently it was tried upon small vessels. Its use upon war vessels is still a matter of conjecture, so far as could be determined by inquiry last night.

BAVARIAN SOCIALIST GAINS.

Clerical Majority in Diet Reduced—Its Leader Defeated.

MUNICH, Feb. 5.—The Diet elections, which have attracted unusual interest, resulted to-day in considerable losses to the Clericals and Conservatives and gains for the Liberals and Socialists.

A novelty of the campaign was the alliance of the Liberals and Socialists with the peasant organizations in an effort to overcome the huge Clerical majority, which works with a small Conservative and Agrarian Party coalition. They succeeded in reducing the Clerical strength by 11 and the Conservative strength by 10. The Liberals had a net gain of 11; the Socialists 9, and the Peasants, 1.

The new House is made up as follows: Clericals, 87; Conservatives, 7; Liberals, 35; Socialists, 30; Peasant League, 4.

At Bamberg the Liberal candidate defeated Dr. Schaedler, the Clerical leader.

AUSTRO-RUSSIAN ACCORD.

Indications that the Long-Existing Quarrel is About to be Ended.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 6.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says:

"Since the illness of Foreign Minister von Aehrenthal, who obtained a six months' leave of absence from the Emperor, that foreign policy which strives after a renewal of good relations with Russia, and, according to one much-credited version, even desires an entente with that country, has again come to the front.

"During the visit of the Austrian heir presumptive, Archduke Franz Ferdinand, to Berlin, discussions took place between him and the Kaiser Wilhelm as to the procedure to be adopted toward paving the way to friendly Austro-Russian relations.

"A forecast of this change may be seen in the visit which the Grand Duke Andreas of Russia will pay to-morrow to the Emperor Francis Joseph. No member of the Russian Court has paid such a visit for five years, and even at the festivals in honor of the Emperor's sixty years' jubilee Russia remained unrepresented. In 1910, on the occasion of the Czar's journey to Racconigi, he deliberately made a great detour in order to avoid traveling through Austrian territory."

CUBA HALTS ON CLAIMS.

Secretary Sanguilly Sends Cautious Note to European Nations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—Secretary Sanguilly, acting according to the suggestion of the Washington Government, it is understood, has replied to the three European countries, which are pressing their claims jointly, that President Gomez will bring the matter of the claims before Congress, which will probably appoint a committee to sift them and authorize the Executive to recognize them, refuse them, entertain them, or refer them to The Hague Tribunal.

The Senate and Chamber of Deputies this afternoon decided in executive session to proceed to impose a discriminating duty of 30 per cent. on merchandise from the countries now importing less of Cuban products than they supply in return. Some of the Deputies made hot speeches, resenting the French claims. They expressed the wish that French products might be excluded altogether.

Señors Zaldo and Garcia Velez, ex-Secretaries of Foreign Affairs, have sent communications to the newspapers. Each says he examined the claims of the three European countries years ago and refused to recognize them, advising the legations pressing them that they were unjust and would never be paid by Cuba.

The strike in the Manzanillo sugar district is spreading. The Cuban gunboat Yara has landed marines at Niquero to protect the manager of an American estate. Secretary Machado is hurrying there to-night. The rurales in the vicinity have been reinforced.

MONEY GIFTS FOR COLUMBIA.

Mrs. Russell Sage Among Those Announced as Recent Benefactors.

At a meeting of the Trustees of Columbia University yesterday the President reported the organization, on Jan. 15, of the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism, and the action taken at that time in the formulation of plans for the opening of the school in September next.

The President also reported a new step in the relations between Columbia University and other institutions, through which Dr. Leighton B. Morse of the Department of Physics will teach during the second half of the present academic year at Coe College, Iowa, in exchange for Prof. Weld, head of the Department of Physics at Coe College, who will take Dr. Morse's place at Columbia. Several unusually important gifts were announced, including:

Thirty thousand dollars from William H. Nichols (Doctor of Science, 1904,) to meet the cost of installing and equipping laboratories for instruction and research in general chemistry in Havemeyer Hall.

Twenty-five thousand dollars from Mrs. Russell Sage to establish the E. G. Janeway Library Endowment Fund at the Medical School.

Ten thousand dollars from F. Augustus Schermerhorn of the Class of 1868 to be expended under the direction of the President in meeting current needs of the university.

Two hundred and fifty dollars from William G. Low of the Class of 1865 for the purchase of books on maritime and international law.

Fifteen thousand dollars from W. Bayard Cutting, class of '69, to establish the William Bayard Cutting, Jr., Fellowship in International Law.

Other gifts for various special purposes, amouting to $1,041, were also reported.

Dr. Theodore C. Janeway, Bard Professor of the Practice of Medicine, presented to the Trustees the valuable medical library bequeathed to him by his father, Dr. Edward G. Janeway, to be the departmental library of the department of the practice of medicine. The library consists of about 1,500 bound volumes, including complete sets of many of the most important clinical and pathological journals, and about 2,500 unbound monographs, journals, and pamphlets.

The following appointments were announced: F. F. Nickel, Associate in Mechanical Engineering; Prevost Hubbard, Lecturer in Engineering Chemistry; Albert M. Cohn-McMaster, Lecturer in Romance Languages and Literatures, and Frank C. Gephart, Associate in Clinical Pathology.

NO SUGAR AGREEMENT.

Germany Still Opposes Desired Increase in Russian Exports.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 5.—Expectations that a settlement would be reached on the question of the Russian export of sugar at to-day's meeting of the International Sugar Conference were not fulfilled. Germany refused to allow Russia's increase in export to go beyond 150,000 tons. Various compromises were proposed and rejected. Finally the conference adjourned until Wednesday, when a last attempt will be made to arrange matters.

In the event of failure to reach an agreement the advisability of summoning another conference before September, 1913, when the convention expires, will be considered.

GERMANY NOW ASKS FOR A PEACE TREATY

Her Ambassador So Advises Knox, Congressman Bartholdt Dr. Ernst Richards.

BUT WON'T PRESS THE ISSUE

Until the Senate Lays Aside Its Scruples — Vote Fixed for March 5.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Dr. Richard Bartholdt, member of Congress from the Tench Missouri District, has written a letter on German arbitration to Dr. Ernst Richard of Columbia University, President of the German-American Peace Society, that promises to figure prominently in the Senate debate over the pending arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France.

Here is a translation of the letter:

Congressman Bartholdt's Letter.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2, 1912.

Dr. Ernst Richard, President German-American Peace Society:

My Dear Doctor:

In congratulating you most heartily on the trip you have undertaken in the interest of the arbitration treaties, I use this occasion to inform you how the matter stands in regard to the arbitration treaty with Germany. I do this because the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, has given me very important and authentic information. He informed me that he has officially informed the Secretary of State of Germany's readiness to enter into the arbitration policy, and that he has added that the German Empire is willing to go much further than either England or France, and ready to let all questions without any distinction be settled by arbitration. Inasmuch as he did not demand any reserve in the matter, I do not hesitate to give this important information, which must make the heart of every German-American beat quicker, to you, for our main object in regard to foreign politics is, after all, to maintain amicable relations with our old fatherland, and to avoid every conflict that might place us German-Americans before a conflict between duty and love.

What the Ambassador Told Him.

This statement of the position of the German Empire takes the wind completely out of the sails of the Irish agitators who love to catch harmless Germans in the interest of their own narrow-minded and contemptible racial hatred. There is, of course, no reason why Germans should not make common cause with the Irish in other questions. No element of our people should be happier over this policy of arbitration than the Germans, and Germany will immediately be attended to, after the treaties with England and France have been ratified. The Ambassador told me that it was no use to go ahead now, as long as we do not know whether the Senate will drop its stupid constitutional scruples or not.

I authorize you to show this letter to the leaders among the German-Americans whom you may meet on your trip, and to read it before any public meetings. With the greetings of a fellow-countryman, yours sincerely.

RICHARD BARTHOLDT.

Dr. Bartholdt is one of the most widely known advocates of peace in Congress. For years he has spoken and voted against battleship appropriations. He was elected President of the Inter-Parliamentary Union in 1904, and since then has been annually elected President of the arbitration group in Congress, an organization he founded in 1904.

When asked about his German arbitration letter to-night, Dr. Bartholdt said:

Why He Wrote the Letter.

"Dr. Ernst Richard, a professor in Columbia University, New York, undertook to rally the Germans in this country in favor of President Taft's arbitration policy.

"He advised me that the Germans would be much more ready to support this policy if assurances could be given by the Administration that Germany would be next in line to join in the arbitration agreements. Whereupon I wrote him a letter advising him that the German Ambassador to the United States had told me that he, the Ambassador, had officially many was willing to negotiate an arbitration treaty, the same as England and France had done, as soon as the Senate had approved the treaties; in fact, Germany was willing to go further and would arbitrate all questions without exception.

"That letter which I wrote to Dr. Richard was sent broadcast over the country. In that letter appears the phrase 'as soon as the Senate will lay aside its stupid scruples against the treaties' For fear that the word 'stupid' might be ascribed to the German Ambassador, I have written the Ambassador a letter to the effect that the word 'stupid' was my language and not his, though, as a matter of fact, I do not remember having used the adjective at all, and am inclined to believe it was interpolated in the German text of my letter. Several members of Congress have shown me copies of this letter, sent to them from The Gaelic-American of New York. I understand that Irish-Americans agitating against the treaty have been trying to use this letter as an argument against the ratification of the pending treaties."

Treaty Vote on March 5.

The snarl that prevented the Senate last Thursday from reaching an agreemen for voting on the general arbitration treaties was straightened out over Sunday, and to-day Senator Reyburn did not renew his objection. As a result a unanimous consent order was entered for a vote on the treaties and all amendments on the legislative day of March 5. The legislative day may be carried over one or two calendar days by recesses, but the vote will probably come not later than March 6.

It is generally conceded that the Lodge resolution of ratification will prevail. This resolution expressly reserves the Senate's constitutional rights of "advice and consent" to every case arising under the treaties, and most of the Senate lawyers hold that with the construction the treaties lose practically all their force as binding us to arbitration regardless of our personal interests in the question at issue. The Administration, however, maintains that what is expressly asserted in the Lodge resolution was implied before in the treaties themselves. At any rate, the resolution is accepted by the State Department and by the Foreign Offices of Great Britain and France.

WINTHROP WINS OVER GAYNOR'S CANDIDATE

Elected President of the Board of Education by a Vote of 24 to 20.

ADVICE TO THE TEACHERS

Chairman Stern Asks That They Bring Grievances to His Committee Before Getting a Lawyer.

By the close vote of 24 to 20, Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., won the election yesterday to the Presidency of the Board of Education over his sole competitor, Thomas W. Churchill, who was the candidate supported by Mayor Gaynor and those members of the board who advocate a radical change in the way public school affairs are conducted.

The keen interest taken in the contest is shown by the large attendance, there being only two of the forty-six members absent, when A. Emerson Palmer, Secretary of the board, called the meeting to order. The absentees were Morris Loeb and James E. Sullivan.

The result was greatly in doubt, and both sides were confident of success. The Winthrop leaders claimed 28 votes for their candidate, while the Churchill people seemed certain that he would get at least 24 votes, which was the number necessary to election.

On the nomination of Patrick F. McGowan, Robert L. Harrison was chosen President pro tem. Vice President John Greene nominated Mr. Winthrop for President. Mr. Greene said that his nominee had served the board and the public with intelligence and fidelity, had at all times been courteous and just to every one, was qualified to meet all the requirements of the position, was well fitted to carry on the important work of the department now that the conflict was ended between the women and men teachers over the equal-pay question. Abraham Stern seconded the nomination.

George J. Gillespie advanced Mr. Churchill's claims as a candidate, prefacing his speech with complimentary allusions to Mr. Winthrop, who, he said had shown himself a just and capable presiding officer. He said he believed he voiced the sentiment of every member in declaring that if Mr. Winthrop gave up the office he could do so with the respect and esteem of every one of the Commissioners.

He said that he had known Mr. Churchill intimately for twenty years and regarded him as well fitted to be President of the board. He was a product of the public schools, and was graduated from the City College in 1882. In the last thirty years he had been a student of the public school system, and for one-half of that time had been a teacher in the evening high schools. He had a firm grasp of public school affairs and the same sterling qualities that Mr. Winthrop possessed. But his special work as a teacher equipped him better than any member of the board for a unified department of education in this city, said Mr. Gillespie.

Mr. Churchill's nomination was seconded by Commissioner John R. Thompson, Frank D. Wilsey, Robert B. Thomas, and Henry P. Morrison. Then the balloting, which was secret, began. Both Mr. Winthrop and Mr. Churchill were present and voted. A member of the board remarked to a TIMES reporter that they probably voted for themselves, and said that this was proper as it was for principle and not for an individual that the contest was being waged.

Churchill a Good Loser.

When the vote was announced there was applause. There was more applause when Mr. Churchill promptly arose and moved that the vote be made unanimous. As Mr. Winthrop left his place in the rear of the room, and walked toward the chair, he passed Mr. Churchill. The latter stood up and cordially shook his hand, whereat there was more applause. Mr. Harrison announced that the motion to make the election unanimous was carried, but Commissioner John R. Thompson protested. He declared emphatically that he voted no. He said later that he did not care to explain his action.

Mr. Winthrop, who now enters on his seventh term as President, returned his thanks in a few words.

Mr. Churchill, when asked if he cared to make any statement, replied:

"I am a good loser. I have nothing to say except to wish that Mr. Winthrop's new term will be the most successful he has ever had."

Jeremiah T. Mahoney moved that the ballots be destroyed, and this was done.

Richard B. Aldcrofft, Jr., moved the renomination of John Greene as Vice President. The motion was seconded by Gen. George W. Wingate, Patrick F. McGowan, and Alrick H. Man. The last named asked that the Secretary cast one vote for Mr. Greene. Isidore M. Levy objected. He said it was a bad precedent. Thereupon President Winthrop ordered a ballot to be taken. Joseph Barondess declared this to be a waste of time, as no one had been named in opposition to Mr. Greene. Mr. Levy said that he thought highly of Mr. Greene, but insisted that casting the vote by the Secretary was a bad precedent. The result of the balloting caused laughter. It was: John Greene, 35; John R. Thompson, 5; Isidore M. Levy, 1, and "Blank," 1. Two members did not vote. Mr. Levy said that he was willing to make an affidavit that he had not voted for himself. Mr. Greene then made a brief speech of thanks.

Advice to the Teachers.

Abraham Stern, Chairman of the Committee on Elementary Schools, made a statement in regard to the teachers' pay. He said that any question that affected the teaching staff would receive the careful consideration of the committee, which, if necessary, would carry any matter to the Corporation Counsel and the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. As to the teachers who had not received increases under the equal pay law, because they were "disapproved" by the Board of Superintendents for fifty days of unexcused absence in the last five years, he advised them not to employ a lawyer but to trust to the justice of the committee, which would fairly consider every complaint and right every wrong.

Attendance on a dying mother and observance of a holdiday were not among the admitted excuses for absence, but the committee would not too strictly enforce the rigidly drawn rule of the Board of Superintendents. Every teacher would have an opportunity to present his or her case, and all reasonable excuses would be allowed. If the committee decided against the teacher it would then be time enough to resort to some other method to win the case.

Herman J. Metz said that he would like to have the marks of approval as well as the marks of disapproval looked into by the committee. He said that he knew of one case where a teacher who was absent 150 days, was approved. He said he would be heard from again on the same subject.

After the close of the meeting of the Board of Education, Mr. Winthrop was unanimously elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Normal College.

Y. W. C. A. STAGES ITS ANNUAL REPORT

Shows in One-Act Sketches What Its Agents Are Doing for Friendless Girls.

PROTECTS AND GUIDES THEM

Sall, a Fluffy White Poodle, Takes Part in One Skit and Wags Its Tail in Approval of All.

Sall was the heroine of a skit in the series of dramatic performances, with which the Young Woman's Christian Association illustrated its methods of work at the annual meeting in Assembly Hall in the Association Building, 7 East Fifteenth Street, yesterday.

The work that the association does for the girls of the city, and those passing through it was shown in sketches instead of the regular reports of officers. The girls themselves took part. It was an all-woman cast and Sall, a little fluffy white dog wearing a pink ribbon bow, appeared in the first skit.

Sall played her part to perfection. Afterward she was returned to her mistress, Miss Maude Mattison, a friend of the association, and was taken into the audience, where she watched the performance to the end with great enjoyment, applauding vigorously with her caudal appendage at the proper moments.

Miss Mitchell, Secretary of the Traveler's Aid Department, was away meeting some real young women travelers coming in on a steamer, the audience was told, while they played at her work to show how it was done. The stage in the hall became for the time being a steamer's deck and the acting Miss Mitchell met one of her charges there, welcomed her, and asked for her ticket and about her luggage.

"Oh, yes, I have my ticket" said the young woman traveler. "Won't you please take my dog while I look for it?"

Sall changed hands, wriggling ecstatically.

"Yes," continued the young woman. "I've come over here to be married, and you know I haven't seen him for two years. Baggage? Yes, I have my trousseau and all my wedding presents and my sewing machine and"——

Leaving her for a minute to look up her baggage, the Traveler's Aid woman hunted up another charge.

"I thought you weren't coming," said the Second Young Traveler, almost in tears. "You were so long."

"I can't find my second wedding cake," cried the First Young Traveler, rushing up excitedly.

"Oh, you will," said the Traveler's Aid Woman, reassuringly, and the Second Young Traveler continued, introducing a fellow-traveler, who was only imaginary on the stage:

"This is a friend I have met on the steamer, and he wants me to spend the night with his sister before I take the train for the West."

"Certainly not," said the T. A. W., decidedly. "The Second Young Traveler is very young and we have promised to see that she is put safely on the train, and we shall telegraph to her aunt that she is on the way and when to expect her."

That was the end of the Traveler's Aid drama.

There were scenes in the Membership Department, where a young working girl at the ribbon counter in one of the shops came in to join a club because she was lonesome and wanted to "know girls"; the valuable "near nurses," which the association turns out, gave an exhibition of their work; there were amusing scenes in the employment bureau; the girl who wants all the modern comforts and conveniences and a room in a smart neighborhood for $2 a week was shown in the Boarding Department, and the west side work was as interesting.

The nursing work of the association is excellent. Intelligent young women are given an eleven weeks' course of training under a trained nurse, with fifty-five lectures. This does not make the women trained nurses, but careful attendants for convalescents, elderly people or chronic cases.

Mrs. Clarence E. Beebe, President of the association, said in her report, among other things, that there was need of a larger working capital and of more young women to come into the work, consecrated to its support.

"Let our work be so earnest," she said, "that no girl in this city shall be left alone, left idle, or desolate."

HEARST BUYS ATLANTA PAPER

The Georgian Announces Its Sale to New York Publisher.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 5.—The Atlanta Georgian announced this afternoon that the paper had been purchased by William Randolph Hearst from Fred L. Seely, who established the paper six years ago.

Negotiations for the sale of The Atlanta Georgian have been under way for some months. The first public announcement that Mr. Hearst was to purchase the paper was made on Jan. 5. The Georgian is an evening paper, morning, evening, and Sunday editions. John Temple Graves, according to report, will be the editor. Mr. Hearst has long wanted to get a paper in Atlanta, and it is said he attempted to buy The Constitution, and later The Journal, but the prices of both were too high.

CRITICISES CONCORD WRITERS

Powys of London Says Walt Whitman and Poe Were Their Superiors.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—John Cowper Powys, London lecturer, in delivering an address before the Socialist Literary Society to-day, criticised the Concord school of American writers, declaring that Emerson, Lowell, Hawthorne, Longfellow, and Holmes would be forgotten for centuries when the memories of Walt Whitman and Edgar Allan Poe still are fresh.

Mr. Powys declared that it was inconceivable why Whitman and Poe had not received niches in the Hall of Fame.

POLITICS IN PULPIT DECRIED.

Columbia Professor Warns Episcopal Clergymen to Stick to Religion.

Prof. Henry B. Mitchell, Professor of Mathematics in Columbia University, yesterday told sixty Episcopal ministers of New York and vicinity to preach the Gospel and let Mayor Gaynor, Gov. Dix, President Taft and his treaties, the labor strikes, and such men and matters alone.

It was the fortnightly luncheon of the Churchmen's Association, an exclusive Monday luncheon club, to which only Episcopal ministers of limited numbers belong. Ministers of New Jersey and Brooklyn are included. Bishop Burch of New York presided yesterday. The luncheon is given each time at the Hotel Manhattan.

So striking were the statements of Prof. Mitchell that, although members are supposed not to tell what is said, several were found ready to discuss the address after the luncheon. A vote of thanks, in which the statement was made that he had brought a revelation to them, was passed for the Columbia laymen.

The Story of Welsbach Service

Third:—Brilliance

The brilliance of a gas mantle depends upon the lighting-fluid in which the webbing is soaked.

A poorly-mixed or a weak fluid results in a poor mantle that will give a dim light.

Welsbach light fluids are always uniform because we own the mines where the monazite sand is found from which the fluid is made. And every process of manufacture, from mine to mantle is watched over by an army of Welsbach Chemists, each one an acknowledged expert in his own particular line.

As a result the genuine Welsbach mantle may be relied upon to give a brilliant lasting light.

Sale of Suits of exclusive made-to-measure fabrics—cut on advanced models—good style for a full year to come.

17.00

Regular prices 25.00, 27.50, 30.00, 32.50 and 35.00

Of necessity, any special offering in the Smith Gray & Co. stores must needs be of compelling interest, since at original figures Smith Gray & Co. garments enjoy a productive efficiency not duplicated outside the Smith Gray & Co. organization and, in consequence, an excess value is the usual rather than the unusual thing.

But here is a condition extraordinary—an offering that has seen no parallel since ready-for-service clothes were first produced—all the yardage of our special tailoring department on hand at the season's close—cut on advanced models and tailored by the identical craftsmen who would have built these garments had they been sold as originally intended to individual measurements instead of ready-for-service.

They are the same suits in every respect for which you would have paid from 32.50 to 45.00 had you bought them through our special tailoring department.

The fabrics are all exclusive, having been woven and designed for made-to-measure clothes—the models are all advanced, assuring you of good style for a year to come, and are styles that at any price could not be had now in any other ready-for-service clothes.

The assortment includes worsteds in clear and mill finish, worsted cheviots, Saxony cassimeres, Scotch tweeds, English finished velours, plain and fancy serges, new grays, new blues, new browns, new olives, plain and fancy blues, silk mixtures and stripe weave blacks, in both the new English and many distinctive Smith Gray & Co. models.

This Complete Disposal of the Retail Stock of The MAUSER Mfg. Co., Silversmiths

Presents the Most Remarkable Opportunities in the Purchase of Sterling Silver That New York Has Ever Known

TRADE M MARK
THE MAUSER CO.
FIFTH AVE.
NEW YORK

This is a difficult advertisement to write. You are reading it in the newspapers, while the second day's selling of the Mauser stocks is going on. We do not know exactly what will be available for your buying today. For our inspection of the beautiful Mauser Wares, which comprised this purchase, and our knowledge of the Mauser prices, and the prices at which we have marked the goods, convince us that yesterday's public response was very large.

This much we know: That in variety and extent, to say nothing of the particularly high quality of the merchandise, no such offering of Silverware has ever before been made to the people of New York.

For $84,000 Worth of Sterling Silver, at Original Mauser Prices, Enters the Sale to Go for $27,000

Figure that out for yourself. It means an average saving of TWO-THIRDS on the Mauser retail prices (which, by the way, have been preserved on the various articles wherever possible). Of course, the saving is greatest on the largest pieces, and least on the most staple articles of silver. But in every case it is worth coming for from a long distance to share in. An extraordinary feature of the Sale is the offering of

Two Complete Patterns of Sterling Silver Flatware At 15% to 25% Below Regular Mauser Prices

These are the so-called "ounce goods," on which such a saving is most unusual for complete assortments. One of the patterns is in a rich French gray or Butler finish. The other is a Colonial design in bright finish. By reason of our large regular purchases at wholesale from the Mauser Co., in addition to our buying their retail stock, they agreed to make up $15,000 worth of Flatware for us to supplement this Sale and to sell at this fine price-concession.

This will permit the buying of Silver Outfits for wedding presents or one's own use, in any desired composition, in either of these two handsome patterns.

Every piece of Silver in the Sale bears the Mauser trade-mark. And WE WILL ENGRAVE ALL MAUSER SILVER PURCHASED IN THE SALE, FREE OF CHARGE, IN THE VERY BEST MANNER.

To complete the assortment in its Fifth Avenue store (now discontinued) the Mauser Co. added carefully chosen stocks of imported and domestic Leather Goods, fine Stationery, Art Wares and Clocks. These we also secured to sell at remarkably low prices.

As before stated, we cannot give exact details of the Mauser Co.'s goods that will remain for today's selling. But that selection will be most satisfying, is perfectly certain. Expect to find wide variety in the following classes:

Sterling Silver Hollow Ware

The Mauser Co.'s Finest Designs. Tea Sets, Punch Bowls, Loving Cups, Vases, Dishes, Platters and smaller pieces in great variety. Prices about half.

Sterling Silver Serving Pieces

Fish and Salad Sets, Ice Cream and Pie Knives, Cold Meat Forks, Cheese Scoops, Berry Spoons and many others. Prices about half.

Sterling Silver Flatware

Spoons, Forks and Knives, in all sizes, in two desirable patterns, in any assortment desired; 15 to 25 per cent, under-price. Also Flatware, odd dozens, single pieces and sets in cases at about half price.

Sterling Silver Novelties

Personal gifts in profusion, such as Mesh Bags, Dorine Cases, Coin Holders, Pencils, Match Boxes, Buckles, half price or less.

Sterling Silver Toilet Ware

Brushes, Mirrors, Handle Pieces; also Desk Fittings, Jewel Cases; Cigar and Cigarette Boxes and Photograph Frames. At one-third to one-half of original Mauser prices.

Sterling Silver Deposit Ware

Decanters, Pitchers, Whiskey Sets, Tea Sets, Chocolate Pots, and many other pieces in heavy silver deposit on glass, or silver-mounted on china. Much less than half price.

Other Articles in the Mauser Sale

Women's Hand Bags, Card Cases, Traveling Bags, and other fine leather goods, half price or less.

Fine Stationery, Correspondence Cards, Menu Cards, Dinner Favors; also Desk Sets in brass or leather. Half price or less.
Main Floor.

Royal Sevres Vases, Bronzes, and Other Art Wares Less Than Half Price

While such extraordinary savings prevail on goods of the highest character, it is worth while to anticipate as far as you possibly can your future requirements for wedding and other anniversary gifts, and even for holiday presents. It is well to remember that of many of choicest prices there is but a single one, and that when sold they will, in all probability, never be duplicated at these prices.

BROTHER ACCUSED BROTHER OF FORGERY

Ex-Register Ronner, Not Knowing of Mother's Gift to Hermann, Suspected a Crime.

PROMPTLY CLEARED IN COURT

Validity of Deed of Gift Established by Evidence of the Lawyer Who Took Woman's Acknowledgment.

An estrangement that has existed for years between former City Register John H. J. Ronner and his brother, Hermann, was brought to light yesterday when the ex-Register's accusation that his brother had forged a mortgage assignment from his mother, half of which, by her will, belonged to him, came up for hearing before Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Ronner, who died in 1909, left by codicil to a will dated 1907 a mortgage worth $7,800, to be divided by the executors between her two sons. When the executors, Henry Goeltz and Charles A. Brunning, attempted to find the mortgage George Jarchow, the owner of the mortgaged property, said that he had been paying the interest regularly since 1908 to Hermann Ronner, who had shown to him a duly signed assignment from his mother, dated Nov. 25, 1908.

John Ronner thereupon accused his brother of having forged the mother's signature, and asserted that on the date mentioned his mother had been ill and in bed and that he had not left her side. He declared that neither Daniel F. McCort, the Commissioner of Deeds who had witnessed the transaction, nor his brother had been in the house that day. John said further that he had not had his brother arrested on a charge of forgery because he wished to spare him and his family that disgrace.

William J. Kinsley, handwriting expert, examined the document in court, and testified that the date, "Nov. 25," had been typewritten over an erased date, of which he could read only the word July. He discovered by the use of a microscope that a cross which Mrs. Ronner had made as her signature was made carefully with four separate strokes of the pen. The name of Wilhelmina Ronner and of the notary, Mr. McCort, was written by one person, he said.

Mr. McCort explained all this when called as a witness. He said that he had gone to the Ronner house on Nov. 25 and had found Mrs. Ronner in bed ailing.

"My eyes are bad to-day," the old woman said to McCort, so he testified, "and you'll have to sign this deed for me."

She then took the paper on her knees and marked it with a cross, as he directed. "Now give it to Hermann," she said to the witness. "I want him to have it as a Thanksgiving present."

She forgot, however, to cancel the codicil to her will, and John, not knowing anything about the deed of gift, had come to the conclusion that Hermann had committed forgery.

Henry H. Sherman, a lawyer, of No. 44 Pine Street, testified that he had made out the codicil to Mrs. Ronner's will, whereby the mortgage was to be divided between the two brothers after the expenses and the debts of the estate had been discharged. He had, he testified, been frequently in consultation with Hermann Ronner and his attorney, and said that they never had mentioned the assignment of the mortgage to him.

Justice Hotchkiss, in declaring for the defendant, said that he had implicit faith in the testimony of Daniel F. McCort, in whose presence Mrs. Ronner had given the mortgage to her son. He ordered that the money which had been deposited with the City Chamberlain, pending the decision, be transferred to Hermann Ronner.

WANTS WIFE TO DIVORCE HIM.

Actor Roberts Objects to Her Attempt to Withdraw the Suit.

Theodore Roberts, the actor, who is now appearing in "The Bird of Paradise," entered objections yesterday to the petition of his wife, Mrs. Lucy O. Roberts, asking permission to withhold her suit against him for divorce.

Some time ago, as reported in THE TIMES, Mrs. Roberts dropped her divorce suit, and started a separation action. At that time she said that she had been induced by her husband to start the divorce action to give him his freedom, but that she was a Roman Catholic, and religiously opposed to divorce.

After Fred N. Wattriss had been appointed referee to hear the divorce action, Mrs. Roberts said, her conscience began to trouble her and she wanted to drop the divorce suit, not only because it was repugnant to her religious scruples, but abhorrent to her personal sentiments as a woman.

Roberts denied the charges of abandonment and non-support on which the separation suit is based, and in which Mrs. Roberts has made an application for alimony and counsel fees pending trial. He says he has paid her $50 a week since the divorce suit was begun, in addition to $778 for dresses and a $500 counsel fee. He wants her to continue the divorce suit.

In her petition to substitute the separation action, Mrs. Roberts declares that she has learned that her husband wishes his freedom in order to marry again.

Roberts declares his average annual earnings for the last nine years have not exceeded $8,000, and that it costs him $2,250 for hotel bills when on tour each year.

Supreme Court Justice Davis, before whom the matter was argued yesterday, reserved decision.

INVALID JUDGES AT WORK.

Justices Goff and Hendrick, Court House Victims, Return to Duties.

The two Supreme Court Justices, John W. Goff and Peter A. Hendrick, who have been ill from the insanitary condition of the County Court House, returned yesterday to their duties, ready to brave bad air and close quarters until another retreat becomes necessary. Justice Hendrick has been under the weather—or, as the attendants put it, "under the Court House"—for three weeks. He was assigned to Trial Term, Part II. Justice Goff, before his illness five weeks ago, had been assigned by Gov. Dix to hold an Extraordinary Term of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court in Albany. Because of his illness the term was adjourned.

It could not be ascertained yesterday whether the Governor would reissue his assignment. Justice Goff's five weeks out of court have returned him to perfect health.

AN ELECTRIC EARTHQUAKE.

Short Circuit in Edison Co. Power House Did $5,000 Damage.

A short circuit in one of the seven large converters in the power house of the New York Edison Company at 130 East 121st Street yesterday caused much excitement in the neighborhood, and did $5,000 worth of damage to the converter. The fire caused by the short circuit was confined to the converter, and no one was injured.

With the short circuit came a dull roar and a shaking of the heavy building, and persons in adjoining buildings ran to the street apprehensive of an earthquake. The insulation was burned off all the wire in the converter, but the flames did not spread.

To Honor Congressman Sulzer.

A meeting will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the chapel of the Pilgrim Church, Madison Avenue and 121st Street, to make arrangements for a suitable recognition of the services of Congressman Sulzer in introducing the Russian passport resolution. The meeting will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters and Sheriff Harburger.

WOMEN WANT CLEAN STREETS

Study Club Adopts Resolutions Which Go to Mayor and Others.

The Woman Suffrage Study Club wants clean streets, and it passed a resolution to that effect at its meeting yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Bache Smith, 252 West 122d Street. The resolution said that the streets of New York were becoming more and more unclean and that the police did not enforce the sanitary regulations. Chief Engineer Very of the Highways Department was the speaker of the day.

The resolution was to have been sent only to the Mayor and the Police and Street Commissioners, but at the suggestion of Mr. Very the women decided to send it also to the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen.

The women asked many questions, made suggestions, and applauded when Mr. Very said that night cleaning was the best thing the city could possibly have and that the striking street cleaners didn't have a chance in the last strike because the Mayor was a real man. He said the streets should be washed at night.

Mr. Very told the women that they must work to educate public opinion and to get an appropriation of $500,000, which he said would keep the city really clean. There should be four high-power flushing machines and six squeegees.

"Detroit and Cleveland are the cleanest cities in the United States, and the business parts of those cities are washed twice a week," said Mr. Very. "We propose to wash the business part of New York every other day, the combined business and residential parts twice a week, and the residential parts once a week."

In answer to questions, Mr. Very said that salt water could only be used one-third of the way across the city and that men for street cleaning should be chosen, as horses were, for hard work. The short, stocky Hebrews, Polacks, and Italians make the best workers. Negroes are well built, but are lazy and don't apply for the job.

SIGSBEE SPEAKS TO WOMEN.

Admiral Explains Navy's Real Purpose to Auditors at the Waldorf.

Rear Admiral Sigsbee, representing Secretary of the Navy Meyer, delivered an address on "The Navy" yesterday at the Waldorf before the New York and New Jersey Sections of the Woman's Welfare Department of the National Civic Federation. The two hundred or more ladies present were much interested in what Admiral Sigsbee had to say about the naval policy and the building and operation of big battleships. For the benefit of his auditors he emphasized his statements with homely illustrations.

"The primary purpose of our navy," he said, "is defense of the Nation. There are two forms of defense, first simple defense or awaiting attack, and second, offensive defense, which is to take the initiative and carry the fighting to the enemy. Assume that burglars are at hand and threatening a dwelling. Shall the men in that dwelling protect their women, children, and property by first allowing the burglars to enter the premises or shall they put those burglars to rout?

"Regarding the navy as a form of insurance for the country, it is really not an insurance unless it is adequate as a fighting force. When two nations separated by the sea are at war the one commanding the sea has an advantage which may quickly decide the war in her favor."

Admiral Sigsbee spoke of the necessity of having outlying naval bases, and then went into the cost of building, maintaining, and repairing the navy, which amounts annually, he said, to $130,000,000.

Admiral Sigsbee was presented to the gathering by Father John Chidwick, Chaplain of the Maine under the Admiral's command when it was blown up in Havana Harbor.

$550,000 WILL OF MISS ROBERT VALID

Surrogate Fowler Dismisses Contest Over Estate of Rich Spinster Who Died Last November.

NIECES ARE TO BENEFIT

Novel Point of Law Is Settled Covering Witnesses in Case—Decision Rendered Without Delay.

Surrogate Fowler dismissed yesterday the contest of the will of Miss Mary E. Robert. He admitted the will to probate after hearing the evidence adduced by the contestant, Henry J. Robert, a nephew, and the formal proof of the excution of the will.

Under the terms of the testament admitted to probate St. Luke's Hospital will receive $5,000, St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children $2,000, and the Home for Incurables a like amount.

Miss Robert, who had $550,000 in personal property, left the remainder of her estate to relatives. She gave $2,000 to her sister, Mrs. Catherine R. Jackson, a special bequest of $10,000 to her niece, Margaret R. Jackson, Mrs. Jackson's daughter.

The residue of the estate Miss Robert left in equal portions, which will amount to $132,250, each to the children of her sister, Mrs. Jackson. These beneficiaries are Miss Margaret A. Jackson, Miss Emily S. Jackson, Henry and Mrs. Louise F. Jackson Henry. Mrs. Anna R. Jackson Rutherford, who was named as a fifth beneficiary died before her aunt.

Miss Robert was 79 years old. She had lived at the Hotel Essex, Madison Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, for several years prior to her demise on Nov. 8 last. During some dozen years, ending about ten or more years ago, she had lived the greater part of each year in the home of her sister, Mrs. Jackson. She made her will on May 21, 1902, after she had ceased to reside with her sister.

In making her will, which was drawn by B. Aymar Sands, of the law firm of Bowers & Sands, Miss Robert did not mention the four children of her dead brother Christopher Robert. They were Henry J. Robert, Christopher D. Robert, Mrs. Mary I. Perry, and Daniel Robert. The latter three acquiesced in the proceedings to probate the will, although they would have profited by its being broken. Henry J. Robert, however, instituted a contest of the will through his attorneys, Niles & Johnson.

The contest was based on all the statutory grounds for attacking the validity of wills, including allegations that Miss Robert was incapable of making a will because of mental incapacity, and that she was unduly influenced. The entire Jackson family was charged with exerting undue influence. Before the case had proceeded far the charge that Miss Robert was mentally unsound was dropped.

The formal testimony as to the circumstances of making the will was given by William C. Bowers and John S. Rogers, the subscribing witnesses. Henry J. Robert, the contestant, then made a formal demand that certain other persons be produced as Surrogate's witnesses. These included the beneficiaries of the will, and Mr. Sands, the attorney.

At this point Surrogate Fowler made a novel ruling. He held that in so far as they testified only to the circumstances of the making of the will they were Surrogate's witnesses. He further ruled that if they were asked to testify beyond this point they would be contestant's witnesses, and the contestant would be bound by their testimony.

To this ruling the contestant's attorneys made prompt objection. Surrogate Fowler observed that the statute which gives the contestant the right to order the proponents to produce witnesses, was being used unjustly, and that he purposed having the right tested. He said that if the contestant's attorneys wanted to settle the point, he would be glad to have them appeal to the Court of Appeals. He observed that it was time that the question had been settled.

After the formal proof had concluded the Surrogate announced his decision to admit the will from the bench, a rather unusual proceedure in important contests, in which it had been customary for Surrogates to reserve decision and receive briefs.

CONTESTS MULLIGAN DIVORCE

The Wife Files Objections to Referee's Report and Explains.

Supreme Court Justice Newburger received objections yesterday from Mrs. Bessie Van Ness Mulligan to the report of ex-Supreme Court Justice M. Linn Bruce, recommending that a decree of divorce be granted to her husband, George H. Mulligan, Jr., son of a wealthy New Jersey contractor. His marraige to Miss Van Ness, a chorus girl, and his father's action in disowning him for it, gave the couple a great deal of notoriety.

Young Mulligan, who had been President of a taxicab company owned by his father, found himself discharged and took various odd jobs to support himself and his bride. He became a chauffeur and a motorman, and his efforts to make his way unassisted was duly recorded.

Mulligan charged, however, that his wife, after her return to the stage, did not remain faithful to him. Referee Bruce sustained his charge. In her objection Mrs. Mulligan states that she was merely enjoying a social drink, after hours, in hotel rooms, specially rented to prevent suspicion of wrongdoing, when the door of one of the rooms was broken down.

LEFT WIFE, GETS YEAR IN JAIL.

First Man to be Extradited for Abandonment Is Sentenced.

For abandoning his wife and four children, Samuel Levine, 35 years old, will have to serve a year in Sing Sing and in addition pay a fine of $500. If he cannot pay the fine he will have to serve an additional day for each dollar of the fine. Judge Fawcett imposed this sentence in the County Court in Brooklyn yesterday.

Levine lived in Brownsville with his wife and children. The eldest is 14 years old. In December, 1910, he went to Chicago. Mrs. Levine was left in destitute circumstances, and she appealed for help to the United Hebrew Charities. It was through this organization that Levine was found in Chicago, where he was living under the name of Miller with another woman.

On the complaint of the Brooklyn police he was arrested in Chicago and later extradited here, where he was placed on trial on an indictment charging him with abandonment. He is the first man charged with abandonment to be extradited here from another State. He tried to resist the attempt of the authorities to bring him here, but failed.

Oriental Luxuries at Little Cost

THERE are certain things from the Eastern World that you MUST get at Vantine's, if you get them at all. It is the one shop to which you go for valuable ivories, or embroideries, or bronzes, or Oriental lamps, or cloisonne. But there are a thousand little luxuries, at little cost, which add to the enjoyment of life everywhere. Vantine Kimonos, as low as $3.75—cut and made in Japan. They are not mal-shaped apologies for kimonos, but the graceful garments themselves, direct from Geisha Land. They are favored over all others in London and Paris. Vantine Spring and Summer dress silks from the old hand-looms—brilliant and very fashionable in Paris at the present moment. Teas such as you get nowhere else—and tea sets and tea tables at remarkably low cost. Draperies and rugs for your city home or your Summer cottage. In short, if you are puzzled, drop in at Vantine's—the shop of unlimited versatility.

BERNHARDT TO ACT IN VAUDEVILLE HERE

Will Appear on Orpheum Circuit Next Season, Opening at Beck's New Palace Theatre.

EXCERPTS FROM HER PLAYS

French Actress to be Seen in Repertoire, Including "Camille," "La Sorciere," and "Joan of Arc."

According to an announcement made by Martin Beck, General Manager of the Orpheum Vaudeville Circuit, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has succumbed to the enticements of American vaudeville, and has signed a contract to appear in this country, under the management of Mr. Beck, for a period of forty weeks. The time for her first appearance is set for next season, and she will be seen first at Mr. Beck's new Palace Theatre, now building in New York.

According to the announcement, Mr. Beck visited Mme. Bernhardt in Paris last October and opened negotiations with her. At first she refused to consider appearing in American vaudeville, saying that the theatres and some of the performers with whom she would be obliged to associate would not appeal to her. When Mr. Beck returned to this country he sent her photographs of all of the theatres in the Orpheum Circuit, together with lists of the probable artists who would appear on the bill with her. She was then convinced, it is said, that she could come here wthout a loss of dignity or prestige, and financial arrangements were then started that have resulted favorably to both sides. The amount she is to receive is not stated, and Mr. Beck says it will not be made public.

Mme. Bernhardt will bring her own company and will be seen in a répertoire of her greatest successes, including "Camille," "La Sorciere," and "Joan of Arc," together with several short plays that have never been done in America. Her engagement will be divided into two periods, of twenty weeks' each. After she has played in New York and at the Palace Theatre, Chicago, she will go on tour with the same sort of traveling equipment that she has had on her other visits to America.

This will not be Mme. Bernhardt's first venture out of the "legitimate" theatres. She played a six weeks' engagement at the Coliseum, London, last Fall, appearing in excerpts from her best-known plays, and attracting large audiences. Her example has been followed by other well-known actors in England and on the Continent, including Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, who has contracted to appear in London in the "two-a-day" houses in Kipling's "The Man Who Was."

Mme. Bernhardt was in America last season on a tour directed by Frank Connor. She played an extended season in New York and then visited every important city in the country without showing any evidences of fatigue. Her present contract with Mr. Peck will call for week stands only and much less labor than her previous tours have required of her.

Hans Robert in "The Judge's Son."

Hans Robert, who has been seen here in several productions, made his first appearance in vaudeville at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday in a dramatic sketch called "The Judge's Son." The piece proved to be an adaptation of the principal scene from "A Man of Honor," which was presented at Weber's Theatre this season, with Edmund Breese in the principal role, and Mr. Robert in the character of the son, which he played yesterday. Others who took part in the sketch were Albert Andruss, Ruth Rose, and James Edwards. The audience seemed to like the little drama, and there was considrable applause.

Hunt in Court for Woman's Thoughts.

The dignity of the Appellate Term was a bit ruffled yesterday when a well-dressed woman rose from her seat at the end of an argument and complained to Justices Seabury, Bijur, and Guy that she could never get a hearing because "my mind is all muddled and my wires all crossed." The court assigned Clerk Bevins to take up the woman's troubles with her in the corridor. He listened to her complaint that she could retain no lawyers for her case because her thoughts always came out wrong and that she was always sent home. Then he let her go with the promise that the Justices would let her know if any of her real thoughts turned up in their vicinity. The woman left the Court House thoroughly satisfied.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES

"Alias Jimmy Valentine" was offered by the stock company at the Academy of Music yesterday to run for the week.

At the Manhattan Opera House the week's attraction is "Over Night," the farce by Philip Bartholomae, that had a long run at the Hackett Theatre last season.

Lew Dockstader and his minstrels came to the West End Theatre last night for a week's engagement.

Robert Edeson, in a one-act version of "Strongheart," headed the bill at the Colonial Theatre yesterday, and others on the programme were Lolo, Billy Gould and Belle Ashlyn, Tom Edwards, Little Billie, Melville and Higgins, Jere Grady and company, J. Rosamond Johnson's "Sambo Girls," and the Bounding Gordons.

Joe Welsh was the headliner at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre, and included in the rest of the bill were the Russian Balalaika Orchestra, Hans Robert and company, Willie Weston, Bedini and Arthur, Harry Tighe and company, the Courtney sisters, Boston Red Sox Quartet, Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker, the Kaufman troupe, the Four Kellys, and La Tell brothers.

At Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre the bill included Florence Nash and company in a comedy called "In 1999," the Hanlon brothers, Robinson Newbold and Marie Gribben, Mrs. Louis James and company, Minnie Allen, Fred Warren and Mat Keefe, Charles B. Lawlor and daughters, Dane Claudius and Lillian Scarlet, "Le Vier," and Campo and Mason.

On the programme at the Alhambra Theatre were Elizabeth Brice and Charles King, "A Romance of the Under World," Gerald Griffin and company, "A Night in a Turkish Bath," Ashley and Lee, De Witt, Burns and Torrence, the Ward brothers, and Yankee and Dixie.

At the Bronx Theatre the entertainers included George Lashwood, Frederick Bond, and Freemont Benton, George Spink and Pauline Welch, Frank Bush, the Golden troupe, Hickey's Circus, Phina and Her Picks, and Adair and Dahn.

Sam Howe's "Lovemakers" company began a week's engagement at the Columbia Theatre yesterday afternoon. The vaudeville bill between the acts included the Bonsetti troupe, O'Divio and her diving girls, Pony Moore, and D. J. Davey.

Attractions at other burlesque theatres included Miner's "Bohemian Burlesquers" at Miner's Eighth Avenue, "The Merry Whirl" at the Olympic, "Follies of the Day" at Miner's in the Bronx, "Runaway Girls" at Hurtig & Seamon's Music Hall, and "Big Banner Show" at the Murray Hill.

James K. Hackett in "The Grain of Dust" is the attraction at the Broadway Theatre, Brooklyn, this week.

The Viennese opera company, recently seen at the Irving Place Theatre, is playing a week's engagement at the Shubert Theatre, Brooklyn, opening there last night in "Das Suesse Maedel."

William H. Crane and his company in "The Senator Keeps House" opened at the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, last night for a week's engagement.

The bill at the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, included "The Antique Girl," Cesare Nesi, Berk Kalmar and Jessie Brown, "The Little Stranger," Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry, the Carl Pantzer trio, John and Mae Burke, the Schenck brothers, and Irene Dillon.

WOMEN THRONG ELEVATORS.

The elevators in the McConnell Building, 13-21 East 22d Street, were working overtime yesterday carrying hundreds of carefully dressed women to the retail showrooms where Samek Bros., the big wholesalers of undermuslins, are retailing at wholesale prices. The woman who buys her lingerie at wholesale saves from 33½ to 50%—the retailer's profit; she has a wealth of variety to choose from; she can step into a model factory and see under what sanitary conditions her undermuslins are made. You are invited to come and take the elevator to the eleventh floor. Samek Bros., 13-21 East 22d Street, just east of Broadway.—Adv.

OLCOTT IN NEW HEROIC ROLE.

Appears in "Macushla," a Romantic Comedy, at Grand Opera House.

MACUSHLA, a play in four acts, by Rida Johnson Young. Grand Opera House.

Sir Brian Fitzgerald	Chauncey Olcott
Warren Fairchild	Clarence Wellesley
Sandy McNabb	Robert V. Ferguson
Thomas Wiggins	E. H. Reardon
Dinny O'Mara	George Brennan
Will Dorkins	F. Gatenby Bell
A Bookmaker	Edmund Shalet
Patricia Boyer	Gail Kane
Mrs. Boyer	Jennie Lamont
Gwendolin Fairchild	Katherine Clarendon
Lady Dorothy Hammond	Alice Farrell

Chauncey Olcott, it appears, can be depended upon to draw a capacity audience whenever he chooses to appear in New York, and last night the Grand Opera House was filled to the limit of its seats when he made his bow in his new play, "Macushla," a romantic comedy by Rida Johnson Young. It was a regular Olcott play, a little better in plot and dialogue than some of them, perhaps, and it was seen and applauded by a regular Olcott audience.

Of course, the star was cast in a heroic mold, with singing possibilities. He was Sir Brian Fitzgerald, the unwilling heir to many broad and debt-ridden acres in Ireland. He owned a horse named Macushla, a famous jumper, and that is about all that he dared to keep his own when pressed by creditors. Grown up with him from childhood was Patricia Boyer, daughter of the lodge keeper. The young woman could not bring herself to recognize the dignity of the title her old playmate had acquired, nor could he recognize that she had come to be a woman without suspecting it. Several ladies from England tried to move Sir Brian with their wiles, and several men, including the usual English villain, tried to find a way into the heart of Patricia. Toward the end of the play, when it seemed that Sir Brian was about to be dispossessed of his lands and his Patricia, Macushla won a race and thereby brought to her owner much wealth and the girl he loved.

It is scarcely necessary to speak of Mr. Olcott's acting. No matter what he does or says the audience is with him, applauding him, or laughing at his witticisms. He sang several songs last night of the kind his admirers like, and he had to repeat the choruses several times. Gail Kane played the hoydenish Patricia with much spirit, and the rest of the company was satisfactory. "Macushla" will remain the attraction at the Grand Opera House for three weeks.

MISS CLARK'S RECITAL.

A Contralto Singer Heard in Italian, French, German, and American Songs.

Miss Elizabeth Sherman Clark, contralto, gave a song recital yesterday afternoon in the Lyceum Theatre before a considerable number of friendly listeners. Miss Clark, who has not appeared before in New York concert rooms, is said to be a pupil of Jean de Reszke; her voice is naturally of good quality, somewhat veiled and sombre in color, but apparently capable of expressive use, and her production of tone and technical methods are in many respects excellent. She has, in fact, the material out of which a good singer might be made. But good material, good schooling, a command of the technic of an art, even a serious purpose and a high ambition, are unfortunately not enough to make an interesting and a beguiling artist.

Something more is needed; there is a personal equation that is necessary between a singer and her public, a communicative kindling of emotion, and Miss Clark did not show much power to establish these in her recital yesterday. Probably nervousness congealed something of the natural warmth of her utterance. At any rate, her singing had little of such warmth, little variety, little emotional power; and the result was monotony. There were excellent qualities in her singing of an air from Gluck's "Orphée," of Giordani's "Caro mio Ben," Massenet's "Chanson de Francesca," the German folk-song "Stille Nacht," and other songs by German, French, Italian, and American composers. But her conception of them seemed to be on nearly one plane, and her expression of Grieg's "Im Kahn" was not widely differentiated from that of "Caro mio Ben." In a word, what Miss Clark lacks more than anything else at present is what is meant by the considerably abused word "temperament."

McDERMOTT IS SENTENCED.

Slayer Smiles as Penalty of Four to Eight Years is Imposed.

Despite pleas for clemency made in his behalf and his sister's noble attempts to sacrifice herself for him, James McDermott, who was found guilty of stabbing and killing Charles Muldoon in a fight in a saloon at 113th Street and Lexington Avenue, was sentenced to not less than four years and six months or more than eight years and six months in Sing Sing yesterday by Judge Foster in General Sessions. He received his sentence with a smile.

Dies on Elevated Train.

Meyer J. Wallach, a real estate man of this city, living at 106 West 140th Street, died suddenly early last evening on a south bound Ninth Avenue Elevated train just as the train reached the Desbrosses Street Station. Wallach's brother Samuel was with him. He was a member of the firm of J. H. Meyer, 135 Broadway.

'MAKING GOOD' BELIES ITS NAME

Curious Relic of Old-Fashioned Melodrama Offered Seriously at the Fulton Theatre.

A "GOOD GIRL" FOR SURE

That Fact, at Least, Made Sufficiently Clear During Some Very Queer Proceedings.

MAKING GOOD, a play in four acts, by Owen Davis. Fulton Theatre.

Morton Lawrence	Charles Lane
Tom Lawrence	William Courtenay
Dan Regan	Griffith Evans
Bradley Harris	P. F. Barrett
Pete Selby	John Willard
Billy Bishop	James Lounsbery
Judge Deane	Frank Hatch
Davy	Robert Lawler
Costigan	L. C. Phillips
Little Joe	C. Wilson Hummel
Anderson	Paul Harris
Clifford	Fred Hornby
Deronda Deane	Doris Keane
Lelia Regan	Alma Belwin
Mrs. Lawrence	Isabel O'Madigan
Widow Leigh	Ada Gilman

Owen Davis, the author of the new play seen at the Fulton Theatre last night, has been best known as a writer of "thriller melodramas" of a kind that were popular in cheap theatres a few years ago. He is said to have reformed and to be seeking a newer and higher field of usefulness, which, be it added, is a commendable ambition. But, unlike the hero of "Making Good," Mr. Davis cannot be congratulated on his achievement. He has not made good.

The play is all about a young man from New York who was born with a "silver spoon in his mouth;" but who found himself after he had found "the girl" in a lumber camp up North. And she was a "good girl," too, despite the fact that she was played by Miss Doris Keane, who has generally been cast for unfortunate heroines of the kind who make a mistake in the first act and are turned out into the snow. There was snow again last night—great chunks of it—with an electric fan hidden somewhere to blow it through the chinks in the log-lined bunkhouse. But before Miss Keane—that is to say, Deronda Deane—went out into it she had been tucked into Tom Lawrence's great coat, after that young hopeful had been knocked down by Pete Selby, the lumberman who was pursuing the "good girl" and meant to have her in spite of his rival from New York. For she wasn't "his kind," she wasn't, or so Pete thought, though it turned out all right finally, after Tom had made good, as he said he would, and saved the mortgage on his father's property; that same harsh, unyielding father who had told him in the first act that he was a worthless ne'er-do-well, and that he would have to marry a girl he didn't love. Which Tom, being William Courtenay and the hero of the play, insisted that he wouldn't do. And having previously told Peter Selby that he was going to make a man of himself and then give the lumberman a good thrashing he had to stay behind and do it. And so he went into the general provision business, having only the pitiful sum of $298 with which to start. Imagine a man making a success in life on a capital like that. But Tom did it. They never did have such a store as that in the Maine settlement, and to see this little son of the rich selling calico and molasses was a good sight for the eyes.

But that was as nothing to the fight. Oh, yes, there had to be a fight, for hadn't Tom said he was going to lick Pete. He had only a few minutes to do it, for the train was ready to start, and he thought the "good girl" had thrown him down, and it was necessary for him to get back to New York in order to save his father's property. All of which he did, after having given Pete an upper cut that send him down and out without the count.

But there was more trouble because the "good girl" followed him to New York to warn him that Pete was on his track, and the other girl, who was "Tom's kind," pretended that he had asked her to marry him, and almost turned the "good girl" out. Which would have happened if Tom's mother hadn't arrived just in the nick of time to save the situation. That in itself was doing a good deal. But neither she nor anybody else nor all of them combined could save the play.

But she was a "good girl," let there be no mistake about that.

Miss Doris Keane made her rather an orchidaceous sort of creature considering her rough environment, but appeared to take her as seriously as possible, which in itself was an achievement. So likewise, Mr. William Courtenay labored faithfully and well as the young man who makes good. There was some neat character sketching by Frank Hatch, L. C. Phillips, and P. F. Barrett. And there was some exceedingly bad acting by several of the other members of the cast. Likewise the stage management, and what is known as "the production" were both rather awful. In other words "Making Good" certainly belied its title.

Tetrazzini at Hippodrome Feb. 18.

Mme. Tetrazzini will sing at the Hippodrome Sunday night, Feb. 18, at 8:30, in concert. The sale of seats begins Monday morning, Feb. 12. Assisting Mme. Tetrazzini will be Nahan Franko and his orchestra of seventy-five, Yves Nat, pianist, and Emilie Puyans, flautist. Mr. Nat is a young French pianist and both have been engaged by W. H. Leahy, manager of Mme. Tetrazzini, for the present concert tour.

OFFERS $50,000 FOR OPERA.

Adolphus Busch Starts Subscription Toward $500,000 House in St. Louis.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 5.—Expressing vexation that "St. Louis does not come up to the grand opera standard of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston," Adolphus Busch wired to-day to his son-in-law, Edward A. Faust, an offer to subscribe $50,000 toward the erection of a $500,000 opera house in this city. The proposal is made on the condition that the remainder of the fund be subscribed within six months.

Mr. Busch's telegram, sent from his Winter home in Pasadena, Cal., was elicited by a letter from Faust, who is Vice Chairman of the St. Louis Grand Opera Committee.

In the dispatch Mr. Busch set $700,000 as the amount to be raised, including his own subscription, but intrusted any advisable changing of the conditions to his son, August A. Busch, Faust, and Daniel N. Kirby. It was decided to reduce the sum to $500,000.

Members of the Grand Opera Committee, all of whom are wealthy men, say they anticipate no trouble in raising the money.

Faust's suggestion as to the subscription of the remainder of the fund is that thirty of the approximately sixty millionaires in St. Louis be persuaded to purchase permanent boxes for $10,000 each, the subscribers to receive stock in the enterprise to the amount of their investment.

Geraldine Farrar Will Keep House.

Miss Geraldine Farrar, like many of the other prima donnas, has decided that she wants to keep house. She has therefore moved her goods and chattels from the Hotel Knickerbocker, where she has resided for several seasons, and presently will be installed at 220 Madison Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Farrar will, of course, accompany the young soprano.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Henry Miller has in rehearsal a new play by A. E. Thomas, called "The Rainbow," which will be produced in New York within a few weeks. The piece is a comedy in three acts, and the scenes are laid in New York and the Riviera.

Douglas Fairbanks will make his first appearance in vaudeville at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on Feb. 19, in a one-act comedy, called "A Regular Business Man."

Pictures of the Durbar at Delhi will be shown at the Kinemacolor Theatre in West Fortieth Street on Feb. 19. The coronation pictures will be shown for the five-hundredth time in New York on Thursday evening.

POET WATSON HIDES HIS DICKENS LINES

Arrives for Centenary Celebration, but Won't Show Poem He Is to Read.

ASSAILS ENGLISH APATHY

More Interest Here in Literature, He Sighs—"Serpent's Tongue" Not Mentioned Nowadays.

William Watson, the English poet, who when he was on these shores more than two years ago stirred up a very tempest by identifying the inspiration of his poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," was one of the passengers brought to this port yesterday by the Anchor liner Cameronia. He comes this time as a guest of the Committee of Arrangements for the Dickens Centenary Celebration, and Robert Erskine Ely, one of the committee, went down the bay to meet him at Quarantine. To-morrow night at the Dickens Centenary meeting in Carnegie Hall Mr. Watson is to read the lines that he has written for this occasion, a poem to the memory of Charles Dickens.

A glimpse of these lines was denied to all comers yesterday, as they are to be saved for their first reading to-morrow night, and of the London newspapers only Dickens's own, The Daily News, is to have them in time for the issues of Thursday morning. But while Mr. Watson would not take his poem from his pocket, he was quite willing to meet the small group of reporters who journeyed up to the Hotel Majestic, in Central Park West. Present at the interview were Mr. Ely and Mrs. Watson, the poet's charming wife, who crossed the Atlantic with her husband.

The poet spoke with appreciation of the lively interest aroused in this country over the centenary of the English novelist's birth.

"The interest in literature and literary men is so much keener and more widely diffused in this country than in England," he said, with something not unlike a little sigh. "Really, I do not know how they are planning to mark this anniversary over there, but I should not be surprised to see it cause but the merest ripple in our newspapers and evoke no response from the English public at all.

"There is absolute apathy and stagnation on the part of the English upper and middle classes in regard to literature. It was noticeable twenty-five years ago and grows progressively more characteristic. To the English the writers, except for a few of the poular novelists, are the most obscure people in the country, and are quite eclipsed by any member of the House of Commons, however precarious and brief his tenure of office."

The reporters hastened to pour forth their conviction that things are different over here, and Mr. Watson was inclined to agree with them. They spoke of the recent visit of Arnold Bennett, of the eager demand for his books, and of the widespread warmth of the reception accorded to him.

"I think that is splendid," said Mrs. Watson, fervently.

"It simply wouldn't be possible in England," Mr. Watson interrupted, a little wistfully. "You really amaze me when you speak of these things. I mean nothing derogatory to Mr. Bennett when I say that his own people simply wouldn't understand it.

"They don't read—they don't care about reading. Everywhere muscle is put above mind. The young men are centred in athleticism, and those who do not participate in athletics are absorbed in watching those who do. It is so in the great public schools. Reading, literature, things of the mind are not encouraged there. In many circles an English gentleman who talked of books would be scorned."

Mr. Ely had been reading letters from writers to be read at the centenary celebration, and a phrase in one from William De Morgan—the "realm of King Shakespeare"—caught the poet's attention.

"Now that phrase," he observed, "call it out in a railway carriage where you could catch a section of the British public, or in an omnibus, and it would convey absolutely no meaning."

Mr. Ely spoke with anticipatory pleasure of hearing the Dickens poem read by Mr. Watson, for there, he said, is a poet who knows how to read. That started a little flurry of talk on Englishmen and their pronunciation, and Mr. Watson chuckled after he had mauled "Meet Me in the Garden, Maud," as he had heard it mauled by some of his fellow-countrymen.

"I should think that some Englishmen would be very difficult to understand," he went on. "There is something in the speech of London people, and particularly of the university men, that is quite impure. It isn't affectation. It is corruption, corruption of the vowels, a shortening that produces a strange, unintelligible effect. George Meredith used to talk that way. I have heard him."

"And what of the Dickens poem?" the reporters wanted to know. It is simply an occasional poem of fifty lines, it was finally explained, bearing no further title than, perhaps, "Lines to be Read at Carnegie Hall," &c. It could be gathered that this poem constitutes no literary criticism of Charles Dickens's work, no reference to him as an artist. It is a poem to the memory of Dickens, the man—the fighter for the common good, the hater of injustice. And even in his informal talk William Watson could not be persuaded to rate Dickens or to assign him a fixed place in the group of Victorian writers.

The thing that attracts is the great elemental force that was Charles Dickens's. This force alone, I think, was sufficient to raise him to the highest rank. There was the abundance of the man, the riotous humor, the Shakespearean humor. He was rather greater as a man than as an artist, I think. To go back earlier, I think Scott was really the greatest of our novelists, for all his attacks of—shall I say dullness? And Thackeray more of an artist.

"My favorite among the Dickens books? I think, all in all, I would put 'Copperfield' at the top, and then, there is that tremendously interesting work, 'The Tale of Two Cities.'"

For bringing the story of the Revolution so near the front, he was accused on the spot of disloyalty. No simon-pure Dickensite would make that choice, one reporter assured him. A little startled, Mr. Watson did not dispute the charge outright.

"Perhaps I am not a Dickensite in that sense," he replied. "I do not believe that a writer can afford to make an idol of the great writers. I am not inclined to discipleship. Shakespeare comes nearest to holding such an idol niche for us all, and then there are a group of giants to whom we owe a similar allegiance."

"And you would put Dickens among those giants?"

"Well, I was thinking rather more of poets, when I spoke, and yet there is something of the poet in Dickens, something of the poet in the elemental force of him, in the richness of his inexhaustible humor."

Mr. Watson is not sure how long he will make his stay in this country, nor how long he will be in this city. Perhaps not later than Saturday, but Mr. Ely was inclined to dispute that, and said that there were hosts and hostesses who would not be denied. After it was decided that he should come over here to read the poem at the Dickens celebration, some elventh hour arrangements were made for a lecture tour. He is to talk on "The Poet's Place in the Scheme of Life," and with dates in the Middle West already settled others are pending. "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue" was not once mentioned during the interview. It was understood that one does not speak of that closed incident to Mr. Watson.

AUTHORS' TRIBUTE TO DICKENS.

Famous Writers Send Messages to be Read at Centenary Dinner.

Not only will there be men and women of letters a plenty to speak of Charles Dickens when the centenary of his birth is celebrated this evening by a dinner at Delmonico's and to-morrow evening by a meeting at Carnegie Hall, but also there will be written messages from authors of America, England, and the Continent to be read as their contribution to the celebration.

Of those that will be read to-morrow evening, one is from Maurice Maeterlinck, a translation of which was obtained yesterday from Robert Erskine Ely of the Committee on Arrangements. The Belgian poet wrote:

> With emotion do I render homage on the occasion of his centenary to the great name of Charles Dickens, who created and established in the unknown and limitless realms of the soul a new sensitiveness, the sweetest, the purest, and the most penetrating which could rejoice, ennoble, and exalt it.

George Brandes, writing from Paris, sent this tribute:

> No English or American novelist after Dickens has had a genius powerful and original as his.
>
> In Scandinavia he was in the years 1850-1860 the most read and most admired English author. The bad Danish translations of all his works were devoured.
>
> Compassion was his muse. His heart was great and oversensitive; he saw the world with the eyes of a divine child, but his spirit was manly and firm.
>
> He loved the defenseless and he hated injustice. He is characterized by the union of naivete and manhood.
>
> Thoroughly modern, he had not less imagination than Walter Scott in his historical novels. As the creator of Sam Weller, Mr. Pickwick, Mr. Mocawber, he has shown an almost Shakespearean humor.

Tribute from Churchill.

Winston Churchill, the American novelist, offered this message for the gathering of Dickens lovers:

> I have pleasure in the opportunity you give me to express my sympathy with the observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens, and I venture to hope and believe that his name will live and be honored so long as the annals of our race endure. For he gave expression to the character and ideals of that race, and his personality has entered so vitally into its civilization that it is fitting we should acknowledge our gratitude on this most suitable occasion in the highest tribute of which we are capable.

"Most willingly" did Owen Wister respond from Philadelphia to Mr. Ely's invitation. "Here is the truth" was his introduction to his contribution:

> Last year I read "Dombey & Son," parts of "Barnaby Rudge," and most of "David Copperfield" over again. Every year I read something of his over again. Never do I tire of him, but only grow more to love and wonder at his genius. I think our race has produced but two others of his imaginative fecundity—Scott and Shakespeare. These three are my literary trinity, if I may use the term without irreverence. And I suppose that of the three Dickens is to-day the most familiar and the most beloved, for though he falls below Scott in some things and below Shakespeare in everything, he is nearer to us, and he has tied English-speaking hearts together by an immortal bond of laughter and tears.

A fifth is a letter from the Victorian novelist of the twentieth century:

> 127, Church Street, Chelsea, S. S.
>
> Dear Mr. Erskine Ely: It is a privilege to be permitted to contribute in any way to so noble an expression of reverence for the memory of so great a man.
>
> It was a countryman of yours who not long since earned the gratitude of the English-speaking world by calling it "the realm of King Shakespeare." The fame of two of the most recent additions to its illustrious House of Peers will survive on both sides of the Atlantic when another hundred years have succeeded those they were born to illuminate a century ago. Dickens and Thackeray will live in the minds of men until the tongue in which they wrote is dead.
>
> Pardon my writing what is almost truism in the sight of literature. I have nothing to add but earnest good wishes for the success of your demonstration.
>
> Believe me always
>
> Yours very faithfully,
>
> WILLIAM DE MORGAN.

Clarence H. Mackay, Treasurer of the American Dickens Fund now being raised to supplement the English fund to provide for the support of five granddaughters of Charles Dickens who are in need, received yesterday this cablegram from Lord Alverstone, Lord Chief Justice of England and Chairman of the Executive Committee in London:

> I most earnestly hope that the appeal being made in America in behalf of the necessitous granddaughters of the late Charles Dickens, for whom we seek as a fitting tribute to the memory of the famous author to provide small annuities, will be well supported.
>
> ALVERSTONE.

A similar cablegram was received by Joseph H. Choate, the Honorary Chairman of the Dickens Fund in America.

We Have Bought $50,000 Worth of Furs for $22,500

And That's the Way We Are Going to Sell Them in This Most Sensational Low-Priced Sale

THIS has been a disastrous season for the Fur manufacturers; October, November and December had their unseasonably warm periods, and January found most retailers with all the Fur stocks they cared to worry about for the rest of the winter.

Three different manufacturers, rather than put their Fur stocks away in cold storage and hold them for a year, came to us within the last week and literally pleaded with us to relieve them of all the furs they had at practically our own price. To tell you the actual truth, we did not want to buy Furs at this time of the year, but we made an offer and that offer was so low that we thought that would be the end of it, but we were told, within the hour, by the different furriers, that the different stocks were ours, and we can say to you that no one has ever bought furs at these prices, and, what's more, they will never be bought again at similar figures.

Centennial Prize Medal
The Beer That Satisfies
Established 1867
New York
Jacob Ruppert Knickerbocker Beer
Brewery Bottling 3rd Ave 90th to 92nd Street

THE first World's Centennial Exhibition of the United States was held at Philadelphia thirty-six years ago. A collection of more than 40,000 exhibits from thirty-seven different governments of the world brought over 10,000,000 visitors to see these wonders of human industry. The committee appointed to investigate and pass judgment on pure foods awarded the First Prize Medal to Jacob Ruppert, for having produced "The Beer That Satisfies."

JACOB RUPPERT'S Knickerbocker

The same efforts we demonstrated thirty-six years ago in brewing good, pure, wholesome beer have been doubled many times. We have kept pace with the events of time and progress by adopting the latest sanitary and scientific methods known to the art of brewing. We have reconstructed, rebuilt and enlarged our plants in order to meet the demand. We feel sure that the public appreciates our efforts, which appreciation we deem more valuable than the badge of honor bestowed upon us at the Centennial by men of science. We brew four choice perfections; two kinds of light and two kinds of dark beer. For sale by all licensed dealers and on draught at leading hotels and cafes.

POGGENBURG WINS BILLIARD MATCH

Percy Collins of Chicago Badly Defeated in 18.2 Balk-Line Game.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, former National champion, easily defeated Percy Collins of Chicago in the National amateur 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the Hanover Club in Brooklyn last night in 34 innings by a score of 400 to 212. The winner's average was 11 26-34, and his high run was 49. He played excellent billiards throughout, and his failure to make the high average of the tournament was due to Collins's safety play, for the Chicago youngster, when he saw he could not win, spread the balls about the table, and Poggenburg was unable to bring them together.

Poggenburg's position play last night was skillful, and he clicked off numerous points in several innings by close play in the lower panels. His masses were perfectly played, and his cushion shots were chosen with excellent judgment.

Collins was far off his game. He was erratic and pressed most of the time. Careless choice of shots and too speedy execution robbed him of many points. He was badly rattled from the start, and was never able to get down to his best billiards. Collins's average was only 6 8-24, and his best run was 35.

Poggenburg got an auspicious start, after Collins missed, and chalked up a fine string of 40 on his initial trial. Collins retaliated with 23. A miscue halted Poggenburg in the third inning, but he ran 30 in the next attempt, stopping when the balls were frozen. He had the balls spotted, but failed to drive the cue ball hard enough.

Collins played mediocre billiards and was noticeably nervous. He missed easy draws and showed a tendency to drive his cue ball too hard. Poggenburg had several bad innings after the fifth, but he got his stroke back in the twelfth and ran off 44. This was followed by 49 in the fifteenth, which raised his total to 185, while Collins was floundering at 94.

A nicely executed bevy of 41 in the twentieth inning sent Poggenburg's total to 240 and up to this stage he had averaged just 12 an inning. He followed this with runs of 18, 19, and 38, which landed him at the 315 mark. On his next turn at the table Poggenburg tucked away another collection of 35 and reached the 350 mark.

After making three misses in a row, Poggenburg reeled off a collection of 20, missing the balls consistently at the lower rail for a time, and then carrying them all the way around the table, using the cushions with great effect. A miss on a two-cushion shot cut short the run and spoiled Poggenburg's chance of capturing the high average of the tournament when it was within his grasp.

Toward the end of the match Collins played safeties, which baffled Poggenburg's efforts to coax them together. An ensemble of 17 in the thirty-second inning brought the Liederkranz cueist within one point of going out. A difficult two-cushion shot around the table in the thirty-fourth inning landed the victory. The score by innings:

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg—40 0 1 30 17 0 0 0 1 0 1 1 44 1 49 2 2 6 4 41 18 19 38 35 0 0 0 20 9 0 3 17 0 1—400.

Average, 11 26-34; high runs, 49, 44, 41.

Percy Collins—0 23 2 4 1 7 5 0 19 0 14 1 11 3 2 2 2 5 5 4 5 3 11 5 0 13 1 35 7 4 16 2 0 0—212.

Average, 6 8-34; high runs, 35, 23, 19.

Referee—Tom Gallagher.

Joseph Mayer played his best game of the tournament in the afternoon match with Dr. W. G. Douglas, defeating the Amateur Billiard Club player by a score of 400 to 241. Mayer made his highest average in this game, reaching 10 20-38. His high run was 56 in the twenty-sixth inning. A more meritorious performance by the Philadelphian was presented by several barren innings, when Douglas left the balls badly scattered, and Mayer was unable to collect them.

After assembling a bunch of 33 in the first inning, Mayer had four zero attempts in a row. The ivories were all over the table, and Douglas failed to get them together on his first three attempts. In the sixteenth inning Mayer began to go ahead at a great rate. Clusters of 19, 20, 30, 47, and 56 in a substantial rally which continued for more than half a dozen innings, boosted his total to 345 in the twenty-sixth inning. Douglas had only reached the 175 mark at this stage of the game. Mayer got a bit unsteady after his great rally, but managed to go out in the thirty-eighth inning.

Douglas's best work was done in the fifteenth inning, when well-judged close play gave him a run of 43. The score by innings:

Joseph Mayer—3 3 0 0 0 0 8 8 0 18 17 21 1 8 2 3 19 20 30 26 3 0 3 22 47 0 56 4 2 18 0 0 0 16 0 0 7 0 2. Total, 400.

Average, 10 20-38; high runs, 56, 47, 35.

Dr. W. G. Douglas—0 0 0 10 0 0 1 9 10 3 9 5 6 1 43 1 18 0 23 1 12 6 5 5 5 2 0 2 28 1 18 4 13 0 0 0 0. Total, 241.

Average, 6 19-37; high runs, 43, 28, 23.

Referee, Tom Gallagher.

In this afternoon's match Dr. W. G. Douglas will play Dr. W. E. Uffenheimer, and the evening match will be between Charles F. Conklin and Morris D. Brown.

Hoppe Makes High Run of 215.

Willie Hoppe defeated Edward Roudil, the amateur billiard champion of France, at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, last night, by the score of 400 to 52, in nine innings. The champion made a high run of 215 points and averaged 44 4-9. Roudil's best efforts netted him an average of 5 7-9.

Jones Wins at Three Cushions.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Feb. 5.—Jones of Philadelphia to-night defeated Farrar of St. Louis in a National League three-cushion billiard game by the score of 50 to 35, in 116 innings. Jones had a high run of 4 and Farrar's best effort was 3.

Staten Island Y. C. Election.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the Staten Island Yacht Club, one of the oldest boat clubs in the greater city, was held last night at Jazari's, in Rosebank, Richmond Borough. After the meeting the members enjoyed a dinner.

The following officers were elected for the year: Commodore, Arthur G. Hill; Vice Commodore, Frank D. Cadmus; Rear Commodore, William M. Duncan; Secretary, Guy H. Winters; Treasurer, Arthur L. Willshaw; Trustees, Edward F. Seguine and John D. Dardes. The Staten Island Yacht Club is composed of New York business men who live on Staten Island and who own many fine water craft.

MARSHALL DEFEATS NORTON.

First Game in Play of Triple Tie at Riverside Academy.

In the first game of the play off of the second triple tie in the Harlem Class B amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Baul's Riverside Billiard Academy last night Edward Marshall defeated "Chick" Norton by the score of 100 to 95, in forty-six innings. Both contestants were playing at a hanicap of 100 points, and the contest was close from start to finish.

Marshall gained the lead at the beginning of the game and maintained it until the twenty-fifth inning, when he was four points ahead of Norton, the score being 54 to 50. The latter corralled sixteen points in the next five innings, while Marshall only made twelve tallies. In the thirty-first inning Norton did his best work.

This evening Norton and F. W. Danbury will engage in the second game of the play off of the tie. The score:

Marshall—2 9 5 0 7 0 2 1 3 0 2 0 1 0 1 1 1 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 10 2 0 8 3 0 4 0 7 3 0 4 2 3 0 1 5 4 0 1 3 1. Total—100. High runs, 10 and 9; average, 2 8-46.

WEST SIDE Y. M. C. A. GAMES.

G. J. Falkner Wins Feature Event, 300-Yard Run.

The West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Fifty-seventh Street, held its bi-monthly series of athletic games in the clubhouse gymnasium last night. The programme consisted of six events and, while some of them were productive of keen competition, most of them did not come up to expectations.

The feature was the 300-yards handicap run, which was won by G. J. Falkner. Falkner started with five yards handicap and soon overtook, and passed the rest of the field. He held his advantage until half of the distance had been covered, with Gus Schnabel, the scratch man, a close second. Schnabel took the lead at this stage of the race and held it until near the finish line, when Falkner put on a final burst of speed, and beat him to the tape by inches only.

Vincent Haubner displayed good form in the 600-yards novice run and easily out-distanced the rest of the field. The summaries:

20-Yard Dash.—Won by G. J. Schnabel; G. J. Falkner, second; J. Breen, third. Time—0:03.

300-Yard Run, (Handicap.)—Won by G. J. Falkner, (5 yards;) G. J. Schnabel, (scratch,) second; J. Breen, (12 yards,) third. Time—0:35 1-5.

600-Yard Run, (Novice.)—Won by V. Hauber; A. H. Enroth, second; J. Diez, third. Time—1:25 2-5.

880-Yard Walk, (Novice.)—Won by M. Schwartz, (Scratch;) J. Breen, (45 yards,) second; M. Marra, (50 yards,) third. Time—8:06.

One-and-One-half-Mile Run. (Handicap.)—Won by T. Breen, (125 yards;) H. Ives, (130 yards,) second; A. Dolder, (scratch,) third. Time—7:52 3-5.

880-Yard Run, (Handicap.)—Won by R. I. Parkes, (15 yards;) H. Hocking, (scratch,) second; W. Weber, (8 yards,) third. Time—2:04 4-5.

FOOTBALL WILL BE BRILLIANT AND FAST

Walter Camp Sees Fine Prospects for Game Under the Revised Rules.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 5.—Walter Camp, athletic adviser of Yale, said to-day that he thought the change in the rules made by the Football Rules Committee was the best move that could be taken to make the rules of the game permanent. In speaking of the changes, he said:

"The changes had to be very marked in order that the offensive team be given a better chance. When the game is taken up again, the plays will be more brilliant. Under the new rules, there are some excellent chances for great plays. The scoring will be easier, and there will be more running. We have allowed the blocking of the ends going down under a kick. This is an important step. It allows the backfield man taking the catch to make some very pretty plays. The increase of the value of a touchtown from five to six points is another step in favor of the running game. "The elimination of the 20 yard zone is in my mind a splendid move toward the general simplification of the game. The changes were necessarily marked, but they help in the general simplification of the game. We have been hoping each year that rules from the time they were changed would be permanent. With the present changes the game will bring out more running and is generally simplified."

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—The changes in the football rules made by the committee at Saturday's meeting in New York, in the opinion of Western gridiron coaches, will result in a more spectacular game for the patrons and a great increase in scoring.

Whether the increase in the downs will cause a reversion to the old style bucking game was a much discussed point. The whole body of changes were regarded as a triumph for Western football, chiefly because of the retention of the forward pass. Among those commenting on the change to-day were Ralph C. Hammill, former University of Chicago star, Harry I. Allen of Northwestern, and Coach Clarence Herschberger of Lake Forest University.

Trinity College Football Dates.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 5.—Two new games are on the Trinity College football schedule, as announced to-night, one with Bowdoin at home, and the other with Tufts at Boston. Eight games will be played, as follows:

Oct 5, Worcester Institute of Technology at Hartford; 12, Bowdoin at Hartford; 19, Colgate at Hartford; 26, Amherst at Amherst; Nov. 5, New York University at New York; 9, Haverford at Hartford; 16, Wesleyan at Middletown; 23, Tufts at Boston.

SHARPE AND REED COACHES.

Cornell to Have Yale Man to Help Drill Football Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The Cornell football coaches for next year will be Dr. A. H. Sharpe of Yale and Dan Reed of Cornell, if the recommendation of the football field committee representing the alumni and the athletic council football committee is approved. These bodies have recommended the selection of these men to the athletic council, which is expected to act favorably on the resolution next week.

Sharpe is expected to coach the backfield, Reed the line men. Sharpe played on the Yale team, and has been a prominent football official since his graduation. Reed played on Cornell and has been head coach for two years. The modification of the coaching system contained in this recommendation follows the action of the athletic council in amending its regulations so that outside coaches could be engaged to help develop the Cornell football team.

Vanderbilt on Harvard Schedule.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 5.—Dr. William L. Dudley of Vanderbilt University, Southern member of the Football Rules Committee, who returned to-day from New York, stated on arriving here that the Harvard-Vanderbilt game at Cambridge Nov. 9 was a certainty.

Aeronautical Society Lectures.

Several interesting lectures will be delivered at the general meeting of the Aeronautical Society at the clubroom, 250 East Fifty-fourth Street, on Thursday night. Frederick Charavay will talk on the balance of aeroplanes; Matthew B. Seller's paper on propeller thrusts will be commented upon by Wilbur R. Kimball; Robert G. Ecole will deliver an address on the "Soaring Flight of Birds," which will be illustrated with lantern slides, and Stanley Y. Beach will review the recent Paris salon.

New Backward Jump Mark.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—A new world's record was set by S. Herman Leweek of the Douglas Park Club, who made a backward jump mark of 3 feet 6 inches at the Northwest Skating Club's ice races here yesterday. The previous record of 3 feet 5 inches also was held by Leweek.

CYCLISTS AHEAD OF RECORD.

Moran and Stol Start Sprint at Berlin, but Hill Cuts It Short.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The second day of the six-day cycle race was finished amid great excitement. There were many spurts, and in nearly every instance trailers lost a lap. Just before midnight the excitement was at fever heat owing to the tremendous spurt by Moran and Stol, they having gained nearly a quarter lap. Hill punctured his tire, which spoiled the fun.

The large crowd yelled their disapproval and for a while trouble seemed inevitable. The leaders. Folger, Moran, Root, Hill, Walthour, Comes, Halstead, Drabach, Ruett, Stol, Jacquelin, and Brocco, are riding well and are in excellent condition.

Thomas of the German team was obliged to discontinue owing to illness, one lap behind. Hoffmann-Ehlert are three laps behind; Suter-Suter, four laps; Nowack-Rattnick, Collius-Muenhner, five laps. Distance forty-eight hours, 955 miles, which is the German record.

Intercollegiate Basket Ball.

Fourteen games remain to be played in the intercollegiate basket ball series which will be finished Saturday, March 2. Four of these matches will be decided in this city, with Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, and Yale arrayed against Columbia on three of the occasions, and the last when Princeton and Dartmouth play. The schedule is as follows:

Feb. 7, Dartmouth vs. Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; 8, Dartmouth vs. Columbia, at New York; 10, Yale vs. Cornell, at Ithaca; 12, Pennsylvania vs. Columbia, at New York; 16, Yale vs. Columbia, at New York; 16, Cornell vs. Princeton, at Princeton; 17, Cornell vs. Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; 19, Princeton vs. Dartmouth, at New York; 20, Dartmouth vs. Yale, at New Haven; 22, Yale vs. Princeton, at Princeton; 23, Pennsylvania vs. Cornell, at Ithaca; 27, Columbia vs. Yale, at New Haven; March 2, Columbia vs. Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia; 2, Cornell vs. Dartmouth, at Hanover, N. H.

Mr. Hennessy Welcomes the Returning Humorist and Philosopher

"AH, shure, 'twill be th' fine occurrence," said Mr. Hennessy.

"Phwat?" asked Hogan.

"Th' ritur-rn iv Mar-rtin Dooley, official spokesman f'r th' universe an' Tiddy Rosenfelt, to th' columns of Th' New York Times. F'r siveral years th' readers iv that paper have been strugglin' to settle th' affairs iv th' nations without Mar-rtin's aid, and they're tired, Hogan. Th' droop iv exhaustion is on their faces, th' inertia iv overwork is in their limbs, and their language is somethin' awful. They want Mar-rtin Dooley to hilp thim out. How can a busy Times reader toil all day in th' marts iv trade or thereabouts, and thin spind th' hours between the whistle an' bed tryin' to riferee th' war in Tripoli? 'Tis impossible, Hogan. How can you or mesilf or inny other Times reader tell what Tiddy Rosenfelt manes when he says he didn't say exactly that but somethin' like it only quite diffrint if at all, you bein' a liar innyhow? 'Tis too much iv a tax on th' tired business man, Hogan, me frind.

"But Mar-rtin Dooley's not built that way. He can tind to his bar in th' Ar-rchey Road and shake a warnin' finger at this planet iv ours without battin' an eye. He's th' only man livin', Hogan, who can ixplain Tiddy Rosenfelt an' dr-raw a beer at wan an' th' same time. Ye know that well, Hogan.

"Ye go into Dooley's j'int. 'Phwat'll ye take?' says he. 'Oh, a bit of rye, and w'y did Mor-rgan Shuster leave Persia?' says you. 'Because he didn't want to be made into a Persian rug, an' phwat do ye want f'r a chaser?' says Mar-rtin. 'Sure, an' he was quite right—ginger ale,' says you.

"That's th' way it is with Mar-rtin Dooley. I niver saw his akel f'r measurin' out two fingers iv th' Suffrage Movement or blowin' th' collar off th' Tariff. So Th' New York Times readers is to be congratulated, Hogan, on havin' th' boon iv his pr-rofound wisdom wanst more. 'Twill be th' fine thing f'r thim to wake up iv'ry Sunday mornin' and find th' universe has been taken apart, oiled, rigulated, and provided with a new mainspring by Mar-rtin Dooley, an' all without ixtra charge!"

"It will," said Hogan. "There's minny things I want to know, but can't find out without Dooley's hilp. But, say, Hinnissy, maybe ye can tell me this yersilf: Phwat's th' real inside story iv that man Woodrow Wilson an' his expertickler frind Colonel"——

NEW YORK ATHLETIC CLUB FENCERS WIN

Sabre Experts Again Annex Team Championship from Fencers Club and Turn Verein.

The sabre champions of the New York Athletic Club again annexed the team titular honors last night in their gymnasium, where the Winged Foot trio were arrayed against the pick of the Fencers Club and the New York Turn Verein.

Of a total of twelve bouts contested the winners accounted for ten. The Fencers Club three won six of ten contested, while the Turners met with eight straight defeats.

The make-up of the teams was as follows: New York A. C., August G. Anderson, Fred J. Bryne, and C. A. Bill. Fencers Club, A. Van S. Post, Joseph Shaw, and E. H. B. Meyer. New York Turn Verein, John Allaire, George M. Reimherr, and Albert Strauss.

The best of fifteen points constituted a bout's length, penalties accruing for various infractions of the rules.

The gymnasium was comfortably crowded with many members of the fair sex, who apparently found much to enthuse over in the vigorous attack work of the sabre experts.

The stellar bout of the night was seen when Anderson, title holder of last year, and Shaw, the champion of 1910, crossed blades. Shaw tallied the first two points, and had his man 4-2 before the Winged Foot man set himself. They were tied at 5-all, Shaw getting the next point. Once again Anderson brought the score to evens, and finally won with two succeeding touches, after the hardest work of the series.

The New York Athletic trio had been going on famously up to this stage, a clean string of half a dozen victories having rewarded their efforts. Their winning career was temporarily checked when Meyer of the Fencers Club defeated Bryne by 9 to 5. Closely following this came another defeat for the New Yorks, when Shaw beat Bill, 9 to 3.

The veteran of the Turn Verein, John Allaire, met his first defeat at the hands of Fred Byrne with the touches 9 to 3.

What proved to be the cleanest cut work of the early bouts was seen when "Augie" Anderson, the National champion faced Meyer whom he beat by 10 touches to 9, getting in blows after parries which netted him 2 points in each instance.

Bill and Post had the longest drawn-out bout of the early session, seesawing in their attacks after three double touches had been made. Bill waded through his man after the score was 5-all, getting his required points while his opponent failed to improve his score.

In Anderson's bout against Strauss the former seemed too anxious to beat his opponent quickly with the result that the battle waged against him so strongly that Strauss needed but 1 point to win, the score standing 7-4. From this on Anderson carried the work to the Turn Verein man and finally won the "go" by a touch after some beautiful parrying, which brought his tally up to a winning stage with the score 8-7 in the N. Y. A. C. man's favor. The summary:

Post defeated Strauss, 9—3; Shaw defeated Reimherr, 9—2; Bryne defeated Allaire, 9—3; Anderson defeated Meyer, 10—0; Bill defeated Post, 9—5; Bryne defeated Reimherr, 8—7; Shaw defeated Allaire, 10—4; Anderson defeated Strauss, 8—7; Bill defeated Meyer, 8—7; Post defeated Reimherr, 10—2; Anderson defeated Shaw, 8—6; Meyer defeated Bryne, 9—5; Bill defeated Allaire, 9—2; Bryne defeated Strauss, 9—3.

Recapitulation.—New York Athletic Club team—Anderson won 4, lost 0; Bryne won 3, lost 1; Bill won 3, lost 1. Fencers' Club team—Shaw won 3, lost 1; Post won 2, lost 1; Meyer won 1, lost 2. New York Turn Verein team lost all bouts.

NOVEL EQUESTRIAN SHOW.

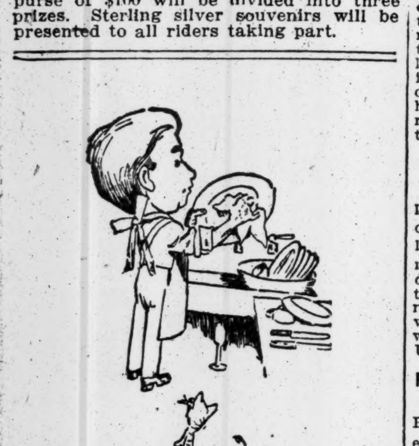
Silver Jubilee at Durland's Academy Will Attract Many Devotees.

Durland's Riding Academy will be the scene next Friday night of a testimonial to William Durland in commemoration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the school. One of the features will be the showing of four saddle horses that were ridden at the old academy a quarter of a century ago, two of which were in the opening music ride Feb. 9, 1887.

Earl, one of the veterans, a high-school performer, gave an exhibition at that time with Charles L. Railey in the saddle. Mr. Railey is coming from Lexington, Ky., to again show the horse, which is 33 years old. Still another of the quartet will be ridden by Mrs. John Gerken, who, as Miss Clara Ridley, showed the same animal at the opening ride.

It is expected that over 200 equestrians will take part in the grand entry, in which every year from 1887 to 1912 will be represented. George C. Clausen, then and now the President of the New York Riding Club, led the opening ride a quarter of a century ago in Columbus Circle, and will again head the column in the coming celebration. Judge Morgan J. O'Brien will make the jubilee address.

In addition to the other features, there will be a steeplechase race over a course of four furlongs, with six brush jumps and two water jumps. For this event a purse of $100 will be divided into three prizes. Sterling silver souvenirs will be presented to all riders taking part.



This clean-up started yesterday.

Underwear—nearly 5000 garments from our regular stock—all sorts.

COFFEY ON THE DEFENSE.

Freddy Hicks Defeats Californian Easily at Fordon A. C.

Two middleweights, Walter Coffey and Freddy Hicks, each heralded as the champion of his respective district, the former of the Pacific Coast and the latter of the Middle West, put up a rather uninteresting ten-round bout last night at the Fordon A. C., with Hicks the victor by a large margin.

Coffey is credited with a knock-out over Jack Denning, the local favorite, who managed to hold Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul boxer, on even terms a week or so ago, and, if anything like a line on the middleweight situation can be had from the calibre of work of the men last night, it certainly deteriorated from the days of Tommy Ryan and Jack O'Brien.

Coffey was a big disappointment to the crowd, and after the second round was forced to the defensive for the greater part of the ten rounds. The contestants' weight was announced from the ringside, Coffey weighing 157, while Hicks scaled 158 pounds at 3 o'clock. In the initial round neither man extended himself, although Hicks, the most rugged of the two, showed plenty of willingness to mix matters, while Coffey danced away and occasionally pegged in a light left jab, the round ending on even terms.

With the exception of the sixth and ninth rounds, which went to Coffey, after the opening one being even, the remainder were all in favor of Hicks. Coffey started off rather cool and collected, but his opponent, whose best blow was a hard overhand right, started to score at almost will, and repeatedly sent back Coffey's head when he landed his blows. For a time it looked as though Coffey was just taking the smashes to draw his man on and get a line on him, but after several hard ones landed and he failed to retaliate, it was evident that he was on the losing end.

Hicks was always ready and willing to take a blow in order to land one, and carried all the work to his opponent, who in return only stabbed back with light left jabs. Hicks was entitled to the honors in seven of the rounds by his steady forcing of Coffey around the ring and landing by far the better punches.

Coffey showed his best flash of work during the early rounds. In the third, by opening with two well directed left jabs, Hicks then became angered and came back strong landing a hard left to Coffey's jaw and two right hooks over the heart. Coffey devoted the greater part of the time of each round to sidestepping and causing Hicks to follow him. Both started the eighth with a flash, which promised some good work, going to a mix on the ropes where both pummelled away at the body, Hicks getting the better of it, as Coffey's blows lacked strength.

The ninth, the best session of the ten, was productive of some real work. Coffey caught his man on the ropes at the clang of the bell and with a short right hook opened a cut on his lips. Coffey missed a good chance here, he apparently being afraid to go after his man. In the final round both were afraid to mix matters in a clinch on the ropes, although Coffey showed the better work as his man was bent over and covered with both hands.

STORBECK KNOCKED OUT.

Frank Moran of Pittsburgh Again Whips Former South Africa Champion.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Owing to the unsatisfactory result of the boxing contest on Jan. 2 between Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, and Fred Storbeck, the ex-heavyweight champion of South Africa, a return match was fought at Blackfriars to-night.

In the previous fight Storbeck was disqualified in the seventh round for fouling. Moran proved the winner to-night in a hard-fought battle. Both received much punishment, and in the twelfth round the American floored Storbeck three times. Storbeck was unable to come up for the thirteenth.

Bill Brown Beats Jumbo Wells.

Bill Brown, a negro of Westchester County, gave Jumbo Wells of England a bad trimming at the second boxing show of the Yonkers Athletic Club in Turn Hall last night. The best Wells could do was to use his head as a battering ram. He kept fouling until Referee Jack Gorman had to threaten him. The bout went the full limit of ten rounds. There were four preliminaries, only two of which went the limit.

Gotch's Prodigy Wins Match.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—"Cyclone" Burns of Boston gave Mahmout, Gotch's Turkish prodigy, a hard match to-night in the main bout of a wrestling match, holding the Turk off for 41 minutes and 19 seconds before the Turk could secure his first fall. Mahmout secured a toe scissor and a bar lock for the first fall, and won a second fall in 14 minutes 10 seconds with a reverse Nelson. Dr. Ben Roller of Seattle, in the semi-finals against Nogert, the Boer, secured a fall in 3 minutes 5 seconds with an arm hold, head scissors and bar. Roller won the second fall in 26 minutes 35 seconds, with an inside crotch and half Nelson hold.

Virginia League Appeals Case.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 5.—An appeal from a decision of the National Baseball Association adverse to the Virginia League, was filed with Chairman August Herrmann of the National Commission to-day, by President C. R. Williams of the Virginia League. President Elmore Heines of the Roanoke Club accompanied Mr. Williams.

The appeal arose over the decision of the National Association allowing the Richmond, Lynchburg, and Danville teams of the Virginia League to depart from the league and organize a new league, known as the Virginia Association. They were authorized to secure other towns for the circuit. The break between the two factions came when Williams' resignation was requested by the above named teams while the other three teams of the league, Roanoke, Norfolk, and Petersburg, insisted that Williams continue. Williams claimed that according to the constitution of his league he was duly elected and that the ruling of the National Association is contrary to the rules of organized baseball.

Wanderers and Hockey Club Game.

The Wanderers and Hockey Club teams will play their second game in the Amateur League championship series to-night at the St. Nicholas Rink. The game will be interesting for the reason that if the Hockey Club players can defeat their opponents, the latter will lose their position as leaders in the championship race, leaving the Crescent Athletic Club team with that coveted distinction. The Wanderers were matched yesterday to play the Toronto University team here next Monday night.

Rockville Centre Beats Palace Arrows.

The Rockville Centre Club team defeated the Palace Arrows of Jersey City on Saturday evening by a score of 36 to 10, at Rockville Centre. Kash and Wilson put up a remarkable defense, only one field goal being scored by the visiting forwards. Herbert Ackerson returned to the game after a six weeks' absence, and with seven baskets played in old-time form. Jarrett, the veteran centre, was a tower of strength, all through the struggle, while the all-round work of young Whitehead and Edwards did much to hold the Jerseymen to a low score.

Want More Two-Year-Old Races.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 5.—Kentucky horse breeders and owners to-day prepared a petition to present to the racing associations at Juarez and Charleston asking them each to add one more race each day for two-year-olds. The petition will set forth that the high price of food and the hard Winter in Kentucky calls for encouragement to the producers and that unless more money is in sight breeders will stop producing youngsters.

AMATEURS WRESTLE AND BOX AT I.-A. A. C.

Preliminary Rounds Bring Out Large Entry for Two Days' Tournament.

The amateur boxing and wrestling tournament of the Irish-American A. C. opened last night at the club gymnasium, on East Fifty-ninth Street. The preliminary rounds of the 107, 114 122, and 133 pound classes in boxing and the 120 and 140 pound classes in wrestling were completed, but it was necessary to postpone the preliminaries in the 145 pound boxing class, also the 130 pound wrestling class until Wednesday evening. It is possible that the tournament may extend one more night than was planned. "Jack" Cantwell of the Sharkey A. C., refereed the boxing bouts, and the judges of boxing were John J. Walsh of the Pastime A. C. and "Billy" Waldner of the West Side A. C. John J. McHugh refereed the wrestling bouts.

The boxing classes were arranged according to the Olympic scale of weights, but none of the bouts last night showed any of the metropolitan champions in action. Four bouts were necessary to complete the first round in the 107 and 114 pound classes, with five bouts in the 122-pound class.

Wrestling champions, however, were much in evidence. L. Ruggerio of the Grace Athletic Club, holder of the Metropolitan title at 115 pounds, found considerable opposition in his bout against Nappires of the Green-American A. C., but finally won in 5:23. In the 140-pound wrestling, G. Peterson of the Harlem Y. M. C. A., who holds the metropolitan championship at 145 pounds, and the Y. M. C. A. title at 158 pounds, disposed of K. Imschner of the Greek-American A. C. in forty-eight seconds. The summaries:

120-POUND CLASS, WRESTLING.

S. Lotowitz, Educational Alliance, won from A. F. Mullinger, Boys' Club, on rolling fall. Time—2:08.

V. Vosen, Bronx Church House, won from J. D. Grozin, Harlem Branch Y. M. C. A., by default.

140-POUND CLASS, WRESTLING.

J. Pantazzi, Greek-American A. C., won from Y. Roccardo, National A. C., with crotch and bar hold. Time—1:10.

M. Nelson, Harlem Branch, Y. M. C. A., won from C. Brown, National A. C., with arm lock and crotch hold. Time—4:09.

O. Swenson, Swedish-American A. C., won from M. Stricko, National Turn Verein, Newark, with a rolling fall. Time—5:58.

C. Carlson, Swedish-American A. C., defeated A. Anderson, Norwegian Turn Society of Brooklyn, with arm and body hold. Time—6:51 1-5, (0:51 1-5 in overtime period.)

G. Steffins, Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., defeated A. Levine, Educational Alliance, with crotch and arm hold. Time—3:05.

G. Peterson, Harlem Branch, Y. M. C. A., defeated K. Mischler, German-American A. C., with half-Nelson and crotch hold. Time—0:48.

E. Haltman, Educational Alliance, won from A. Biedeman, East Side Y. M. C. A., by default.

G. Agamennen, Greek-American A. C., defeated S. Fleischer, Educational Alliance, with arm and body hold. Time—0:26.

L. Nelson, Norwegian-American A. C., defeated G. Strassimos, Greek-American A. C., with neck hold. Time—4:11.

H. Frymus, Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., drew a bye.

107-POUND CLASS, BOXING.

L. Kahn, Pennant A. C., defeated Harry Brooks, Irish-American A. C., in two rounds. Bout stopped by referee.

J. Goodman, Clark House, defeated Joseph Finley, Avonia A. C., in three rounds. Judge's decision.

E. Kothe, St. Bartholomew's A. C., defeated I. Selzer, Jefferson Baseball Club, in two rounds by a knockout.

T. Patterson, unattached, won from T. Perrone, St. Bartholomew's A. C., by default.

114-POUND CLASS, BOXING.

W. Vitalle, St. Bartholomew's A. C., defeated E. Leudke, unattached, in one round. Bout stopped by referee.

A. J. Coakley, St. Paul's Lyceum, defeated D. Burke, unattached, in three rounds. Judges' decision.

F. Weinburger, Harlem Branch, Y. M. C. A., defeated B. Grossman, unattached, in three rounds. Judges' decision.

Timothy Healy, unattached, drew a bye.

122-POUND CLASS, BOXING.

J. J. Puessey, unattached, defeated A. Davidson, unattached, in four rounds. Extra round ordered by referee after judges disagreed. Judges' decision.

J. McKenna, Knights of St. Anthony, won from A. Luffen, St. Bartholomew's A. C., by default.

J. Corzilius, unattached, defeated J. Hansen, Norwegian Turn Verein, in three rounds. Judges' decision.

J. Zuckerman, Educational Alliance, won from J. Mele, National Turn Verein, National A. C., by default.

133-POUND CLASS, BOXING.

L. Levy, Clark House, defeated J. Goldberg, Educational Alliance, in three rounds. Judges' decision.

G. King, St. Paul's Lyceum, won from A. Loriquest, Norwegian Turn Society of Brooklyn, in third round. Loriquest refused to continue.

H. Braun, New Polo A. A., defeated G. Budera, unattached, in three rounds. Referee's decision.

McFarland and Burns Fight To-night.

Packey McFarland appears to-night in a ten-round bout at the Fairmont A. C. against Kid Burns. The latter is a rising young lightweight who is sure to give McFarland a hard bout. In point of science Burns does not move in the same class with Packey, but Burns is a rugged and rushing boxer. He has no intention of boxing with McFarland to-night. He is going to keep after McFarland until Packey drops or he gets dropped by Packey. That McFarland realizes he is going against a strong youngster is evidenced by the great amount of work he has done for this bout. Rarely does Packey require more than three or four days' work. This time, however, he has been working daily during the last ten days. Burns is hoping that Packey will rough it with him. "If he does," says the west sider, "I will drop him sure. I like them to stand up and slug with me."

Phil Cross Whips Cy Smith.

Phil Cross scored an easy victory over Cy Smith of Hoboken last night in the main event of the Olympic Athletic Club by outpointing the Jerseyite in six of the ten rounds. The contest from the start was a fast one, with both boys standing up in the centre of the ring and exchanging rapid-fire blows, toe to toe. Smith at the bell in each round rushed out of his corner and was on top of his man, trying hard for body punches, but Cross usually got clear of him in quick fashion and then beat him to the punch almost all the time. When Cross started to lead his left jab the Jerseyite would cover up with both hands and rush in, head down, allowing his man little chance to do damage. Both boys plugged away through the first five rounds, the honors going to the east sider by his clever work, but in the closing half he opened up and made a strong finish, with Smith on the receiving end. In the eighth round Cross staggered Smith with a hard right, almost flooring him, but was unable to follow the advantage. In the last two rounds Cross landed all over Smith, but could not finish him.

DENVER GOLFER LOWEST.

Walter Fairbanks Leads Qualification Field at Palm Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—Walter Fairbanks, the Denver golfer, who is noted for his reliability, won the cup to-day in the qualifying round of the Lake Worth golf tourney, getting a 74, or bogey for the course. James R. Hyde of the South Shore Field Club, who equaled the professional record of 68 the other day, got a 75, and Walter Travis of Garden City was next lowest with a 77.

Fairbanks and Travis, who seemed not to strike his usual stride at any time during the round, each came in in 39 strokes, but Travis got into several minor difficulties on the outward course, which put him 3 behind Fairbanks at the turn. The latter, paired with R. H. McElwee, Onwentsia, started luckily with a 2 and finished 5 ahead of his partner. H. P. Farrington, Woodland, paired with Travis, also got a 79. Fifty-four cards were turned in, and included the following:

Walter Fairbanks, Denver, 74; James R. Hyde, South Shore, 75; H. P. Scott, Wilmington, 77; W. J. Travis, Garden City, 77; L. J. Hopkins, Skokie, 78; H. J. Topping, Greenwich, 79; H. P. Farrington, Woodland, 79; R. H. McElwee, Onwentsia, 79; I. A. Soutter, Apawamis, 80; V. C. Longley, Wannamoissett, 82; V. B. Hubbell, Englewood, 82; L. E. Martin, Allston, 83; L. M. Stumer, Ravisloe, 85; H. C. Bridgers, Country Club of Virginia, 85; A. F. Southerland, Garden City, 85; Sidney Scott, Wilmington, 85; Dr. W. S. Harban, Columbia, 85; W. A. Knight, St. Augustine, 85; P. H. B. Frelinghuysen, Morris County, 86; John Shepard, Jr., Wannamoissett, 86; Simeon Ford, Apawamis, 87; F. C. Vandusen, Minnikahda, 87; J. A. Rankin, Chicago, 87; H. K. Prettyman, Philadelphia, 95; J. P. Upham, Towanada Country, 95; W. L. Hodgkins, Midlothian, 99; Robert M. Fair, Midlothian, 99; W. J. Conners, Buffalo, 99, and W. J. Conners, Jr., Buffalo, 99.

H. G. PELL WINS KEECH CUP.

Novice Court Tennis Handicap Tournament Decided at Tuxedo Park.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The finals in the novice court tennis handicap tournament for the Keech Cup were played to-day on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club, and resulted in a victory for H. Gallatin Pell, after a very hard-fought match, defeating H. L. McVickar with a score of two straight sets, 10—8, 6—3. The summaries:

Preliminary Round.—Preston Davie, (15,) defeated L. J. Pooler, (30,) by default; R. L. Morris, (15,) defeated Lucius Wilmerding, (15,) 7—5, 6—4; H. Gallatin Pell, (half 15,) defeated F. Fitzgibbon, (scratch,) 0—6, 9—7, 6—2; G. M. Miller, Jr., (15,) defeated F. A. Juilliard, (half 30,) by default.

First Round.—H. L. McVickar, (half 15,) defeated H. Cammack, (half 30,) 6—3, 6—4; R. L. Morris, (15,) defeated Preston Davie, (15,) 6—2, 3—6, 7—5; H. G. Pell, (half 15,) defeated G. M. Miller, Jr., (15,) 6—3, 6—3; H. G. Chapman (half 30) defeated H. S. Hooker, (half 30,) by default.

Semi-Final Round.—H. L. McVickar defeated R. L. Morris, 5—7, 6—3, 6—3; H. G. Pell defeated G. Chapman, 7—5, 6—4.

Final Round.—Pell defeated McVickar, 10—8, 6—3.

De Witt Clinton Wins at Hockey.

The De Witt Clinton hockey team shut out the Cutler seven at the St. Nicholas Rink yesterday, 1 to 0. The game was fast and exciting throughout, and the Red and Black team played well. Carlin caged the puck after having received it on a rebound from a shot. Currie starred for Clinton, and was a tower of strength on the defense. The line-up:

De Witt Clinton.	Position.	Cutler.
Reincoff	Goal	W. Cohn
Taylor	Point	Hoyt
Currie	Cover point	A. Post
Livingston	Rover	L. Post
Littlefield	Centre	L. Cohn
Carlin	Right wing	Randebrack

Goal—Carlin, 11 minutes. Referees—Mr. Coffin, Cutler, and H. Littlefield, Clinton.

Queal Beats Shrubb in 12-Mile Race.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 5.—William Queal, the American runner, defeated Al Shrubb, the Englishman, in a close race of twelve miles at the Armory here to-night. The winning time was 1:06:17 4-5, the track, twenty-one laps to a mile, being slow. Queal, by a wonderful spurt, drew away from the English runner in the last mile, and crossed the tape about half a lap in the lead.

Kent Defeats Choate in Hockey.

Special to The New York Times.

KENT, Conn., Feb. 5.—Kent School defeated Choate School in a hockey game here to-day, by the score of 8 to 3.

BASEBALL GOSSIP.

Although Clark Griffith has the reputation of being an artist on the coaching lines in serving up conversation to rattle the opposing pitchers, he is going to have a worthy rival next season in Manager Harry Wolverton of the Yankees. Advices from the Pacific Coast say that Wolverton, as leader of the Oakland Club last season, was the terror of all the pitchers on that circuit.

Wolverton, according to a well-known club owner on the coast, owes much of his success to the fact that no matter how badly the game is going against him he is always ready with the motto, "Never give up."

"This never-say-die spirit won many games for Wolverton in Oakland," said the club owner. "He is fighting just as hard, with two men down in the ninth inning as in the first inning. He takes great delight in rattling young pitchers. He does it in a quiet way, but is very effective. There was one pitcher, Harry Suter of the San Francisco Club, who always collapsed before Wolverton's caustic coaching.

"Wolverton's personality is one of his strongest assets. He treats his players well and he expects them to show their appreciation in their work. There was perfect unison and harmony in the Oakland team all last season. One incident which occurred in that club last season shows the forcefulness of Wolverton's character. During the 1910 campaign Mitze and Thomas, catchers on the Oakland team, got into an argument about each other's ability. The two came to blows and the fracas had to be quelled by friends stepping between them. News of the fight reached Wolverton's ears. He said nothing about it to either man, but when the players were assembled in the clubhouse before the game he said:

"'Thomas and Mitze, stand up.' The two players reluctantly arose.

"'Now, shake hands,' said Wolverton.

"Without the least hesitation the two players shook hands and became the best of friends.

"That is the way Wolverton handles men and never gets into any trouble with them. He never criticises a player on the field. He will reserve his opinion until after the game when he will take a player aside and talk to him without humiliating him before the fans or players. The baseball fans on the coast predict that Wolverton will be a great success at the head of the Yankees."

The signed contracts of Roy Caldwell, the pitcher, and John Priest were received at Yankee headquarters yesterday. Caldwell won fourteen games last season and lost fourteen. It was his first year and he displayed much ability and a capacity for hard work. Caldwell can hit better than most pitchers, and last season had a batting average of .272. With he and McConnell of Rochester on the staff, the Yankees will have the hardest hitting pitching staff on the circuit. Last year at Rochester McConnell hit at a pace of .288. When Priest left the Yankees after an unsuccessful trial last season he played with the Richmond Club. Priest found his batting eye after he left the Hilltop and in the South hit the ball at a clip of .328, an accomplishment which has prompted the Yankees to give him another trial this Spring.

Another Giant joined the fold yesterday, Otis Crandall, the life-saving pitcher of the New York staff, sending in his autographed contract from Wadena, Ind. The seeming reluctance of "Rube" Marquard, who led the National League pitchers last season in signing his contract, has baseball fans guessing. Marquard has not yet had a conference with any of the officials of the club about his salary for next season, but it is expected that he will see Manager McGraw in a day or two.

The rules of baseball will be a bone of contention when the major league committees meet here next week. There is already a difference of opinion between the two Chairmen, John M. Ward for the National and Tommy Connolly for the American. The difference of opinion is about a play which occurred in Boston last season. With one out and a runner at first, the batsman hit for a home run. The ball was thrown to the catcher who touched out the man who had evidently scored from first base. The umpire called both runners out on the ground that the runner from first had failed to touch second base and that the batsman was out for following the runner in who had failed to touch one of the bases. Mr. Ward and President Lynch decided that the umpire was right in declaring both runners out. Mr. Connolly says the batsman should be allowed to score, for he was in no way responsible for the runner ahead of him not touching the bases in order.

The shocking news has reached the Chicago Cubs that Johnny Evers, the wizard second baseman, has the managerial bee and is trying to purchase a controlling interest of the Albany club of the New York State League. He wants to retire and become a bench manager. It is believed that Evers wants to make his club a "farm" for one of the big league clubs.

It is rumored that the throwing arm of Charley Wagner, the Boston Red Sox shortstop, has failed to come back, and that Manager McAleer wants to trade him for Rollie Zeider of the White Sox.

"Give him two years more and everybody will say that Jack Barry is the best shortstop in the business," says Billy Murray, the Pittsburg scout and former manager of the Phillies. "There's none of this flashy stuff about Barry. He covers all the ground in sight and does it so easily that people don't realize how really great he is."

THE THIRD TERM.

Good sense prevailed over ill-judged partisanship in the House of Representatives yesterday when, by a vote of 90 to 51, the House refused to take up Mr. SLAYDEN's resolution declaring against a third term for any President. Statutory enactment is not needed for all the sentiments in the hearts or minds of men. The Monroe Doctrine has held its own for nearly ninety years without the formality of enactment. Resolutions declaring and affirming the doctrine have sometimes been introduced, sometimes they have been passed, but never by both houses. What the whole Nation believes in needs no record in the statute books. A third term resolution directed against what was thought to be the impending candidacy of Gen. GRANT was passed by the House in 1874. Mr. SLAYDEN's resolution is to the same effect; it is equally superfluous.

This resolution was intended to head off the Roosevelt movement. Does any Democrat stand in particular fear of the Roosevelt movement? If the Democrats of the House have eyes to see, they must have observed that the Roosevelt movement is moving backward, not forward; if they have ears to hear, they must know that it took its origin not among the people but among a few active and most injudicious friends of Mr. ROOSEVELT. They have succeeded only in making it very evident that Mr. ROOSEVELT cannot be nominated, and that if nominated he could not be elected. Nor will the Roosevelt movement gain in strength or momentum from the breaking down of Senator LA FOLLETTE and the inevitable collapse of his canvass. Mr. LA FOLLETTE is entitled to sympathy. He has been overwrought, overstrained, and the giving out of his physical strength is the natural consequence. There has been much talk of an "arrangement" between the pretended supporters of Mr. LA FOLLETTE and the supporters of Mr. ROOSEVELT. It has been understood that Mr. LA FOLLETTE's strength was to be turned over to the Colonel. There will be nothing to turn over; there would have been nothing to turn over, even if Mr. LA FOLLETTE had not suffered misfortune. When B. GRATZ BROWN, HORACE GREELEY's running mate in 1872, mistook a slice of watermelon for a slice of bread and buttered it, he promoted the gayety of the Nation, but he did no harm to a cause already hopeless. Mr. LA FOLLETTE's cause was hopeless for the reason that he could have succeeded in getting the nomination only by splitting the Republican Party in two. The Republican Party is not going to be split in two. It is going to be pretty well united in support of Mr. TAFT, in spite of the flood of talk we have had about the Progressives and their intentions. The Roosevelt movement, even when reinforced by what there is left or what there ever was of the La Follette movement, will come to nothing.

Even if Mr. ROOSEVELT were within measurable reach of success in the Republican Convention, the Democrats would have no occasion to be very much alarmed about him. The distrust of him engendered by administrative acts that revealed his serious temperamental disqualifications for responsible office has not diminished since he left the White House. It is not now diminishing, but is increasing. The manner in which he has gone about the task of getting himself nominated for a third term has brought him into a yet deeper disfavor. Gen. GRANT might have accepted a third term, but he had some sense of the dignity of an ex-President's position. He was not all the time intriguing in secret to get the nomination while publicly professing not to want it. He did not take pains in 1880 to let everybody know of his dislike for President HAYES. Mr. ROOSEVELT's West Virginia letter is written upon the lines of many other statements from the same source. It is practically identical with one already published. It is a letter which reveals all through an eager desire to have the office thrust upon him, while it abounds in manifestly insincere professions of a desire not to be called. It has other qualities. "If the people feel that I am "the one man in sight to do the job, "then I should regard myself as shirking a plain duty if I refused to do it," is one of the phrases in this letter. What is the "job" that this man alone out of some 95,000,000 Americans is the only one competent to take charge of? There is no "job" involving great responsibilities that sane, conservative, and right-thinking Americans would like to have put in charge of THEODORE ROOSEVELT. This notion that the people might suppose him to be the one man in sight for the Executive task is, of course, only a manifestation of that extraordinary egotism that is characteristic of the man. It is not a quality that pleases or attracts the American people—quite the reverse.

A POISONOUS INDUSTRY.

CLAUDE KITCHIN, Representative of the Second District of North Carolina, tried to "laugh out of court" the case of the sponsors of the Esch Match bill at the hearing held to consider whether the Ways and Means Committee of the House should report this measure, which forbids the use of poisonous white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches by imposing a destructive tax. In the midst of his hilarity a figure more startling than Banquo's ghost and not less horrible appeared and confronted the committee. A man whose jaw and throat had been eaten away by the invading fumes as he bent at his work in one of the match factories stood a mute witness of their terrible effects. It is reported that Representative KITCHIN checked his light-flowing mirth, stared, shrunk back, and fled.

This bill is being treated in a cowardly way by the Ways and Means Committee. President TAFT asked the Diamond Match Company to give up its patent in the harmless sesquisulphide process, so that all its competitors might use it on equal terms, in place of the compound that produces the disfigurement of "phossy jaw" among their operatives. This the Diamond Match Company has done. The Republican House last year rejected the Esch bill to tax the poison out of use, and substituted a resolution to investigate the Diamond Match Company. The Ways and Means Committee of the present Democratic House is hostile to the bill because, forsooth, it is favored by a Republican President. The committee should favor the bill because its members are men first, partisans afterward, and because the President who recommended it is a man with the common instincts of humanity. Let us have no report withholding the measure from the vote of Congress by a sub-committee whose members meet in secret, and are ashamed to sign their names to the report.

CANADA AND THE WEST INDIES.

The proposal to dissolve or amend the Brussels Convention which controls the quantity of sugar on the European market has a connection with the American Continent which does not lie upon the surface. The proposal is to allow Russia to enlarge its exports of a commodity which is in excess of Russian consumption, and which is in deficient supply elsewhere throughout the world, or otherwise to dissolve the Conference. If the Conference were dissolved the apportionment of markets and the regulation of price by this international trust of Governments would be followed by an open market and the collapse of the industry. To this England has assented, and thereby has aroused passionate dissent in its cane-producing colonies of the West Indies. They were all but ruined by the flood of sugar which resulted from the bounty-giving policy, and have enjoyed an interval of comparative prosperity since the Conference restricted the exports by the bounty-paying nations. Now that their old poverty is in danger of returning their Governments and commercial bodies are passing resolutions as significant as those of the Western grain growers of Canada. They want to know what is to become of them if the mother country abandons them, and are looking about for other markets for their sugar and other sources of supplies which they buy where they sell.

Canada sees its opportunity and makes its bid for the trade thus thrown open to competition. It is calling a conference of the West Indian island colonials to which it is offering reciprocity on inviting terms, and the islands are accepting with gratitude. These events are passing without notice in the United States, although in an economic sense they are more our business than Canada's. The West Indies are under no obligation of loyalty to Canada, and in an economic sense are normally tributary to the United States rather than to Canada. This is a better market for West Indian sugar than Canada, and this is a better market than Canada wherein to buy. In selling and buying the West Indies must deliver past our doors, and must transport what their sugar buys back past our doors. The difference in freight alone is a profit, and there is no comparison between our consumption and Canada's, or between our quantities and qualities of whatever Canada has to sell. But the statesmen of commerce at Washington are allowing Ottawa to steal away the prize from beneath their noses.

This is the more singular because of the alluring precedents in the transformation of those portions of the Caribbean which we have touched with our magician's wand. In all the Antilles there is no prosperity like Porto Rico's, and what we have done for Porto Rico with profit to ourselves we might repeat in the Leeward and Windward Islands and all through the Spanish Main. The fruit now is riper than when it might have been ours for the taking, but the picking now is more difficult. Through all that region there is new life in anticipation of the near opening of the Panama Canal. Even St. Thomas is spending $7,500,000 on new docks, and would decline to take $100,000,000 for itself were we to offer it. The refusal is couched in somewhat wistful terms, as though the temptation would be delightful, but the danger to the loyalty to Denmark is nil. We are not tampering with the loyalty of the West Indies, any more than we were with Canada when we offered reciprocity. No more should an offer of reciprocity with the West Indies be a bribe against their British loyalty. A fair bargain is neither robbery nor treachery, and the West Indies might as well have an offer from us as from Canada. Jamaica has definitely declared that she prefers trade with us to a preferential arrangement with Canada lest we should take offense and the Jamaican banana trade should suffer. An arrangement with the sugar islands similar to that with Cuba would do more than provide us with sugar more cheaply—it would provide that outlet for our manufactures which we so urgently need. The time is ripe and the subject is as well worth considering as many which are engaging attention at the Capitol. The Canadian conference on reciprocity will be held in March, and after that it may be too late, unless a beginning shall be made betimes.

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL.

Congressman LAFEAN of Pennsylvania says, timidly, that many of his brethren think the plan of a Lincoln memorial from Washington to the field of Gettysburg would establish a "bad precedent"; other Federal appropriations for highways that the States should pay for would follow.

Congressman LAFEAN should consult the Hon. CHAMP CLARK. That weatherwise leader observes that this is a campaign year, that all the old soldiers favor a highway to Gettysburg and disapprove a fitting memorial in Washington, and that "there are the votes "of 2,000 old soldiers in every Con"gressional district in the North." To be sure the Commission has voted for a memorial in Washington, but why should a Congressman pay any attention to that—in a campaign year?

A CHINESE REPUBLIC.

So far as anything can with certainty be said to be characteristic of the Chinese, it would be the situation created by the decree of the Empress reported in our cable dispatches yesterday morning. The decree directs the Premier to establish a republic in co-operation with the Republicans of the South. If the decree be finally and formally issued, the prospect of a peaceful reorganization of the nation, difficult as the task may be, will be far more hopeful than at any previous time. It would fix the direction in which the efforts of both parties would tend. There would no longer be a question of one subduing the other. The dynasty, acting nominally on its own will, would surrender power while retaining its sacerdotal office, and the right of conferring titles; it would save its dignity, its "face," which most Chinamen would die rather than lose. The work of YUAN SHI-KAI and SUN YAT SEN would be to secure order, establish a practical administration, and preserve the territorial integrity of the nation,

Undoubtedly this is a tremendous problem, but there is some valuable evidence that it can be accomplished. On the one hand we have YUAN, a leader who has shown rare strength and intelligence in bringing the dynasty to its present determination while maintaining a show of force sufficient to prevent its complete destruction. On the other hand we have the Republican leaders who have developed capacity for united and vigorous action and have commanded resources, military and financial, that no one dreamed of a year ago, and we have these leaders maintaining an attitude of serious respect and confidence toward YUAN, while not yielding any substantial aim that they have announced. We cannot readily imagine a revolution on these lines in any Western country, and have only to contrast it with the English revolution in CROMWELL's day, the French upheaval, and our own civil war to see how radically different, how unprecedented it is.

We may bear in mind also the peculiar interior organization of China, which, in some ways, has been a school for self-government. Each of the eighteen provinces of the Middle Kingdom has, under imperial rule, had a curious degree of independence. The Viceroy, though appointed from Peking, has often been openly opposed to the policy of the Court. On the other hand, each Viceroy has been subject to substantial influence by his own people. No one of them would venture to change the rates of taxation, for example, without carefully consulting the chief men of his province, and where the people have felt themselves oppressed they have not infrequently effected a change through the simple process of assassination. Nor is popular sentiment unorganized. The guilds, and often still more the secret societies, have been agencies of very effective co-operative action against which the Imperial Government has been relatively powerless. Underlying these conditions, tending to a certain degree both of provincial independence and to essentially democratic ideas and conduct, there has been the influence of the examinations which for two thousand years have been the portal—open to all—to official and social station. By that portal YUAN, the peasant's son, entered on his singular career.

It is true that history, ancient and recent, shows the Chinese revengeful, bloodthirsty, passionate, and fanatical at times and on occasion, and these are not the qualities we look for in an orderly, united, and efficient democracy. It is only natural to infer that the removal of the dynastic central authority would aggravate the display of these qualities. But so far it cannot be said to have done so. There has been much bloodshed and looting, but the degree of control attained by the revolutionary leaders has been a surprise to the world, as well as the way in which they have used it. It would be foolish to expect that China can become readily or soon a republic of the Occidental type. It would be more foolish to deny that the nation has thrown up leaders of extraordinary ability and given them a support that a few months since would have been deemed incredible. An outcome now seems probable which then seemed utterly impossible.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Charges Not to be Ignored.

Much of public attention, we feel sure, will be given to, and certainly much is deserved by, the last paragraph of the statement in which MORTIMER L. SCHIFF, with evidently deep but well controlled emotion, reviewed the recent attempt to secure the release from prison of the man BRANDT.

The facts of the case, as Mr. SCHIFF presented them, are, indeed, as he calls them, "simple," but very far from simple should be the results of the accusation which, with unquestionable appreciation of its gravity, Mr. SCHIFF makes when he refers to the motives behind the attacks upon him and to the influences which led "public officials to take the position which, according to the newspapers, they have done." For this, he says, he "unfortunately has no redress," and he adds:

> I can only deplore that there should be public officials and other agencies which, for purposes of their own, are ready to lend encouragement to the circulation of such lying stories, emanating from such and equally disreputable sources.

In theory, at least, the law has redress for every wrong. In practice, as everybody knows, for some wrongs the law gives no redress at all, and for others, including, perhaps, those committed by the other agencies to which Mr. SCHIFF refers, it gives redress at a cost which a man of any sensitiveness recoils from paying. What he says about "public officials," however, would seem to make it impossible for the officials indicated to let the matter end with the Governor's decision not to free BRANDT.

These officials can hardly remain silent or inactive under a charge of this gravity, coming from a source of such responsibility; or, if they choose to remain silent, it should be possible to find other means of establishing and dealing with the conduct complained of.

Violating Rules of Exploration.

Much was heard, not long ago, about the ethics of arctic exploration. We learned, with some surprise at first, indeed, but with what later became cordial agreement and full acquiescence, that though anybody had a legal right to enter the waste places of the earth when and where he would—and could—common decency, to say nothing of that consideration for the feelings and aspirations of others which is courtesy, recognizes that an explorer acquires something like ownership of a particular route into the unknown as soon as he makes public announcement of intention to follow it. Also was it declared, and admitted, that, while races to a given goal by different routes were sometimes permissible, they should never be started merely for the sake of getting there before another man and so depriving him of the fruits of his long-laid plans and more or less heroic exertions.

By common consent among all the experts in such matters, in cases where first performance counts for everything, and repetitions of that performance for little or nothing, the man who lets everybody know that he is about to attempt the never-done-before thereby acquires a claim to be safe from competition until he has had a reasonable time in which to succeed or fail. Of course these unwritten rules and regulations are not confined in application to seekers for the poles. Mountain climbers also respect them—or violate them at the peril of their reputation for fairness.

Hence is it that both grief and indignation are justified by the news that certain residents of Fairbanks, Alaska, have been ill-mannered enough to set out for the top of Mount McKinley for no better or other reason than that Prof. PARKER is or hopes himself to be on his way to that same chillsome acuity. It is true that Prof. PARKER doesn't own Mount McKinley, and a suit for damages would not lie against the Fairbanks people, but the fact remains that he did have a near-right to make this Spring the first ascent of the peak if he could, and that the effort to make all his planning and expenditure useless, so far as the winning of glory is concerned, must be characterized as a small and mean piece of work.

It is unworthy of Alaskans, and still less worthy of Americans, if there be any difference between the two appellations. Men capable of doing such a thing should not be surprised by the general incredulity which their tale of success, if they bring one back, will meet. They don't deserve to win, and they do deserve that failure be attended by a large number of very unpleasant experiences amid the snow and glaciers.

An Addition to the Food List.

When petroleum was called "Seneca oil," its only known use was for rubbing on rheumatic muscles, and such little efficacy as it had for that purpose was due to faith and friction, not to any specific virtue. That wasn't many years ago, either, but since then it would be harder to tell what hasn't than what has been made of or extracted from petroleum.

The list includes illuminants, lubricants, and fuels of many kinds, as well as drugs and dyes already hard to count and promising to be innumerable. Now a scientist says that from this mysterious and enormously complex substance he feels sure he can produce a cheap and excellent food!

Those of us who have seen and smelled petroleum as it comes out of the ground will not have our appetites sharpened by this announcement, or wait with noticeable eagerness for the happy day when we can feast upon the new synthetic. Nevertheless, the statement is far from incredible, for the fundamental food elements are abundantly present in petroleum, and really the problem of making it edible is only that of clearing them of impurities and combining them in proper proportions.

Chemists and cooks work only too harmoniously, nowadays, and with the price of living what it is a good many of us will be willing at least to give the new comestible a trial when it reaches the market.

VERDICT ON THE LAUNDRIES.

Vaunted Canadian Scheme of Settling Disputes Has Not Worked.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dispassionate and accurate accounts have appeared in your columns of conditions in the laundry business in this city, and of the sworn testimony of employers and employes before the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration. Many who read those accounts were shocked to learn of the wages and hours of labor testified to, and they were more than a little worried by the public view of linen collected by "hand laundries" and washed in colored nets. We learned then that, unseen under our noses, a large industry was being carried on with open disregard of public health and fair standards.

Here, surely, was a case where the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, through power conferred upon it by statute, would be able to bring about a settlement by giving an authoritative statement to the public after careful inquiry. The public then would do the rest, as it is supposed to do under the much lauded Canadian scheme which many have said would end half our industrial woes if transplanted across our border. Public opinion would form and that "third and most important body to any strike" would compel a speedy settlement in harmony with official statement of facts in controversy and official placing of blame where blame was due.

But has public opinion done anything of the sort?

'APPROVED' HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

Not Properly Fitted, They Leave Twice a Year in Droves.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Haney of the Bronx hits the nail on the head much better than he thinks, perhaps, in his remarks to-day on critics of schools when he says "many are unable to get along in school." I happened recently on a copy of The Sun of June, 1880. It contained an editorial article dealing with many and various criticisms then being aimed at the schools and their product, which cost the tremendous sum of $4,000,000 a year.

The truth, of course, is that "education" is not for all nor for many, and too much has always been and is now expected from schools. The real ground of complaint now is, not that too few go to "high" school and stay, but that too many go, and then don't stay. They go in droves twice a year, and half of them leave in a month or two, because they find in all these "high" schools teachers of the Three R's, to give them there what they should have got in elementary schools, being graduated as "approved."

It is encouraging to find an educator making the statement that "nature equipped him differently," i. e., that many are unfit for education; yet in school after school, practically in all, these "drones" are promoted term after term under orders, and with c and d marks recorded against them regularly. They and their parents are surprised at their promotion; of course, it is implied that one school in the Bronx is O K in this respect.

New York, Feb. 5, 1912. R. P. GREEN.

HEALTH OF THIS PORT.

Congress Should Safeguard It as a National Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We read daily that Gov. Dix intends to send to the Senate the nomination for the Health Officer of the Port of New York, and as the nomination has as yet not been sent, the writer begs to suggest that instead of the nomination the Governor should send a message to the Legislature requesting it to pass a resolution petitioning Congress to have the Federal Government assume full charge of the management and control of the Quarantine in the Port of New York.

Safeguarding our National health is the most important function of the Government, and no other port in the United States can compare with the Port of New York in its importance. The day has passed long ago when State and local administration were adequate. The commerce of our great port has grown to so gigantic proportions—and has become National in its character—that it becomes imperative that it be conducted and regulated under National auspices.

The Influence of Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading Mr. Roosevelt's article on "Militant Suffragists," referred to in a TIMES editorial this morning, I was greatly impressed with one particular statement, which seemed to me to be a very good argument in favor of woman suffrage. He says:

> If the woman suffrage movement were to be judged only by those advocates of it who discredit themselves and their sex by disorderly antics in public and who assail the foundations of private and public morality in their endeavor not to raise the sense of moral duty in man, but to lower the sense of moral duty in woman, I should certainly oppose the movement. I call attention to the fact that they are prominent, not in the region where women suffrage does exist, but in regions where it does not exist.

If it be true, as Mr. Roosevelt says, that "disorderly antics" are found only "in regions where woman suffrage does not exist," would it not be wise to extend the franchise to the women of those regions, that they might have an opportunity to act as dignified as do their voting sisters in the States where woman suffrage does exist?

Dickens Centennial Bookplates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Honorary Committee of the Charles Dickens Testimonial Fund would esteem it a favor if you would kindly allow them to inform your readers that the Dickens centennial bookplates for insertion in volumes of the author's works may be obtained from the Honorary Secretary, Mr. Francis Arthur Jones, Hotel Cumberland, New York; price, 25 cents a dozen, post free.

The entire proceeds of the sale will be devoted to relieving the necessitous circumstances of the granddaughters of Charles Dickens.

Soldiers Don't Drink on Duty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Haywood urged in Carnegie Hall in his statements against Gov. Foss and the Massachusetts militia that one of the soldiers, while drunk, stabbed a Syrian mortally. Is it right that this should be accepted by an audience of average intelligence as the truth? It is impossible for such a thing to occur, for every soldier is inspected before being sent out on duty, and any evidence of the use of liquor is sufficient to bring the offender before a court-martial.

Warships and the Canal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the Panama Canal was proposed, we were told that on its completion the country would save on naval expenditures through the increased effectiveness and mobility of our war ships. Now that the canal is nearly completed we are told that we need a larger navy to defend the canal, and as an insurance.

INDIGENT DEMOCRAT.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 4, 1912.

MRS. BELMONT SEES WHITMAN

District Attorney Urged to Press Triangle Shirtwaist Fire Indictments.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont appeared at District Attorney Whitman's office yesterday and gave the Prosecutor a copy of the resolution adopted last Friday by the Woman's Trade Union League, which held a mass meeting in Carnegie Hall and urged the trial of Isaac Harris and Max Blanck on the six remaining indictments which charge them with manslaughter in the first and second degrees in connection with the death of 147 persons in the fire at the Triangle Waist Company's lofts on March 25 last.

Mrs. Belmont was accompanied by Filbert E. Roe, an attorney at 55 Liberty Street, formerly law partner of United States Senator La Follette, and Miss Lenora O'Reilly, Secretary of the Woman's Trade Union League. In speaking about the matter Mr. Whitman said:

"I shall probably move the cases of Harris and Blanck for trial in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court before Justice Seabury, who will sit on Feb. 13. Then again I might move it in General Sessions. Of course there is the question of former jeopardy involved, but the presiding Judge can decide that question after he has heard the arguments on both sides."

DINE CARDINAL O'CONNELL.

600 of Boston's Clergy at Luncheon in His Honor.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—The first of the formal functions outside the Cathedral in connection with the return of William Cardinal O'Connell from home with his new honors as Prince of the Church took place to-day at a luncheon to his Eminence by 600 of the clergy of the Archdiocese at the Hotel Somerset. The address of the Cardinal, which followed his toast to the Pope, emphasized the close relationship between Pope and Bishop.

Bishop Joseph G. Anderson, who welcomed the Cardinal on the Canopic early Wednesday morning, presided at the luncheon.

Mgr. Peter Ronan of Dorchester delivered the "Tribute to the Senior Clergy," the Very Rev. John B. Peterson of Bridgton "To the Junior Clergy." Mgr. P. G. Supple, a member of the Cardinal's suite in Rome, upon "Federation"; the Rev. David J. Toomey, editor of The Pilot, "The Catholic Press," and Mgr. A. J. Teeling of Lynn on the "Diocesan Societies."

FARM STUDY IN THE SCHOOLS

Agricultural Advisory Board Recommends It to Dix.

ALBANY, Feb. 5.—Further introduction of agricultural instruction in the public schools, development of farmers' institute work at central points throughout the State, and a cessation of the establishment of special State agricultural schools are recommended by the State Agricultural Advisory Board in a report made to Gov. Dix to-day.

In reference to a further introduction of agricultural instruction in public schools the board says:

"Plans should be perfected as rapidly as possible for maintaining agricultural instruction with larger allotments, and an allotment should be provided for each union or high school teaching a class of not less than ten in agriculture and for the common district school giving an approved course in nature study."

DISCOURTESY IN PANAMA.

A Reply from the Publisher of The American Exporter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of Jan. 30, in discussing an editorial in the current issue of The American Exporter relative to discourtesy on the part of the United States revenue, immigration, and health officials, brought into contact with foreign travelers, misinterprets The Exporter's remarks and the facts on which they were based.

For instance, THE TIMES would make it appear that The American Exporter would rather see lax medical inspection at Panama than to have Latin-American merchants antagonized toward the United States, with possible loss of trade. No one wishes to belittle the wonderful sanitary work accomplished in the Panama Zone, a work which has reflected so much honor and credit upon our country. What the country's export interests would like to see, however, is the utmost tact and courtesy displayed in carrying out the necessary examinations and restrictions at Panama, especially so as regards the numerous Latin-American merchants who are forced to pass through the zone on their way to New York. Such tact and courtesy toward Latin-American merchants the writer has found wanting both at Panama and on the steamer's arrival at New York. Indeed, the attitude of the petty officials has been so exasperating as to materially prejudice foreign merchants against things American and to make American citizens grown accustomed to the courtesy of similar officials in South America blush for the manners of these officers of their own country.

Latin-Americans who have been detained in the quarantine station off Panama have made bitter complaints regarding their treatment there, claiming that they have been discriminated against in favor of American inmates of the station, that they have been subjected not only to great discourtesy, but to genuine inconvenience, if not suffering. Of this I cannot speak from personal knowledge, but only from the statements of South American friends and from statements published in The Panama Star and Herald. These complainants, by the way, did not, as THE TIMES surmises, come "from a port where modern sanitation is unpracticed, if not unknown—where deadly fevers are regarded as dispensations of Providence * * * and where the bubonic plague has been allowed to retain as well as to gain a foothold." On the contrary, two men who have told me of their experiences there were professionally interested in sanitary affairs, one being a physician and the other a large importer of medical supplies. They were not residents of the tropic zone at all, and they were thoroughly aware of the necessity of strict sanitary regulations, but rightly believed that they were entitled to courteous treatment during their enforced stay in quarantine.

THE TIMES expresses at some length its opinions of the Latin-American temperament. These opinions are unfortunately all too commonly held among North Americans, and the modification of these opinions is very necessary to the best political and commercial interests of our country, especially on the part of the daily press and of Government officials, whose duties bring them in contact with Latin-American travelers.

THE PARDONERS.

Ye have spoken of crime and the doer,
And the mission of mercy ye do;
But I think that your words rang truer
Had ye spoken of Justice, too;
Ye have told of the years that harden,
With their vengeance so heavy and grim,
But the dead—in his grave—his pardon?
Did any one speak for him?

Ye have spoken of life and forgiving,
And the bars and the shackles grim;
But the dead—in the tomb—is he living?
Have ye opened the bars for him?
Ye have told of the friends and brothers
And sisters these years condemn;
But the widowed and orphaned—those others—
Did any one speak for them?

Mercy—Aye, she sits smiling—
Well could she do no less;
But Justice—are ye beguiling
Her into forgetfulness?
Mercy—Aye, she has her hundred
To plead, while the wet eyes blur;
But Justice—who sat and wondered—
Did any one plead for Her?

HISTORY MUSEUM ENRICHED BY GIFTS

J. P. Morgan, Jr., Presents to the Trustees the Famous Bailey Collection of Meteorites.

CATLIN PAINTINGS DONATED

Pictures Include Nearly Four Hundred Canvases of Indians Made in the West Years Ago.

Two important gifts to the American Museum of Natural History were announced last night at the annual meeting of the Trustees at the Union Club, Fifty-first Street and Fifth Avenue. From Miss Elizabeth Catlin, through the generosity of Ogden Mills, have been acquired nearly 400 pictures of Indians painted by her father, the late George Catlin, on the prairies between the Mississippi and the Rocky Mountains, and J. P. Morgan, Jr., has presented to the museum the Bailey collection of meteorites, which is considered one of the most important ever formed in this country.

The Catlin pictures were painted between 1832 and 1840. Mr. Catlin, who was for a time a Philadelphia lawyer, gave up the courts for the pursuit of art and painted the portraits of Mrs. Madison and Gov. De Witt Clinton now in the City Hall. He was well known for his miniatures, but was attracted to seek his subjects in the West by the sight of a deputation of Indians passing through Philadelphia.

For eight years he lived on the prairies and studied at close range forty-eight different tribes. He made sketches on the spot of their costumes, their ceremonies, and their habitations, and was able to get permanent records of these while the Indians were still practically unaffected by civilization.

His work was recognized by those who also had to do with the aborigines in their wild state for its absolute faithfulness. An artist who also had gone beyond the frontier to seek subjects for his art thus wrote of them:

> I have known Indians for forty years, and have seen many who were little influenced by contact with the white man, and I can vouch for the truthfulness of these pictures. They are, outside of Bodmer's and Capt. Eastman's pictures, the only record we have of the Plains Indian, and are valuable as a pictorial record. I want to speak of another view which the scientist does not appreciate. These Catlin pictures are the most decorative Indian pictures that have ever been painted. There is not a picture in the collection I would not be proud to hang on my wall. They have a grand beauty of line composition, a great harmony of tone that makes them very valuable as works of art. They have the scenic charm of a Japanese print.

In addition, Mr. Catlin painted a number of pictures of South American Indians. He visited the Southern Continent at the suggestion of Alexander von Humboldt, who was so impressed by his work in North America that he urged him to extend his travels. In 1852 Catlin traveled to Venezuela and the valley of the Amazon. For six years he explored South America, visiting all the tribes on the Pacific Coast, wandering through Yucatan and portions of Old Mexico, and afterward ascending the Parana River and then traversing the entire coast line of Patagonia through the Straits of Magellan.

The meteorites collected by S. C. B. Bailey number 300. The most important fall represented is that known as Tomhannock, on account of its having been found at Tomhannock Creek, near Troy. Only six meteorites have been discovered in this State, four being of iron and two of stone. Five of these have been cut up and distributed through the museums of Europe, but the main mass of Tomhannock remained with Mr. Bailey and is now owned by the American Museum of Natural History.

It is an aerolite and was discovered in 1863. Originally it weighed three and one-half pounds, was well rounded, and was covered with the fusion rust characteristic of meteorites. About one-tenth of the original mass was cut off and distributed among other museums, but nine-tenths are included in the Bailey collection.

These elections were made to different grades of membership: Ogden Mills was made an associate benefactor on account of his gift of the Catlin Paintings, Mrs. Fannie Dyckman a patron in recognition of her in the preparation of a bibliography of fishes; the Duke of Bedford was made a fellow because he gave the Museum two specimens of the Prejevalsky horse; Anthony R. Kuser a fellow as he offered to present a collection of pheasants; Lieut. George T. Emmons and George B. Grinnell were elected honorary fellows in recognition of the information the former gave as to the Indians of the Northwest Coast and the services the latter afforded in connection with the Department of Anthropology; Sir Ernest Shackleton was made a life member as an eminent explorer as well as in return for his gift of a collection of minerals from the south polar region; Leonard C. Sanford was elected a life member in return for his collection of birds.

These officers were re-elected: President, Henry Fairfield Osborn; Vice Presidents, Cleveland H. Dodge and J. P. Morgan, Jr.; Treasurer, Charles Lanier, and Secretary, Archer M. Huntington. The outgoing trustees, Charles Lanier, Anson W. Hard, William Rockefeller, and Seth Low, were also re-elected.

In his annual report the President spoke of the necessity of increasing the endowment fund.

The Trustees were entertained at dinner before the meeting by Thomas De Witt Cuyler of Philadelphia. Those present were: Henry F. Osborn, President; Joseph H. Choate, one of the founders; Attorney General Wickersham, J. P. Morgan, Jr., Ogden Mills, Madison Grant, George S. Bowdoin, A. D. Juilliard, Archer M. Huntington, Felix M. Warburg, James Douglas, Arthur Curtiss James, John B. Trevor, Percy R. Pyne, Dr. Walter B. James, and Park Commissioner Stover. Mayor Gaynor was prevented from attending by a delay of his train.

HONORS FOR MISS RICHMAN.

Parents of School Children Entertain Her at a Reception.

The Parents' Association of Public School 4 in the Bronx gave a reception in the school assembly room last night to District Supt. Julia Richman. The children gave folk dances and fancy drills and sang songs.

Assemblyman Fleck spoke on the necessity of parents co-operating with teachers if children were to receive the full benefits of the public school system.

Henry Morgenthau, who contributed largely to the erection of the Bronx Settlement House, spoke of the benefits to be derived from a common meeting place.

Miss Richman said that public opinion should be aroused on the subject of school problems. Among these she mentioned congestion and indifference on the part of parents.

A reception followed the exercises. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Morgenthau, Hutchins Hapgood, Prof. and Mrs. Duggan of the City College, Henry Eckstein, and Prof. Paul Hanus.

ASSAILS HONOR SYSTEM.

Prof. Schelling Calls It a Failure at University of Pennsylvania.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—Prof. Felix E. Schelling, head of the English Department in the University of Pennsylvania, declared to-day that the honor system as applied at the Wharton School of the university lowers the moral standards of the students, and that the system is a failure. In a letter in the current issue of The Pennsylvanian Prof. Schelling says:

"To ask a man to promise not to cheat is to assume not only the possibility but the probability that he will cheat, and therefore destroy his reputation for honor. A gentleman is always on his honor, and to assume the necessity of putting him to his promise is to lower the whole standard of his moral system."

The letter of Prof. Schelling is looked upon as a direct slap at certain controlling powers in the university.

HAMILTON FISH TO WED MRS. AMSINCK

His Engagement to Widow of Gustav Amsinck Will Likely Be Announced This Week.

BRIDE-TO-BE TWICE WIDOW

Her First Husband Was James H. Beekman—Mr. Fish, ex-Assistant U. S. Treasurer, Is a Widower.

It was reported yesterday that the engagement of Hamilton Fish and Mrs. Florence Amsinck, widow of Gustav Amsinck, would be formally announced this week. It was a topic of conversation yesterday at several teas, and was no longer private information. Mrs. Amsinck herself was out last night, and could not be reached, and Mr. Fish and his family are living out of the city, so that no formal personal corroboration of the engagement could be obtained, but it is generally accepted as a fact among intimate friends of both Mrs. Amsinck and Mr. Fish.

Mrs. Amsinck's first marriage, when she was Miss Florence Delaplain, was to the late James Hud Beekman. He was a member of the old Beekman family, a brother of Cornelia Beekman and of Gerard Beekman. A year or so after his death, Oct. 1, 1905, at Geneva, she married Gustav Amsinck, a banker, who died nearly two years since. She has lived abroad a great deal and is extremely popular among both men and women, and with the younger, as well as the older set, because of her natural, unaffected manners and gracious personality.

Mr. Fish, who was Assistant Treasurer of the United States under Roosevelt, is a brother of Stuyvesant Fish and the late Nicholas Fish, and was named after his father, the late Hamilton Fish, at one time Secretary of State under Grant. Mr. Fish was Congressman for several years, and for some time lived in Washington. His first wife, who died twelve years ago, was the beautiful Miss Emily Mann of Albany. He has five children—Hamilton Fish, Jr., Miss Janet Fish, and Miss Helena Fish, the latter a débutante of this season; Mrs. John Cutler of Boston, and Mrs. William Lawrence Breese of San Mateo, Cal.

DANCE FOR MISSES HAMILTON.

Baroness de Graffenried Entertains for Her Daughters at the Plaza.

The Baroness Raoul de Graffenried entertained last night for her two daughters by a former marriage, the Misses Gertrude Ray and Violet Loring Hamilton, by giving a small dance in the small ballroom at the Plaza. Miss Violet Hamilton is one of this Winter's débutantes, and the guests included a number of this Winter's buds, as well as several young married couples.

The Baroness, in blue mousseline over Provence blue satin; Miss Hamilton, in pink chiffon over pink, and Miss Violet Hamilton, in white lace over white, with touches of rose, received the guests, who numbered perhaps seventy in all.

The decorations were pink, pink roses being used on the tables and palms throughout the corridors. There were clusters of pink roses for the girls. A buffet supper was served at 12 o'clock.

The guests asked included Mrs. Clermont L. Best, the Duchess de Chaulnes, the Misses Jean Morris, Vieva Fisher, Louisa Johnson, Anna Lyman Short, Alice L. Abbot, Mary Kane, Elise Robinson, Caramai Carroll, Constance Kane, Edith Gunther, Beryl Kane, Elizabeth Thompson, Louise Freeman, and Marguerite Shonts.

Among the young married couples were Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stout, Mr. and Mrs. William Dominick, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Durant, and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Stahl.

Also J. C. Anderson, Bayard Dominick, Edward Bull, J. Ellis Fisher, Morris Groves, David Keppel, James Pell, Count Montyglan, Lawrence Atterbury, Dr. Rudolph Roessler, Sidney De Kay, Jonathan Thompson, Burnett Ruggles, George Brokaw, John Clinton Gray, Jr., Henry G. Gray, Mr. Von Geurns, and Mr. Muller-Ury.

MRS. VANDERBILT'S DANCE.

Russian Dancers Appear in Ballroom Made to Resemble a Theatre.

Mrs. Vanderbilt gave a large reception and dance last night at her residence, 2 West Fifty-eighth Street. A feature of the evening's entertainment was the appearance of the Russian dancers, M. Mikial Mordkin, Mlle. Lydia Lopoukowa, and Mlle. Bronislowa Pajitzkaia, who are now at the Winter Garden.

The guests, numbering 375, were asked for 10 o'clock. Many came from the opera and others from small dinners preceding the dance. The Fifty-eighth Street entrance was used. Mrs. Vanderbilt received her guests in the reception room near the head of the grand stairway adjoining the ballroom.

There were quantities of cut flowers everywhere, Spring flowers, such as jonquils, violets, forsythia, and plum blossoms, prevailing. The big stone hall, besides the wall electrollers, was illumined by wax candles in immense bronze candelabra, with touches of green, violets growing in silver urns on the huge marble tables.

The ballroom, one of the largest in town, was made to resemble a theatre, and heavy gilt chairs were arranged on a slightly slanting floor. The orchestra played on an improvised platform at one end of the ballroom, and the Russian dancers appeared in their ballet divertissements on the ballroom floor, with the guests arranged in a sort of amphitheatre style about them.

The dancers made their appearance about 11:30. The first number was Rubinstein's Valse Caprice, danced by M. Mordkin and Mlle. Lopoukowa, followed by Grieg's Anitra Dance, which Mlle. Pajitzkaia, who is Mr. Mordkin's wife, danced to the delight of the assemblage. Then came Drigo's Polka Xylophone, danced by Mlle. Lopoukowa, after which Mr. Mordkin appeared in his Bow and Arrow dance. Then came Mlle. Pajitzkaia in dance variations, after which Mr. Mordkin and Mlle. Lopoukowa gave the Bacchanale.

The scene in the ballroom during the dance, was one of picturesqueness and brilliancy. There was a wonderful display of diamonds and many elegant costumes were worn. The ballroom made an appropriate setting for the scene, being of the Louis Quatorze style, with decorations of gold, and a gorgeous fresco forming a frieze, with electric bulbs concealed in the hearts of crystal flowers.

A seated supper was served after the entertainment in the dining room, which opens off the ballroom, on the west end of the house. The tables, seating eight and ten, were brightened with Spring flowers and roses, and they were extended into the breakfast room and several small rooms opening off the main dining room.

While the guests were at supper, the ballroom was cleared of the chairs and platform. It was about 1 o'clock when the general dancing began in the ballroom, and it continued until late, a second supper being served.

MISS HARRISON A BRIDE.

Granddaughter of Late President Harrison Married to Harry A. Williams, Jr.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Miss Marthena Harrison, whose grandfather and great-grandfather filled the Presidency of the United States, was married this evening to Harry A. Williams, Jr., of Norfolk, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Harrison of this city. Only a family party witnessed the ceremony, at which the Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, of the Church of the Covenant, officiated.

TABOR—LEITCH.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Tabor of 33 Linden Avenue, Flatbush, Brooklyn, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Louise Marietta Tabor, to Stewart Leitch. The engagement was announced at a luncheon which Mrs. Tabor gave for young people on last Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Juliana Deyo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Deyo, to the Rev. John Brownlee Voorhees, will take place to-day in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Minturn will give a small theatre party this evening, followed by a supper for Mrs. Minturn's débutante sister, Miss Julia Robbins.

Mrs. Warren R. Houghtaling of 17 East Thirty-fifth Street is giving this afternoon a tea for her daughter, Miss Irene Houghtaling.

The third and last for the Winter of the Junior Cotillions will take place at Sherry's to-night.

Mrs. Edward Lyman Short gave a luncheon of twenty covers yesterday, followed by bridge.

Mrs. Henry W. Eaton of 150 West Seventy-fourth Street is giving a series of dinners for her daughters, the Misses Florence and Isabel Eaton. The last was on Friday night before Mrs. Harkness's dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Nott Allen are at the Sherwood Studios for the Winter, and gave a tea there last week for Miss Edith Smith.

PINK ROSES FALL ON DANCERS

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Warner Entertain in Garden at Sherry's.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Mott Warner entertained at Sherry's last night with a rose dance for Miss Ada Bryce-Gray, the débutante daughter of the late Bryce Gray and of Mrs. Henry Belt.

The small ballroom suite was taken for the dance, and Radience roses were used in abundance.

Mrs. Warner, in apricot satin partially veiled by a white lace tunic embroidered in rhinestones and wearing pearls, was assisted in receiving by Miss Bryce-Gray in white in the pink reception room.

There was general dancing until midnight, when a seated supper was served in the banqueting suite, turned into a rose garden. During the last dance before supper a shower of pink roses fell from the ballroom ceiling over the dancers, and rose colored lights were turned on. There were no favors.

The supper room had its walls covered with rose vine trimmed trellises, bay trees were placed in the corners, and a green turf floor spanned by a large arch covered with vines and roses, completed the transformation into a garden, and rose shades covered the lights.

After the guests were seated a small cart and pony were led by a diminutive darkey into the garden. In it were a shepherdess and shepherd in appropriate costumes, who descending from the cart promenaded around the garden singing snatches of operatic airs and old time ballads. Darkey minstrels singing ragtime and Southern melodies alternated with these.

A number of dinners preceded the dance and many of the guests came on from or went on to other dances of the evening, which included Mrs. Vanderbilt's, Mrs. Welsh's, and the Baroness de Graffenried's.

Among those who accepted were the Misses Josephine Nicoll, Frances Wyeth, Urling Sibley, Helen Huntington, Gertrude Livingston, Marion Ashmore, Mildred Holmes, Charlotte Wyeth, Caramai Carroll, Rosette Ford, Mary Bovee, Katharine Force, Louisa Johnson, Marjorie Cleveland, Sarah Manice, Gwendolen Condon, Elizabeth Thompson, Elizabeth Sherman, Helen Coster, Rosamond Sherman, Hazen Symington, Estelle O'Brien, Vera Van Beuren, May Vogel, Cornelia Clifford Brown, Cornelia Hoyt, Harriet Lummis, Genevieve Sanford, Thelma Violett, Mildred Van Schaick, Annette Weaver, Mildred Johnson, Katharine Moore, Marjorie Weeks, Voueletti Proctor, Marjorie Dodd, and Justine Ingersoll.

The young married people included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolcott Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, and Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward Phelps.

Other guests were M. Taylor Pyne, Jr., Gavin Hadden, William de F. Manice, Seth Bartow French, Fitz John Porter, Grafton H. Pyne, W. Sargeant Bouvier, Lawrence and Charles Butler, Walbridge Taft, Lothrop Randolph, Lawrence Atterbury, Angier Duke, J. Harry Alexandre, Jr., William Bruce Brown, Oliver Wagstaff, Dewees Dilworth, Langdon Bogert, William K. Dick, Bewton Rae, Colles Coe, William C. Cammann, G. W. Vanderhoef, Jr., Harvey S. Durand, Charles H. Mellon, Clarence Lummis, Gerald Onativia, Dallas Corbiere, David Barrows, James W. Maitland, George Brokaw, Hamilton Hadden, Francis Larkin, Edward Shippen, 2d, De Courcey Fales, Bryce Wing, Shipley Jones, W. C. Bowers, Frederick O. Fearing, Maitland Dwight, Roderic Wellman, L. L. Delafield, Jr., W. Fellowes Morgan, Jr., Mangus Swenson, Noel Bassett, and others.

Dinner Dance for Miss Welsh.

Mrs. S. Charles Welsh gave a small dinner dance last evening at her residence, 27 West Eighty-first Street, for her daughter, Miss Ruth Welsh, one of last year's buds.

There was a dinner of fifty covers, the guests being seated at small tables decorated with pink roses. Afterward about twenty-five more young people came in for the dancing, which was informal. The girls were chiefly the débutantes of a year ago.

Among those invited were the Misses Lisa Stillman, Alice Drexel, Anita Merle-Smith, Frieda Pearson, Elizabeth Duryea, Frances Thorne, Edith Morgan, Sara Pyle, Carol Brown, Alice Ely, Alice Kortright, Maude Shepherd, Ruth Adams, Dorothy Dennis, Vieva Fisher, Eleanora Kissel, Alice Damrosch, and Zoe Hannan.

Also Wadsworth Lewis, Charles Miller, Gustave White, James McAlpin Pyle, Gano Dunn, George Welsh, William Bowers, Allan Fox, J. Ellis Fisher, Herbert Mills, Benjamin Low, William Armstrong, W. E. Shepherd, Jr., Frederick Tanner, and others.

MOCK PROBLEM PLAY IS RICH IN SATIRE

Mr. de Mille's "In 1999" Shows What May Happen if Woman Has Her Way.

IT IS CAPITALLY ACTED

Delightfully Humorous Characterizations by Florence Nash, Thomas Jefferson, Jr., and Minette Barrette.

IN 1999. A Problem Play of the Future. By William C. de Mille. Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Jean, a New York woman.......Florence Nash
Rollo, her husband.............Joseph Jefferson
Florence, their friend.........Minette Barrette

No wonder that Mr. Rollo, the husband, was feeling sad and neglected. It had been months since he and Mrs. Rollo had had a cosy little evening together. Naturally Mr. Rollo didn't object to staying home and tending the baby—for that is man's work—and he had his embroidering to fill in spare minutes. But, then, with Mrs. Rollo always away at her club, sometimes coming home very late, and, sometimes, not coming home at all, was it any wonder that he should be tempted? Especially as he was "only a man" and she was "so strong."

Well, whether it was wonderful or not, that is just what happened after Mrs. Rollo had lighted her cigarette and strolled off to her club, leaving Mr. Rollo with his crocheting to spend another lonely evening at home. Which, of course, was the cue for her to enter, her being, as you may have guessed, Mrs. Rollo's best friend, hence the right and proper person to complete the triangle in this "problem play of the future," by which time, presumably, women will have gained all the rights she has been so long denied, and mere man will have taken her place as the one who watches and waits, and sometimes grows "morbid," which was what Mrs. Rollo said was the trouble with her husband.

But that is to run ahead of the story.

The sight of the beautiful friend—her name was Florence—was like a ray of sunshine in the gloom. And Florence loved Mr. Rollo. Moreover, she knew that he had been neglected, and so she had decided that they were going away—to Venice—beautiful, sunshiny Venice, where they could live out their dream of love, all forgetful of Mrs. Rollo and everything, including—the baby.

But stop, there was baby's little undershirt on the table, and that was too much for Mr. Rollo. So he hesitated. And he buried his head in it and wept. It was all very well about leaving Mrs. Rollo, but how about their child? No. He could never do it!

But, alas, he was only a man. And she was "so strong." So before he quite knew what he was doing he had allowed Florence to embrace him and kiss him passionately, full on the lips. And in the midst of it all, smoking her cigarette and in a whistling mood, came Mrs. Rollo. And, aha, she saw and understood. And bitter words were on her lips, words of shame to the false friend, and to the husband who had betrayed her.

But why, asked Mr. Rollo, should there be one law for women and quite another for men? Why was he always to sit home and mope while she could go where she pleased, do what she pleased, with never a word of protest or of scandal?

"Why, indeed?" reiterated Mrs. Rollo. "Because that was the way of the world. Civilization demanded it, custom decreed it. Let woman do what she liked; it behooved man to respect the sanctity of the hearth." But now Mr. Rollo must go—he and the false woman friend. "And some day," continued Mrs. Rollo, "he would fade, his beauty would be gone, and Florence would tire of him. Then he would be cast out into the street and would sink lower and lower." The words burned Mr. Rollo. After all he had not meant to do harm. Never before that night had he allowed Florence's lips to touch his own. And then, there was the child. If he were driven out now, who would there be to take care of? Alas, Mr. Rollo's pleadings fell on dull ears. Mrs. Rollo's heart was stone. Mr. Rollo had to go.

And with a sneer and a toss of her head Florence, the false friend, led him weeping from the apartment.

And now Mrs. Rollo was alone, quite alone with her memories and the baby's little undershirt. Poor fatherless baby. But wait a moment. What is the thought that causes Mrs. Rollo's cheek to blanch? Horrible, horrible. How is she ever to know from now on who was its father?

All of which with amazing cleverness is set forth in William C. de Mille's one-act sketch "In 1999," acted for the first time in public at the Fifth Avenue Theatre yesterday afternoon. The little piece was first seen at a special performance by the Twelfth Night Club, but it may be doubted if its reception by the naturally alert professional audience could have been any more satisfying than that of yesterday afternoon. As a matter of fact, there were times when the players could hardly go on, the laughter was so great.

Mr. de Mille takes the idea of the modern problem play and reverses it, always making it specially applicable any amusing through the introduction of the modern woman idea carried to its extreme point. As a satire of the new idea the piece is delicious. It has the whimsicality of a Barrie playlet, and in respect to plot and characterization is really better than "A Slice of Life," funny as that little piece is. And it could not be better acted, that most amusing person, Miss Florence Nash, providing an extremely funny characterization as Mrs. Rollo, who lords it over her husband, has no patience with his weakness, and ultimately reads him the lesson of his follies Miss Nash struts and bellows like the mere masculine creature that woman is presumably to become by 1999, and yet behind the assumption of superiority there is just the delightful feminine quality which obtrudes itself to create a sense of humor and give point to the satire. And there is delightful contrast in the portrait of the poor humbled Mr. Rollo, as Joseph Jefferson, Jr., acts him, with a full suggestion of humility and weakness, but never with anything like the feminine note that would be both unpleasant in itself and foreign to the idea. As Mrs. Rollo has moments of strength, admirably conveyed by Miss Nash, so Mr. Rollo has moments of emotion, capitally delivered by Mr. Jefferson. And the beautiful temptress is alluringly and refreshingly played by Miss Minette Barrette.

All in all, "In 1999" is one of the most enjoyable little things that has come along in some time. It would make an ideal piece to precede or follow a short play in one of the regular theatres.

A BIRTHDAY SKATING PARTY.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Daughter Celebrates Her Ninth Year.

Mrs. Payne-Whitney gave a fancy dress roller skating party yesterday afternoon for her young daughter, Miss Joan Whitney, in celebration of her ninth birthday. The little folks, numbering about fifty, assembled at the Metropolitan Roller Rink, 1,684 Broadway, at 3:30.

The children all wore Indian costumes, and the rink presented a very picturesque scene for a while. Mrs. Whitney skated with her little daughter. Some of the older folk came with their children. Little Miss Alice Vanderbilt and Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt were among the guests.

At 5:30 little Miss Whitney took her guests to her home at 972 Fifth Avenue. Here refreshments were served and a birthday cake gleamed with nine tiny candles. Miss Whitney was the recipient of many presents as well as profuse congratulations from her little friends. There was dancing and games and all sorts of jolly fun at the party, and it was 6:30 before the children departed.

CHARITY BALL TO-NIGHT.

Many Dinners Will Precede Annual Event at the Waldorf.

The annual Charity Ball in aid of the New York Nursery and Child's Hospital will be held this evening at the Waldorf-Astoria, and a very large attendance has been assured by the advance sale of tickets, for which there has been a great demand. The ball, as for many years past, will be held in the grand suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, and there will be in attendance many officers of the army and navy.

Many dinners will precede the ball. Among the hostesses who will give dinners, taking their guests afterward to the ball, are Mrs. Frank S. Witherbee, Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mrs. Edmund H. Peaslee, Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs Robert Kelly, Mrs. Jules Bache, and others. There will be several large dinners also given at the Ritz-Carlton, Sherry's, the Plaza, St. Regis, and Delmonico's, the guests going to the ball. Many will go after the special performance of opera at the Metropolitan, also from the Junior Cotillion. The evening will be unusually free of entertainments, and the ball will attract a large portion of society.

The concert music will begin at 9:30, and the opening march at 10 o'clock. The music will be furnished by three orchestras. The programme of dancing music shows that the waltz and two-step will be the most popular, and there will be no turkey trot or grizzly bear dancing.

The main restaurants and palm rooms of the hotel will be reserved for the supper guests.

More than 2,700 persons attended the ball last season, and the sale of tickets assures even a larger attendance this year.

500 VASSAR GIRLS SKATE.

All in White with Silver Scarfs, They Have an Ice Carnival.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Feb. 5.—The annual ice carnival, the most important outdoor event at Vassar College, was held on Vassar Lake to-night and more than 500 girls took part, all attired in white robes with silver scarfs. Along the shores of the lake great bonfires were built, while over the lake hung scores of Japanese lanterns and colored electric lights. Musicians surrounded by bonfires to keep them warm played as the girls skated.

The carnival was opened by a march led by forty girls and then the young women spent the remainder of the evening in trying to outdo one another in fancy skating.

The best skaters in college led the march which opened the carnival. They were the Misses E. Ralston, leader; F. Taylor, F. Olds, K. Brown, E. Freeman, E. Inmusch, M. Tilden, P. Williams, J. Brooks, L. Rogers, W. Rogers, D. McKee, M. Brown, M. Hogg, S. Knowlson, H. Harkins, W. Wile, R. Goss, G. Wheeler, E. Beavy, E. Davis, M. Farrall, H. Griff, M. Cushing, E. Dix, H. Winter, M. Stewart, H. Brainard, F. Barrett, H. Winter, H. Wheeler, M. Barney, M. G. Clark, K. Lombard, J. Rodier, and G. Spencer.

May Stage "Oliver Twist" at Century.

It became known last night that Liebler & Co. have set the date of the opening of their production of "Oliver Twist" for Feb. 19. Although no announcement has been sent out, it is said that the play may be put on at the Century Theatre to succeed "The Garden of Allah," which will probably be sent to Chicago for a run. For the cast of "Oliver Twist" Constance Collier has been engaged to play Nancy, Lyn Harding is to have the rôle of Bill Sykes, Nat C. Goodwin will play Fagin, Marie Doro, Oliver, and Olive Wyndham, Rose Maylie.

GRADY FUNERAL TO-DAY.

Services for Senator in St. Stephen's Church—Messages of Sympathy.

The funeral of Senator Thomas Francis Grady will take place from his late residence, 151 East Thirtieth Street, at 9:30 o'clock this morning, and from St. Stephen's Church in Twenty-eighth Street, between Third and Lexington Avenues, at 10 o'clock, when a requiem mass will be celebrated. Following the custom in this church there will be no eulogy.

The contents of the hundreds of letters and telegrams which have reached the late Senator's sister, Miss Margaret Grady, indicate that few of the late Senator's personal and political friends realized that his illness was serious.

Among the expressions of regret was a message of deepest sympathy from Richard Croker.

Bishop Charles E. McDonnell of Brooklyn, and Bishop Charles Henry Colton of Buffalo were among the first to extend sympathy, Bishop Colton wiring:

"Only my own serious illness will prevent me from showing my respect for him and sympathy for you by attending his funeral, as I would wish to do as my oldest and dearest friend of all St. Stephen's. I shall forever pray for him and for all his family."

Expressions of sympathy were received by Miss Grady from Norman E. Mack, Charles F. Murphy, Senators Roosevlt and Brackett, State Treasurer Kennedy, Lieut. Gov Conway, ex-Gov. White ex-Gov. Odell and other prominent politicians.

HAWLEY.—THE AMERICAN EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK, NEW YORK.
128 Broadway, New York, Feb. 5, 1912.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of this bank held this day, the President announced the death of Mr. Edwin Hawley, and the following was ordered to be spread upon the minutes of the meeting:

The Directors of this bank have received with deep feeling of regret the sad news of the sudden death of their associate, the late Edwin Hawley, and they desire to give expression to their sense of loss occasioned by his untimely decease, and their appreciation of his many virtues.

Elected a Director of this bank on Jan. 13, 1903, Mr. Edwin Hawley untiringly and conscientiously discharged the duties of his office, which he performed with zealous regard for the best interests of this institution. His deliberations with his fellow members of this board were characterized at all times by cheerful and unfailing courtesy and hearty co-operation.

A man of marked mental power, with fixed habits of close attention, great sagacity, strong intellectual grasp, unusual and untiring energy and resourcefulness, and a courage proportionate to these virtues, Mr. Hawley has shown by his life a striking example of the extraordinary success which is attainable in this wonderful country by men of brilliant and substantial talents.

It is ordered that a copy of this minute be engrossed and forwarded to his relatives in testimony of our sorrow which his death has occasioned.

(Signed) W. H. BENNETT,

KNOX FINDS SUGAR DUTIES UNIVERSAL

Letter of Secretary of State an Aid to Committee Revising the Sugar Schedule.

HOW PRICE IS CONTROLLED

Subsidiaries in Sugar Trust File Answers to Government's Suit, Denying Conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Sugar, universally consumed and universally taxed, is subjected to Government control and regulation as to price in almost every country and to varying trade methods as well, reported Secretary of State Knox in a letter which President Taft forwarded to Congress to-day.

The letter, important at this time in connection with the Sugar Tariff Revision bill which the House Ways and Means Committee begins framing this week, was brought out by the House Sugar Trust investigating committee's request for foreign data. It summarizes Consular reports which Secretary Knox called for from every part of the world, showing sugar to be a source of customs and internal revenue by means of import duties and by taxes on consumption in the form of National excise duties and local or municipal charges.

Retail prices of sugar, varying even in different localities in the same country, generally showed an increase throughout the world between July and November last, attributed to the shrinkage in the Cuban cane crop and prospective shortage in the beet crop of Europe. The increase ranged from 1 to 3 cents a pound, averaging about 2 cents on ordinary white sugar. The great range of price quotations is shown by the 14 cents a pound charged in Italy and Spain, and 5 cents in Glasgow, Scotland.

Secretary Knox said that in Russia, where a large surplus stock had been carried over from the preceding seasons the Government kept the prices unchanged. Russia exercises absolute control over the prices.

Trade guilds in Japan and Brazil individually assert the right to manipulate prices. The Argentine Republic fixes prices by law. In Canada, Montreal, refineries control the situation. In Sweden retail dealers combine to keep the prices just low enough to make imports unprofitable.

The United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Greece, and Peru treat sugar solely as a source of revenue. Sweden, Roumania, Japan, Mexico, Brazil, Chile, and the Union of South Africa subject sugar to high import duty to protect and develop domestic industries, with secondary regard to the revenues. Russia, Spain, Italy, Canada, and Denmark treat it as a means of fostering native production and of providing for national revenues.

Austria-Hungary, Germany, and France, signatory to the Brussels conference, which abolished bounties on production, may be said to form a class by themselves in their treatment of sugar in relation to import duties. Thus, Austria-Hungary, Germany, and France hold in abeyance their regular tariff rates in so far as they exceed the 53 cents a hundred pounds avoirdupois which the conference permits as the maximum import duty allowed above their excise duties. Some of these also remit the excise taxes on sugar when imported, and France and Portugal give sugar from their colonies preferential treatment.

The answers of the American Sugar Refining Company and its subsidiary corporations and the individual defendants to the Government's suit for the dissolution of the so-called Sugar Trust were filed yesterday in the United States District Court. They were all similar to the answer of the American Sugar Refining Company, which was published yesterday in THE TIMES.

They deny the defendants have ever been engaged in any unlawful combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade either within the United States or with foreign nations in raw sugar, molasses, syrups, or other by-products of raw sugar or sugar beets. They deny that the defendants endeavored to monopolize the trade on these products or engaged in any wrongful acts or were parties to the agreements mentioned in the Government's petition.

The answers filed yesterday were those of the American Sugar Refining Company, the National Sugar Refining Company, the Spreckels Sugar Refining Company, the Amalgamated Sugar Company, the Lewiston Sugar Company, the Stirling Sugar Company, the Billings Sugar Company, the Scottsbluff Sugar Company, the Morgan County Construction Company, John D. Spreckels, Adolph B. Spreckels, James H. Post, Alexander F. Morrison, Thomas A. Howell, Henry F. Mollenhauer, J. Henry Dick, Chester S. Morey, Joseph F. Smith, Thomas R. Cutler, and the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company.

CINCINNATI TRIBUNE SOLD.

Garry Herrmann and Wealthy Politicians Said to be New Owners.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 5.—A deal has been practically closed whereby The Commercial Tribune will pass into the hands of a company composed of Garry Herrmann and a syndicate of wealthy politicians. Scott Small, a former newspaper man and until recently Director of Public Safety in Cincinnati, will become manager. E. O. Eshelby, who has been President of the Commercial Tribune for a number of years, will retire, so far as known.

No changes will be made in the policy of the paper, which has been independent Republican since it printed its first issue. The deal does not involev purchase of property, but the newspaper company will acquire a lease. The new management will take charge March 1.

SUBWAY CONFAB GOES OVER.

Negotiations to be Taken Up Again with More Hope of Success.

Beyond a meeting between Controller Prendergast and Borough President McAneny to go over some of the interminable subway figures, nothing was done yesterday with regard to a new proposal from the Interborough. Samuel Rea and A. J. County, the two principal negotiators, were in Philadelphia and are not expected here till to-morrow.

This cessation of activity, however, was not taken to mean that negotiations had been dropped. The point that arose at the end of last week concerning the amount the Interborough is to receive on the capital it is obliged to invest in excess of $77,000,000, the amount agreed upon, is not regarded as serious, and it is believed that if the other points in dispute can be settled satisfactorily a way will be found to compromise. The Pennsylvania intermediaries are hopeful that they have reached a basis of settlement which will be satisfactory to both the city and the Interborough.

STEINWAY TUBE CASE WAITS.

Belmont and Other Trustees Ask Time to Answer Forfeiture Suit.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 5.—Attorney General Carmody was asked to-day by the trustees for the creditors and stockholders of the New York and Long Island Railroad Company that they be allowed an extension of twenty days to file an answer in the action begun by the State to have declared forfeited the franchises of the Steinway Tunnel under the East River between the Borough of Manhattan and Long Island City.

The trustees include August Belmont, Andrew Freedman, H. Van Rensselaer Kennedy, Walter Luttgen, W. C. Oakman, William D. Parsons, John Pierce and George Young.

WET WHEAT FOR EXPORT.

Immediate Rates Made for Shipments from Canadian Points.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Feb. 5.—The Minister of Agriculture, Province of Saskatchewan, has wired the American Government at Washington from Regina that there are 20,000,000 bushels of unthrashed wheat, all tough, and 12,000,000 bushels wet and tough, which must be shipped at once or be a total loss.

The Canadian railways have refused to ship this grain to Duluth and Minneapolis except in foreign cars. This action, it is asserted, has brought on another crisis in the car situation, and the Minister of Agriculture is seeking the co-operation of the American Government in getting the matter straightened out.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Under special permission by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways have put into effect rates on wheat and oats from Canadian points to Duluth and Minneapolis, on representations that Canadian farmers would suffer severely if the permission were not granted. The understanding is that the wheat or its products will be exported from Duluth and Minneapolis, being shipped from Canada in bond.

The commission has not been called upon to determine whether the Canadian roads may require United States railway cars for transporting the wheat. This probably will be left to the Canadian Railroad Commission.

PNEUMATIC TOOL REPORT.

Decrease in Net Earnings Explained by Unfavorable Conditions.

The annual report of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company for 1911 shows net profits of $772,527, compared with $1,054,800 in 1910. Charges of $165,000, against $166,733 in the previous year, left a balance of $607,527, which is equivalent to 9.37 per cent. on the $6,485,800 capital stock. Dividends paid aggregated $257,951, the same as in 1910. Allowances for depreciation, &c., make a total of $194,787, against $193,149 in 1910. There remained a surplus of $154,789, which, added to the previous surplus brought the total surplus at the end of the year up to $1,663,938.

Speaking of the falling off in net earnings President Duntley says:

"The net earnings are considerable below those for the year 1910, the most prosperous in the history of the company, mainly due to the fact that business conditions generally were most unfavorable, and the market for the products of the company unusually restricted. Particularly noticeable was the falling off in the sales of spare parts, owing to above conditions which materially affected the earnings. The sales of new tools, however, during the past year almost equalled those of 1910, chiefly attributable to the fact that the company secured about 4,000 new customers in 1911. The total net earnings of the company for the ten years in which it has been in business amount to $4,254,500. It will, therefore, be seen that the net earnings for 1911 are close to the average and are normal."

MORE GOLD FOR EXPORT.

Engagement of $2,000,000 Bars Brings Total on This Movement to $4,000,000.

The engagement at the Assay Office yesterday of $2,000,000 in gold bars for export brings the total of the gold involved in the present movement up to $4,000,000. Lazard Freres are the shippers of the gold which goes to Paris, as they were of a similar engagement of the same amount last week. Whatever estimate might be made at present of the probable amount of gold which will be sent abroad on this movement would be mere guesswork, foreign exchange experts said yesterday.

Conditions of the money market are such as to make an extensive exportation of gold possible, but changes in the international money situation frequently occur with such suddenness that it is not safe to predict what may be expected now. Exchange is below the normal shipping point and the engagements for Paris would indicate that the shippers are influenced by special considerations.

TOBACCO FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Independents Get in a Resolution to Make Attorney General Join Them.

The Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, which recently brought suit, in the name of its Secretary, O. S. Jonas, for a bill of review to upset the reorganization plan of the American Tobacco Company, which has already been put into effect, has made another move by having introduced in the House of Representatives a joint resolution directing Attorney General Wickersham to join in the suit. Congressman Higgins of Connecticut, a Republican, is sponsor for the resolution, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

The Attorney General has made it plain that he is satisfied with the dissolution decree of the Circuit Court and does not intend to take an appeal to the Supreme Court. The Higginson resolution begins by directing him to take such an appeal, but in case the time limit has expired he is instructd to join in the application for a bill of review.

The independents expect by means of the bill of review to get the whole question before the Supreme Court, no matter what the decision of the District Court may be. If the District Court should grant the bill, the whole reorganization question would be reopened and the independents would have a right of appeal. On the other hand, if the bill is refused, they intend to appeal from the refusal.

Henry H. Hunter, counsel for the association, said yesterday that he expected an early and favorable report by the House committee on the Higginson resolution.

EQUITABLE TRUST TO MOVE.

Will Occupy Home of Trust Company of America After Merger on March 1.

After March 1 the Equitable Trust Company will occupy the big banking rooms of the Trust Company of America at 37 Wall Street, the merger of the two concerns taking effect on that date.

Alvin W. Krech, President of the Equitable Trust Company, has paid over the $5,000,000 which gives him control of the two-thirds of the Trust Company of America's $2,000,000 capitalization necessary to the merger. His offer, which the stockholders accepted, was $375 a share. The owners of the remaining one-third of the stock will receive the same price if they choose to turn in their shares.

The Equitable Trust Company occupied the northwest corner of Pine and Nassau Streets. It was burned out in the Equitable fire and has since been occupying the old offices of the Carnegie Trust Company in the United States Realty Building at 115 Broadway. The new quarters at 37 Wall Street are much larger than either its present or its old offices. The combined deposits of the merged companies will be approximately $70,000,000.

$34.61 FOR EACH PERSON

If All the Money in America Were Divided Among the 94,950,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—An equal division of all the money in the United States would result in each man, woman, and child possessing $34.61. That amount is the per capita circulation, according to the calculation of the Treasury Department, which estimates that the population of the country has grown from 91,972,266, as determined by the census of 1910, to 94,958,000 on Feb. 1, 1912.

The stock of money in America is fast climbing up into the billions. On Feb. 1 there was $3,624,572,121 in the United States. Of this $338,302,481 represented the assets of the Government and $3,286,269,640 was in circulation. Thirty years ago the entire amount in circulation in this country was $816,266,721.

CURB MEN UNEASY OVER TORT CLAIMS

Brokers Buying Them at Bargain Prices Against "When Issued" Bonds Risk a Total Loss.

RESERVATION IN RECEIPT

Guaranty Trust May Withhold Bonds in Case of Prior Assignment of Claims —Curb Has Big Profits in Sight.

Brokers who have been buying up tort claims against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company were perturbed yesterday when they learned for the first time that there is a possibility that they may make a total loss on their purchases instead of the comfortable margin of profit on which they have been figuring. This is due to a clause in the receipts issued by the Guaranty Trust Company which they had overlooked.

The tort claims are those that have been adjudicated by the court and which under the reorganization plan are to be paid in bonds. The aggregate of these claims is $1,875,000 and the amount of bonds to be issued in settlement of them is 50 per cent. more, or $2,812,500. The reason for this is that each tort claimant is to get half again as much in bonds as the amount of his claim. For instance, a man who has been hurt in a collision to such an extent that the court has allowed him $1,000 will receive $1,000 worth of the new adjustment 5 per cent. bonds and $500 worth of the new 4 per cent. refunding bonds.

These bonds are already traded in on a "when issued" basis and at the prices quoted yesterday the $1,000 of 5 per cent. bonds would bring $568.75 and the $500 worth of 4 per cent. bonds would bring $406.25, a total of $975. On this basis a $1,000 tort claim is worth $975 and the broker by buying the claim on the bargain counter and selling the bonds "when issued" would make the difference between 97½, the worth of the bonds, and the price he paid for the claim.

When the brokers first began buying these claims they got some of them as low as 70, and although the bonds were selling lower at that time than now, there was a good wide margin of profit. General business hasn't been very brisk with brokers for some months, and in the last week or two the number of those who saw an opportunity to make a little quick money by buying these claims and selling the bonds, has grown to such an extent that they have had to quote higher and higher prices for the certificates representing the claims.

Yesterday there might be said to be a market in certificates, and the brokers who have been buying them were watching each other's prices closely and outbidding each other in cases where the claimant took the trouble to "shop around" instead of selling to the first broker who made an offer. The result has been that the price of tort claim certificates has been going up, and yesterday it ruled around 90 and 91. Even so there was a margin of profit of some 7 points.

The tort claim certificates are issued by the Guaranty Trust Company, the depository for the Joint Reorganization Committee, upon the surrender of the judgment or evidence of the allowed claim. In general, when the bonds are issued they will be delivered to the holders of these certificates. The clause that was discovered yesterday by some of the brokers is one that protects the Guaranty Trust Company against a prior assignment by the tort claimant. This is the way it reads:

> This receipt is issued on an assignment to said joint committee by the person who is named herein. In case said assignment fails to transfer to said joint committee full and effective title to said tort claim this receipt shall be void and of no effect.

The protection is against fraud or carelessness on the part of the tort claimant. If John Smith, having a claim for $1,000 assigned it or a part interest in it to William Jones, and subsequently assigned the claim to the reorganization committee in return for a certificate, the trust company, without this provision, would be bound to deliver the bonds to Smith, and would also have to recognize the prior assignment to Jones. With the clause in the certificate the trust company is protected, but the broker or his principal has no protection in such a contingency. If the prior claim should turn up and the trust company refused to issue the bonds to the tort claimant, it would not, of course, issue them to the purchaser of the certificate, who would simply be out his money, unless he could recover in a law suit against the claimant.

"I'm going to keep on buying the certificates," said one broker yesterday, "but from now on they'll have to show me. I am going to require an affidavit from the tort claimant and also from his lawyer that no assignment has been made prior to the assignment to the reorganization committee."

The discussion of this possibility yesterday raised the additional question what protection the Guaranty Trust Company or the reorganization committee would have if a prior assignment should turn up after the delivery of the bonds. Joseph P. Cotton, Jr., counsel for the committee, said that as a matter of law, once the bonds were delivered, a prior claim could not be urged against the committee or the depository, and the only recourse the holder of the prior assignment would have would be a lawsuit against the tort claimant.

ASSAILS THE MONEY TRUST.

President Stilwell of Orient Railway Sure There Is One and Complains.

President Stilwell of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway, who thinks that his railway enterprises in the Southwest are being curbed by the Money Trust, gave out a letter yesterday which he has sent to Washington. This, his third and latest manifesto on the subject, is addressed, broadly, to the United States Senators and Representatives, members of Congress, Washington, D. C. His first paragraph says:

> The word is sent out that if the investigation of the Money Trust is made it will destroy business. If business is founded on evil, it ought to be destroyed, so that sound, healthy business may rise out of the ruins. No surgeon would refuse to perform an operation for the reason that it would soil the linen.

It is only the evildoers who fear investigation, he explains in another paragraph, and gives assurances that "there can be no damage done to any political party that is in favor of destroying abuses." Then Mr. Stilwell explains who he is and what he has done:

> I have a perfect right to thus address you in this letter. I am an American. I have worked for years to develop the West. By my work at least a billion dollars has been added to the wealth of our country. I no doubt have built as much main line of railroad as any man in the United States of my age. I have brought millions of gold to our land from Europe, and much of it during the panic years. I built one-fourth of all the railroad built during 1896. My orders for equipment were almost the only orders given during that dark year. I built one of the largest inland waterways of our country—the Port Arthur ship canal—which has now been taken over by the Government and is maintained by it. I built the splendid land-locked harbor at Port Arthur that no storm has ever reached. I have financed corporations that furnish employment to thousands.

"To exist," he asks, "must I put on the Money Trust's yoke of gold, so that in the future I may be unmolested in my work? I refuse.

"Must I longer stand unfair conditions; must the railway we are building be brought under the dictation of the money power, and must our plans for giving to the people of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and Mexico a great international railway, that will forever be a blessing and furnish a sure and safe investment, be blocked and thwarted both in this country and in Europe?"

In conclusion President Stilwell quotes George M. Reynolds, President of the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago, as having affirmed that there is a Money Trust, that the money power now lies in the hands of a dozen men, of which he pleaded guilty to being one. "Why not ask Mr. Reynolds and the other eleven to enter into detail?" says President Stillwell's concluding paragraph.

MONEY LENDERS LOSE.

Woman Does Not Have to Pay Company Attorney's Fee.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday holding that the payment of a $10 fee to the attorneys of a money lender to make a search of records preliminary to a loan on a chattel mortgage made the transaction void, as usury. The case was fought out by the Legal Aid Society in behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Riordan, of 1,229 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, against the London Realty Company.

In April, 1910, Mrs. Riordan went to the company, which does a loan business, to get $50. She was compelled to give a chattel mortgage. At the outset she was told that she must sign a form of retainer for a firm of attorneys named by the realty lenders and she did so. A chattel mortgage was made out for $65, of which she got $55. The attorneys said they had searched the records to find whether the furniture had previously been mortgaged.

After Mrs. Riordan had paid $32.28 on the loan the lenders began a suit to seize her furniture under foreclosure proceedings. She appealed to the Legal Aid Society, which pronounced her case worthy and defended it. The Municipal Court, however, gave judgment for the lender. The Society appealed to the Appellate Term of the Supreme Court, which affirmed the judgment. Then the Appellate Term denied a motion for permission to appeal to the Appellate Division. The Appellate Division, however, granted a petition to hear the appeal.

A statement issued by the Legal Aid Society says:

"Why was it necessary for this case to be carried to the Appellate Division before a final decision was reached, causing an outlay in costs alone far exceeding the original value in litigation? Are the Trial Judges in the Municipal Courts and the Justices in the Appellate Term so overworked or for some other unexplained reason not prepared to consider carefully the law applicable to the case, and the points raised by the parties? Did the Appellate Term affirm the judgment as a matter of policy and for the purpose of discouraging appeals in cases involving such a small sum of money? The answer is of interest to numerous other litigants in the Municipal Courts."

BANK INCREASED ITS LOSS.

Windsor Locks Institution Paid Interest on Money Not There.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 5.—The gathering of mill operatives who were caught in the failure of the Windsor Locks Savings Bank passed off quietly to-night. Sheriff McCarty and Constable Thomas Fogarty were on hand. The meeting adjourned till Wednesday night, and Hartford lawyers will then be present to explain what action may lie against the heirs of Cashier Converse.

An employe told a mill superintendent this afternoon that certain depositors have been meeting in secret and discussing a plan to blow up the bank building. Threats have been made against the Directors if they do not pay dollar for dollar.

C. W. Dutcher has reported to the Directors that Converse misappropriated about $60,000, beginning in 1879. To-morrow Mr. Dutcher will begin work upon a balance sheet, which he says will not be completed for two months at least. He says that in twenty years the $60,000 loss became $120,000, compounding interest at two per cent. every six months, the bank automatically increasing the deficit by charging itself interest on money it did not have.

THIRD AVE. WON'T SUBMIT.

At Least, Wall Street Believes, Commission's Order Will Be Taken to Court

Wall Street is watching with interest to see if the Third Avenue Railway Company and its reorganization committee will accept without a fight the order of the Public Service Commission, issued on Saturday, directing the company to set aside annually $180,000 as a sinking fund to amortize its bonds, and to charge off 20 per cent. of its gross earnings to depreciation account. No announcement was made yesterday of the course the company will take, but it is expected that it will appeal to the Courts.

The company is prepared to make liberal provision for a sinking fund and for depreciation, but the effect of the order of the Commission, it is contended, is to nullify the decree of the Court of Appeals, which held that it had no jurisdiction over the amount of funds issued by a company which was undergoing reorganization. On the other hand the Commission contends that in ordering a special sinking fund to provide for the difference between the market and the face value of the bonds, it was only following its regular custom when bonds are sold at a discount, and that in fixing the amount to be set aside for depreciation at 20 per cent. of gross earnings it was acting in accordance with accepted engineering standards.

BEQUESTS FOR "JOHN DOES."

Woman Leaves Money to Her Unknown Relatives.

The will of Harriet McGregor, filed yesterday for probate, left $100 each to all her living next of kin. Mrs. McGregor stated that she had no near relatives she knew of and left sums varying from $5,000 to $100 to various friends.

Among the friends she remembered was her attorney Andrew J. Shipman, to whom she left $5,000 with the proviso that he was to receive $12,000 in case a bequest she made for a $500 annual scholarship and two bequests of $1,000 each to two Catholic churches "should fail." In making the bequest she said Shipman had been her friend and adviser for fifteen years. The petition for probate stated that no next of kin for whom the $100 bequests would be operative were known.

GRAND JURIES FOR FEBRUARY.

Judge Crain Swears In Members and Informs Them as to Cases Pending.

Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday swore in the Grand Juries for the February term in General Sessions. He charged the juries as to their duties simply and quoted statistics as to the number of prisoners in the Tombs and the indictments pending. The juries are as follows:

James Buckley, an agent, living at the Holland House, foreman of the regular Grand Jury; Henry Osterweiss, 17 East Eighty-seventh Street; Bernard Norton, contractor, 290 Broadway; John A. Herzhog, signs, 400 Sixth Avenue; Thomas O'Connor, flour, 212 Produce Exchange; Robert K. Dana, manager, 1,733 Broadway; James S. Carney, agent, 417 Produce Exchange; Benjamin Stern, real estate, 250 East Sixtieth Street; James L. Laidlow, banker, 26 Broadway; Alexander Weinberg, merchant, 120 Franklin Street; Henry A. The additional Grand Jury is as follows:

Arthur Lincoln, broker, 101 West Fifty-fifth Street, foreman; William G. Loew, broker, 7 Wall Street; Aaron A. Fishel, painting, 340 East Fifty-ninth Street; John P. Kane, Jr., President, 103 Park Avenue; Robert W. Brown, trustee, 21 Wall Street; Monroe L. Simon, Vice President, 149 Broadway; Victor M. Opper, manager, 725 Broadway; Aljah M. Dederer, Third Vice President, 565 Broadway; Robert E. Simon, Vice President, 165 Broadway; Frank M. Tiernan, 474 Central Park West; Philip J. Mosenthal, insurance, 95 William Street; Arnold Harden, President, 66 Leonard Street; Charles Solomon, insurance, 208 Broadway; Adolph Breslauer, importer, 30 East Fourteenth Street; James H. Anderson, Secretary, 22 Exchange Place; John F. Whalen, undertaker, 405 Pearl Street; Moses Valentine, Vice President, 407 Broadway; Thomas L. Wells, President, 45 West Forty-seventh Street; Solomon G. Rosenbaum, merchant, 203 West Twenty-fourth Street; Michaelis H. Ziegel, 19 West Ninety-second Street; Charles Robert Spence, broker, 29 Broadway; Joseph L. Gitterman, manufacturer, 212 East Twenty-second Street.

In addition to the two February Grand Juries the January Grand Jury, which is investigating the high cost of butter and the condition of the Criminal Court Building, will be continued throughout this month.

NO WILL BY HAWLEY AMONG HIS PAPERS

Search of the Safety Vaults Where a Will Was Supposed to Be Reveals Nothing.

ASSOCIATES ARE UNEASY

Estimates Still Put the Value of His Estate at from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Business associates of the late Edwin Hawley have been made very uneasy by their failure to discover a will disposing of his immense fortune. If the continuance of some of the business ventures in which he was engaged is not specifically provided for in a will, it is possible that serious inconvenience will result.

The late Mr. Hawley had few close friends, and no one seems to have enjoyed any great degree of his confidence. When he died last Thursday it was said by one of his friends that Mr. Hawley had made a new will only a short while before, and that this circumstance had preyed upon his mind. It could not be learned yesterday that any one had ever seen this will. A business associate said that it is reasonably certain that he made a will in 1903, but careful search had not brought either paper to light up to last evening.

A report that no will could be found got abroad yesterday morning, when a meeting of Directors of the Minneapolis & St. Louis was held without taking any action toward filling Hawley's place on the board. When asked about this report, a man who had had close business relations with Hawley said that application had been made to the State Controller for permission to open the Hawley safe deposit box in the basement of 25 Broad Street, and that it was almost certain that the will would be found there. A representative of the Controller visited the Standard Safe Deposit Company in the early afternoon with officials of the vault, and made a thorough search of the box without finding a will.

At Mr. Hawley's office his surviving partner, F. H. Davis, had left word that he had nothing to say on the subject of Mr. Hawley's estate or the missing will. Later on, however, an employe of the Hawley & Davis firm, evidently ignorant of the fruitless search which had been made through Mr. Hawley's private papers, denied that the will was missing.

Estimates fixing the value of Mr. Hawley's estate at between $60,000,000 and $100,000,000 were still heard yesterday. A friend who was in a position to know more about the late financier's investments than perhaps any one else said that his fortune would be found to be about $30,000,000.

Waistmakers' Strike Off.

The pending strike of the waist and dressmakers, of whom there are 40,000 in the city, which was voted for at four mass meetings of the Ladies' Waist and Dressmakers' Union over a week ago, was called off yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the union, in Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton Street. The committee will wait for more thorough organization and a better opportunity before insisting on the demands of the workers.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

SIEGMUND MARX of 724 East 156th Street, formerly a dry goods dealer, has filed a petition with liabilities of $1,903 to forty creditors, and no assets.

HENRY WETZEL, baker, of 74 Second Avenue, has filed a petition with liabilities of $4,034 and assets of $404.

CHARLES BAUMANN.—Judge Hand has granted a motion for Charles Baumann, baker, of 2,098 Eighth Avenue, to withdraw the petition filed by him on Dec. 11 on consent of creditors. The liabilities were $1,475 and no assets.

SOLOMON STERNBERG.—Schedules of Solomon Sternberg, furs, 49 East Ninth Street, show liabilities of $10,609 and assets of $587.

FREDERICK KEMLER.—Schedules in the assignment of Frederick Kemler, grocer, 2,761 Webster Avenue, show liabilities of $1,361, nominal assets of $1,362, and actual assets of $691.

SAMUEL WERNER.—Schedules in the assignment of Samuel Werner, dealer in window glass at 42 Beaver Street, show liabilities of $1,750, nominal assets of $257, and actual assets of $75.

KRASNOFF BROTHERS, wholesale notions, of 54 Lispenard Street and 91 Avenue A, have withdrawn their offer of composition at 25 cents on the dollar. Nearly all the creditors had accepted the offer, but a few opposed it. The liabilities are $100,000.

HARBOR DREDGING AND SCOW CONSTRUCTION CO.—Judge Hough has granted a motion made by Myers & Goldsmith for Josiah Cantor, receiver for the Harbor Dredging and Scow Construction Company of 59 Pearl Street, for the sale of the assets of the company at auction, as the receiver did not care to take the responsibility of carrying on the business. The assets consist of plant at Rikers Island, tugs, a contract with the city for the disposal of street sweepings and ashes and retained percentages. Henry B. Singer was appointed special master to take proof of the property and liens against it, and Judge Hough made the matter returnable on Feb. 12 for creditors to show cause why the order of sale should not be made absolute. The liabilities are $100,000, and assets are estimated at $85,000.

WILLIAM W. CONSTAD.—Cass & Apfel, attorneys for William A. Constad, fur manufacturer, of 150 West Twenty-fifth Street, against whom a petition was filed on Feb. 2, said yesterday that he is perfectly solvent and has assets of $30,000, while his liabilities are only $7,000 to $8,000. In the petition it was asserted that the liabilities are $30,000 and assets $5,000. He demands a jury trial.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hand in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts:

WALTER A. STERNBERG of the firm of William Sharrath, importers of artificial flowers and feathers at 67 East Ninth Street; liabilities, $70,654. All the records in this case in the office of N. A. Prentiss, referee, were burned in the Equitable fire, but copies were obtained from the attorneys.

FRANCIS D. BUSH, stock broker, 35 Wall Street; liabilities, $15,327.

SOLINGER REALTY COMPANY and Isaac Solinger, President, 55 Delancey Street; liabilities, $24,715.

JAMES J. FOODY, liquors, 563 Pleasant Avenue; liabilities, $17,099.

AARON B. COHEN, as the United States Floor Covering Company, 41 Union Square; liabilities, $12,083.

EPSTEIN & JACOBSON, skirts, 169 Mercer Street; liabilities, $3,450.

MARGARET FREEDMAN, milliner, 222 West 122d Street; liabilities, $2,447.

HARNET L. HAZLETT, milliner, 256 West Fifty-seventh Street; liabilities, $7,871.

JOHN M. HALPER, 560 West 163d Street, formerly druggist; liabilities, $3,313, for loss of a woman's finger.

JACOB LABES, skirts, 246 Canal Street; liabilities, $2,022.

THEODORE B. SCANLAN, hotel, at Pawling, N. Y.; liabilities, $5,028.

WILLIAM H. TAUBER of the Ideal Waist Company, 138 West Seventeenth Street; liabilities, $20,142.

EDWARD WEINSTEIN, waists, 130 West Twenty-eighth Street; liabilities, $2,197.

SCIENTIFIC MANAGEMENT
As Applied to Advertising

The purpose of all advertising is to make people think. Up to this point in the postulate the Bush Terminal Company agrees fully with other users of the advertising columns. But right at the little black dot which follows the word think is the parting of the ways so far as we are concerned.

The sole purpose of the modern advertiser is to take a man by the seat of his attention and boost him either over the wall of his mental resistance or through the hedge of his apathy.

Every effort of the advertisement writer is aimed to make people think along prearranged lines which end in definitely fixed objects; to make them think, not as they should think, or might think if their minds were left undirected, but the way he wants them to think. The means for accomplishing this result are diverse and devious, and constitute all there is to the so-called science of advertising.

Such methods are contrary to the principles of scientific management in that they contemplate first the formulation of the result, and afterwards the devising of means for bringing about that result. Scientific management seeks first the orderly process of doing things, and then accepts the result. It does not know beforehand what the outcome will be. It simply knows that if the processes are applied properly, the result, in some measure, must be satisfactory.

For instance, Mr. Taylor, the great exponent of scientific management, did not decide first how many tons of pig-iron a man could move in a day, and then try to devise means by which he could be taught to handle that amount.

He analyzed first the orderly processes which his own orderly mind and his high power of observation brought to his attention, then applied the products of his study, and then accepted as satisfactory the answer he got.

Primarily the sole intent of all advertisers is to get business The Bush Terminal Company is no exception. We have that object in view very clearly when we advertise the fact that the service we render to tenants of our model factory buildings is of great value to them. It would be rank hypocrisy to claim, or even to infer otherwise. But there is a vast difference between trying to make the reader think a certain thing and just trying to make him think.

The Bush Terminal Company tells him of the many economies which its tenants make by reason of the service which its unusual facilities permit it to render, and it is quite content to leave the reader's mind unmolestedly free to decide whether or no similar economies are available to him.

Our tenant saves the cartage costs on all of his rail shipments, he saves nearly all of the cartage costs on goods arriving or leaving by ships which dock at the Bush Terminal, he saves a large proportion of the cost of handling his goods, and of the cost of his light and power. He saves a great amount on his insurance. In most cases he saves even on the actual amount of his rent.

He saves in many other ways too numerous to mention in an advertisement, but which we will describe in a letter or in person, and which we will point out to him when he visits our plant.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Metal Lacquered Boxes for Paints Are Held Not "Usual" Coverings.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that metal lacquered boxes used as containers for paints are not "usual" coverings, and must stand a separate rate of duty under the terms of the Tariff act of 1909. Collector Loeb assessed duty on the containers as being lacquered as provided for in Paragraph 195, at 4 cents a pound and 85 per cent. ad valorem. Bloomingdale Brothers, and others, alleged that the boxes are properly subject to ad valorem duty as part of the value of their contents. This is denied by Judge Fischer, who affirms the Collector.

A controversy between the Government and Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne was decided unfavorably to the importers by Judge Cooper. The merchandise was returned for duty under the countable cotton schedule of the act of 1897, whereas the claim was for lower rates under the provisions for unbleached cottons.

The following protests were unsupported and accordingly overruled: Garbini Brothers & Co., R. Hasselgren & Co., Hip Lung, Ying Kee & Co., Kung Sun Wo & Co., Harbison & Gathright, L. Dannenbaum's Son & Co., F. B. Vandegrift & Co., J. McChesney, Leo Stevens and others, Kahn & Feldman, John Dunn, Jr., and Louis Metzger & Co.

BUYS BURLEY POOL TOBACCO

Kirk of Cincinnati Takes 12,000,000 Pounds at 16 Cents.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 5.—A report from Maysville, where the Burley tobacco officials met to-day, stated that the remainder of the holdings of the 1909 Burley pool, amounting to over 12,000,000 pounds, was sold to-day to Theodore H. Kirk of Cincinnati, representing himself and various other manufacturers.

The price was said to be around 16 cents. Kirk already had purchased most of the holdings of the Burley pool sold here.

THE COMMODITY MARKETS.

Entire List Declines, Pork Alone Showing Brief Early Strength.

Realizing with disappointing cash demand brought reaction in wheat, corn, and oats; final prices being at the low of the day. Cables were firm, but export demand slow. Provisions after opening firm declined and closed quiet. Cotton easier on freer Southern offerings and bearish ginning advices with profit taking. Support was lacking. Coffee declined on scattered realizing, induced partly by disappointing cables.

WHEAT.

Wheat showed a reactionary tendency all day and closed at about the low point. Although foreign markets were generally strong, closing at an advance in Liverpool, Berlin, and Antwerp, as well as Buenos Aires, there seemed to be a good deal of selling pressure, and quite general disposition to take profits. Foreign statistics were about as expected. World's exports were 7,712,000 bushels, against 7,376,000 bushels the previous week and 10,700,000 bushels last year. The American shipments were 3,688,000 bushels. The amount of wheat afloat for Europe increased 992,000 bushels. Liverpool March wheat was strong on nervousness over the question of nearby supplies owing to the Argentine situation. There was more talk of delay in Argentine shipments, and a statement was received claiming one-quarter of the surplus this year to be of bad quality; the balance fair to good. The American visible supply showed smaller reduction than looked for. The domestic stocks decreased 785,000 bushels. Bonded stocks in the United States decreased 364,000 bushels. The Canadian visible increased 693,000 bushels. The grand total decreased 466,000 bushels and amounted to 84,746,000 bushels. Receipts were large in the Northwest, although the total interior movement was less than last week. Demand for cash wheat was reported good for nearby deliveries of Manitoba, but otherwise slow. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.05½, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.22½; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.14; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.17¼.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market declined ⅝c to 1c, and closed at the low point. Profit taking was general all day, and the demand was disappointing, while cash corn was lower at the interior. Foreign markets were firm, but no export business was reported. The world's exports were 4,943,000 bushels, against 4,459,000 bushels the previous week. The amount afloat for Europe increased 2,236,000 bushels. The visible supply increased 1,378,000 bushels. Western receipts were not so heavy as last week, but there seems to be some evidence of pressure on the market. Cash corn was nominal, with No. 3 quoted at 72½c elevator export; steamer, 72c; No. 2, 73c, f. o. b.

OATS.—The market was also weak, declining sharply after a strong opening, with final prices the lowest of the day at ⅝c to 1c net decline. There was realizing in evidence in the market all the session, while the enthusiastic commission house buying so lately seen was entirely wanting. The statistics showed a little decrease in Western receipts, but this had very little effect. The visible supply decreased 686,000 bushels, while bonded oats increased 81,000 bushels. Cash oats were quiet, with Standards quoted at 60½c asked, elevator; No. 2 white, 60½c, nominal; No. 3 white, 60c nominal.

PROVISIONS.

Trade in hog products was quiet. The market opened up on very light receipts of hogs, only 77,000 at all points, while hog prices were 5c to 15c higher. Prices reacted, however, with final quotations at the low of the day.

COTTONSEED OIL.

With the advance to new high levels bulls were encouraged. The continued light offerings of crude and the higher prices paid were again the impetus to the price list. A rather steady lard market also had some bearing. Switching from the near months into the distant options is still in evidence and of the same character as recently, speculative longs experiencing little difficulty in such transactions at present. Vague reports circulated of impending bullish developments in March due partly to the absence of crude offers, but these were regarded skeptically, particularly as it was believed that large interests had distributed selling orders sufficient to eliminate practically the entire early gains. Hedge pressure is light and confined to the distant months. Bearish cotton ginning reports had little influence. Crude quoted at 4.54c to 4.60c in the Southeast and Valley.

COTTON.

The reactionary tendency assumed greater magnitude during yesterday's session than was generally anticipated. The gossip was that prominent longs had liquidated considerable cotton, while it was apparent that the willingness of those recently instrumental in the advance to support values was not great. There appeared to be more of a disposition to accept the bearish theories, for a time at least, though it was apparent that aggressiveness, congruous with these, was not general, due to a belief that although the market is a two-sided affair powerful interests will be expected to operate so as to prevent undue pressure.

A transition in the character of Liverpool advices was responsible for the initial declines locally of from 5 to 9 points. The spot sales of 12,000 bales there, ordinarily liberal, were disappointing to some enthusiastic bulls, who were inclined to compare the business with that of the short Saturday session, when 15,000 bales were reported. Moreover, it was claimed that large American interests were selling in the foreign market, and that labor unrest at Lancashire was still noticeable. These statements were supplemented by private cables indicating somewhat lessened activity at Manchester, and more bearish opinions expressed in regard to the future market by large foreign houses. Liverpool was a seller locally. Weekly correspondence from that centre was mainly bullish, however, much stress being laid on the tremendous business at Manchester the last few weeks and the remunerative prices received. The claims that mills abroad were experimenting with American low grades was a feature commented upon in many circles.

It was very cold throughout practically the entire cotton belt, but several messages were received again referring to the active ginning recently. The rumors that the National Ginners' Association would issue a report disclosing 15,250,000 bales ginned to date was believed to be an influence early, although other authorities expressed the opinion that some Southern short covering took place, with the dissemination of bearish advices receiving their origin at Memphis. President Taylor of the above association was credited with a statement that roads are improving, and that farmers were free sellers; also that the crop estimate of the National Ginners of 15,700,000 bales maximum, exclusive of linters, may be too low.

Southern spot markets were generally unchanged to ⅛c advance, with a mixed tone to private reports, several denoting less urgency in the demand at the upturn and more willingness on the part of factors to sell. The local spot market was .10c decline, with middlings 9.90. Exports have now reached a total of 1,300,000 bales in excess of last year, aggregating to over 6,920,000 bales.

COFFEE.

Coffee sentiment is still divided, with European operators anticipating lower prices, while traders here and in Brazil favor the bull side. The volume of trading was comparatively small, total sales amounting to 47,000 bags, but the undertone was easier and the close was 10 to 15 points net lower. Havre declined 1 franc, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. Rio declined 75 reis, while Santos was quiet, unchanged. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports last week amounted to 125,342 bags, against 125,536 the previous week and 106,062 last year. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States was 2,576,010 bags, against 2,598,725 last year.

READING and SEGREGATION

An interesting booklet showing clearly the delicate position of the coal roads in the Government's suit against them under the Hepburn Act of 1906 and especially interesting at this time to stockholders in the following roads:

Reading, Jersey Central, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Lehigh Valley, Delaware & Hudson, Pennsylvania, Erie, Ontario & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Norfolk & Western.

This Booklet helps to answer the prevailing question, "Will Reading, Jersey Central and other Coal roads follow the lead of Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and Lehigh Valley and declare valuable coal stock dividends?"

Booklet sent free on application.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading Very Dull and the More Active Stocks Show Little Change.

DECLINE IN THIRD AVENUE

Public Service Commission Ruling a Factor—More Gold Taken for Shipment to Paris.

Net changes in the more active stocks in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange were unimportant and the dealings themselves were so restricted that whereas last week the Stock Exchange had the most active day since mid-December, the business yesterday was one of the lightest day's totals since the beginning of the year. Such fluctuations as did occur in the more prominent issues seemed largely the result of rounding out previous market engagements, for Lehigh Valley, which had been weak when other stocks were advancing, made yesterday a slight net gain, while Reading, which was conspicuously strong last week, even on days when the rest of the list was under considerable pressure, closed at a small net loss.

The news of the day contained little or nothing to influence the course of prices as a whole, but some of the changes in special issues were directly attributable to information which the day brought before the financial community. Notably was this true of the decline in price of the "when issued" stock of the Third Avenue Railroad, which was unfavorably affected by the position taken by the Public Service Commission in respect to sinking fund charges against the earnings of the company. In approving the mortgage submitted by the Third Avenue Railroad the Public Service Commission added to its formal approval, which was given in compliance with the recent decision of the Court of Appeals, a requirement that out of its earnings the company set up a sinking fund sufficient within the life of the bonds to cover approximately the difference between the present value of the property, as the commission estimates it, and the capitalization of the company which the commission has approved, because it could not do otherwise under the ruling of the court. The enforcement of this latest ruling of the commission would seem greatly to lessen the chance of a dividend on the new company's stock, and it was from this point of view that the Stock Exchange approached the matter yesterday. It was understood that in all probability the question thus raised by the Public Service Commission will be contested by the company in the courts. It was being said yesterday by those expressing the view of the reorganizers of the property that the Public Service Commission was here attempting to do by indirection what it had not found possible to do directly under the law as the Court of Appeals has interpreted it.

Another incident of Public Service Commission work which attracted attention yesterday was the requirement by the up-State commission that before passing on the plans for the purchase of the Ontario & Western by the New York Central, and of the Rutland Railroad by the New Haven, those two systems present additional information for the enlightenment of the commission. One of the matters to which the commission is looking is the protection of the rights of minority stockholders. The commission is here entering upon a field which in the past has afforded many chances for abuses by majority holders. Just now the position of minority shareholders is a matter of particular interest in connection with the affairs of the New York Central not only because of the contest being waged by the Rutland minority, but also because of the claims of the holders of the outstanding stocks of other New York Central subsidiaries which it is proposed to consolidate with the parent company.

The engagement yesterday of another $2,000,000 gold for export to Paris was in keeping with expectations formed last week on the occasion of the first engagement on this movement. There is still no reason for expecting general participation in this gold export movement unless the position of the exchange market changes substantially and for the same reason is not likely that the outflow will assume large proportions under existing conditions. Call money after renewing at 2 per cent. became somewhat firmer and short time loans showed a similar tendency. Money is still superabundant, however, despite the loss in cash revealed in the actual figures of Saturday's bank statement.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Bond Buying Lively.

Although the daily business of the bond department of the Stock Exchange is no longer swelled by the fresh activity of new traction issues and various tobacco bonds, the daily list of transactions continues to be a long one. Activity is not limited to any group, but is well diversified through the whole list of investment issues and indicates a persistence of the investment demand which has been in evidence for some time past. At this juncture the breadth of demand for bonds is in contrast with the narrowness of the market for stocks. Yesterday's transactions in stocks totaled only 288,389 shares, which is somewhat lower than recent averages, and in this department it is notable that for some time past most of the activity has been concentrated in a few of the speculative issues.

⁂

Holding Up Rutland Sale.

The minority preferred stockholders of the Rutland Railroad have scored at least a temporary victory in their fight with the New York Central through the Public Service Commission's failure to approve of the sale of the road to the New Haven until a better case has been made out. It is a question as to whether the stockholders would like to see this order made permanent. If the New Haven is not allowed to buy the Rutland, then the minority holders can no longer assert the right to sell their shares to the Central at the price offered by the New Haven for the majority interest. On the other hand, if the Central retains the road, the minority holders believe that they can enforce the payment of dividends by showing that the Rutland has not received a fair division of joint rates in the past.

⁂

A One-Year Railroad Lease.

In these days of 999-year leases among railroads, it comes as something of a surprise to learn that the New York Central has just obtained permission to renew its lease of the New York & Ottawa Railway for one year ending Feb. 1, 1913. This lease was first made in 1905, and has been renewed yearly ever since. As the Central owns all of the stock, and incorporates the Ottawa's earnings with its own, approval of the lease by the Public Service Commission is nothing, but a routing observance of a necessary formality. Any one who is curious to know anything more about the New York & Ottawa will discover by reference to a railroad manual that it owns the Ottawa & New York and that it is a reorganization of the New York & Ottawa Railroad.

⁂

Flurry in City Bonds.

A sale last week of contracts "when issued" for several blocks of a possible new issue of city bonds has called forth criticism of "loose curb methods." The bonds have not yet been authorized and it is not even known what rate of interest they will bear. The contracts were offered at 102 and after the news got around a buyer took them at that price. Incidentally, the existing city 4¼s which had been selling at 102¾ sagged off to 102⅛. This decline was generally credited to a hedge operation by one of the participants in the "when issued" deal, and although the short sale is denied, the fact remains that a wide-awake curb house which had stood aside when "when issued" contracts were going at 102 took up nearly $100,000 worth of the real bonds at 102⅜ and 102½. Curb men yesterday were chuckling over the fact that both buyer and seller of the "when issued" contracts was a Stock Exchange house and the men who made the profit were unadulterated curb brokers. Yesterday the existing city 4¼s were back at 102¾.

Movements of the Averages.

The average prices yesterday of twenty-five of the leading industrial stocks and a like number of the leading railroad issues made only narrow changes. The range between the high and low was 0.34, and between the industrial high and low averages 0.25. Compared with Saturday's last prices, the average of the railroads stocks yesterday was down 0.11, and that of the industrials was up 0.05. The showing with comparisons in tabular form is appended:

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

Yesterday on the Metal Exchange an irregular tendency was shown. Copper was down about ⅛c for all deliveries up to April. Lead declined 25 points. Tin was up ½c. Spelter was unchanged.

The closing bid and asked prices follow:

	Monday. Bid.	Monday. Asked.	Friday. Bid.	Friday. Asked.
Standard copper—
Spot	13.60	13.70	13.70	13.80
February	13.60	13.70	13.70	13.80

Spelter	6.35	6.55	6.35	6.55
Tin	43.25	43.75	42.75	43.25

The American Smelting and Refining Company has made a further reduction in the price of lead, from $4.25 to $4 per 100 pounds.

On the London Metal Exchange yesterday the following price table shows the quotations obtaining for spot and future deliveries of copper and pig tin. These final figures compare with Friday's last prices:

	Monday. £	s.	d.	Friday. £	s.	d.
Copper, spot	61	8	9	61	16	3
Copper, futures	62	8	9	62	11	3
Pig tin, spot	194	0	0	193	5	0
Pig tin, futures	191	10	0	191	5	0

The market ended steady. Spanish pig lead was up 2s 9d, to £15 15s. Spelter improved 5s, to £26 5s. Cleveland warrants were a shade easier at 48s 10½d.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Fluctuations Narrow in Most Markets, but Chicago Reports Some Substantial Gains.

TRADING IN SMALL VOLUME

Few Stocks in Other Cities Develop Any Considerable Activity—Sears-Roebuck Gossip.

Trading in most of the out-of-town markets yesterday was narrow, and fluctuations, with several notable exceptions, small.

Maryland Trust stock sagged in Baltimore, losing 1½. The proposition on behalf of the Maryland Casualty for the purchase of the trust company at 110 was unanimously rejected this afternoon by the Executive Committee of the Maryland Trust Company. In a letter declining to consider the proposition the President of the trust company declares that the book value of the stock is from $125 to $140 per share. United Railways issues were easier, but prices generally were firm.

Bearish gossip regarding the position of the metal checked buying of copper shares to-day, though productive of little selling. Superior and Boston was most active of the group, more than 1,000 shares changing hands at just above 4. North Butte was slightly easier and fairly active on reports of underground developments. New Haven was stronger in response to better buying, but Boston & Maine sold at 99. Steel was bought for arbitrage accounts on an advance in price. American Woolen preferred sold below 87 for the first time since last Fall, being influenced by talk of spread of the Lawrence strike.

Sears-Roebuck common was the feature of the trading on the Chicago Exchange, and purchases were of the same character that marked the trading during the latter part of last week. The stock climbed to 151 to-day, where it met rather free selling and reacted some, but held the greater part of its 4-point gain over Sunday. It closed at 150, a net gain for the day of 3 points. The January earnings are given as the cause for this sudden demand, but the character of the buying gives color to the report current in speculative and banking circles that not only is there a well-defined plan to issue common stock to retire the preferred, but also to increase the dividend on the common from 7 to 8 per cent. Some 4,000 shares were traded in on the Chicago Exchange to-day. In common with the leader, the majority of stocks traded in showed firmness. Diamond Match was prominent, with a betterment of more than 2 points at the highest, though easing off about one-half of this by the close. There were fractional advances in Western Stone, both classes of McCrum-Howell, Can common, Booth Fisheries preferred, and Illinois Brick. Labor difficulties were cited by President Schalke of the Illinois Brick Company in his annual report to stockholders to-day as one of the chief causes why the earnings of the company for the year 1911 showed a considerable falling off. The earnings from all sources were $460,375.

Except for a 3-point rise in Pennsylvania Salt and a gain of 1¾ in H. & B. T. preferred, the Philadelphia market continued to fluctuate within exceedingly narrow limits to-day. On the whole the tone was a trifle reactionary, due chiefly to sporadic weakness in the arbitrage group. Cambria Steel and Pennsylvania Steel preferred failed to be affected by early selling of United States Steel, and each improved fractionally on odd-lot transactions. Late in the day Philadelphia Traction was found to be scarce, and the price was bid up to 85½, without a sale being effected. United States Steel rallied, too, in the final trading.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

It was a fairly active market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, with the commission house business in odd lots of the specialties, as well as of the standard stocks, a feature. Anaconda sold at 34¼ and Interborough common at 18, with no sales of those stocks reported on the New York Stock Exchange. Irregularity marked the course of the general list. Sales by the bears in the early dealings encountered a good absorptive power, and the market rallied, but some heaviness developed toward the close.

Boston Bank Statement.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 5.—The weekly statement of the Associated National Banks of Boston compares as follows:

British Securities Decline Because Expected Scheme as to Consols Is Not Announced.

PRICES ON CONTINENT WEAK

Money Abundant in London—Discount Rates Easy—Canadian Pacifics Strong in Berlin.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, Feb. 6. — The Times says in its City article to-day:

"The supply of money was larger yesterday than for some time past, and rates for day-to-day advances gave way after being for a very short time at about Saturday's level. Terms for fixtures were also easier.

"Discount quotations declined, the market being eager to take bills and prepared to conceded something in order to obtain them, but it did not absorb all that were offered at the lowest level, most houses being disposed to limit their purchases when they found that the supply was large, as they are aware that there is a good deal to be repaid to the Bank of England in a day or two. The Bank will probably secure the bulk of the South African gold this week.

"Another £400,000 of gold will leave New York to-day for Paris.

"A relapse of 3-16 to ¼ in consols was one of the few features of interest on the stock markets.

"American shares showed slight and irregular movements at the opening, with prices rather above parity, the market on this side simply waiting for the opening of Wall Street. In the afternoon no decided lead was given from that quarter, and prices moved slightly in both directions, finally closing with an uneven appearance.

"Very little business was done on the Berlin Boerse, and the movements were devoid of interest. The strength of Canadian Pacifics was a prominent feature, purchases being encouraged by the bumper traffic return.

"The Paris Bourse showed a rather irregular tendency and business was very quiet."

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Money was firm but discount rates were easy to-day.

The stock market was generally dull. British securities declined, because the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his speech on Saturday night, failed to announce a scheme for the rehabilitation of consols. Foreign rails and rubber stocks improved, but copper shares closed weak.

American securities opened steady and advanced during the forenoon, in sympathy with the strength in Canadian Pacific. The New York bank statement was disappointing, however, and when New York offered stocks in the afternoon prices declined and the market closed easy.

Money, 3½ per cent.; rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 3 7-16@3⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills, 3⅜@3 7-16 per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.00; at Lisbon, 10.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 95f 40c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 24½c for checks.

Private discount rate, 3⅛ per cent.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Trading was quiet and prices were weaker on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 51½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 8 per cent.

Private discount rate, 3⅛ per cent.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

T. Rumney has been appointed Assistant Second Vice President in charge of the mechanical department of the Rock Island, formerly under the charge of W. A. Nettleton, General Superintendent of motive power, who resigned.

At the annual meeting of the Detroit Edison Company stockholders authorized the classification of the Board of Directors, and elected to searve for one year, L. W. Bowen, Alfred Jaretzki, and George R. Sheldon; to serve for two years, James Campbell, F. S. Smithers, and C. A. Coffin; to serve for three years, C. W. Wetmore, Alexander Dow, and E. M. Bulkley. Hitherto the entire board was elected annually. James Campbell was elected to succeed George F. Canfield, resigned.

A new firm has been organized under the name of Taylor & English, consisting of Horace Russell Taylor and James Radford English. It is to do a general investment business. The firm will have offices in the National City Bank Building. Both partners have recently been connected with Potter, Choate & Prentice.

The Union First Mortgage Company, 60 Broadway, has issued a booklet outlining a plan for the investment of small sums in first mortgage bonds paying 5 per cent., guaranteed by a two-million-dollar corporation. The bonds are issued in small denominations, and payments may be made at the rate of $5 a month.

Crawford, Patton & Cannon, 100 Broadway, are offering bonds, especially selected on account of their stability of principal and interest as well as their high yield. In most cases they are guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Railroad as to principal and interest.

We Take Care

The Investor who purchases bonds which we offer acquires at once an advantageous position. He becomes the preferred creditor of a company which we have investigated from every standpoint and which we control and operate by virtue of our investment in the junior securities. If we are to profit in any way, we must take care that all obligations to him are met when due. We are now offering the bonds of an established Public Service corporation.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Narrow Price Movements in Day of Sluggish Trading.

Curb prices moved narrowly yesterday and trading was sluggish. J. I. Case preferred sold 450 shares between 101¼ and 101¾, the close being at 101½. The mining issues were irregular. The most active of the bond list was Pacific Gas and Electric 5s, which reported transactions totaling $100,000 between 92⅛ and 92¼, the close being at the high level even with the opening.

⁂

DEPOSITORS PAID IN FULL.

Union Trust of Providence Meets Obligations of $1,750,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 5.—With the payment to-day of $1,750,000, in redeeming the final 10 per cent. contingent certificates, the Union Trust Company, which suspended during the panic of 1907, completely liquidated its indebtedness to its old depositors.

Since the reorganization of the company and the reopening of the institution, payments to the former depositors have been made at intervals, and when the holders of the certificates presented them for redemption to-day they received every cent they had in the bank when it closed.

The only obligations which now rema from the financial difficulties of 1907 ar the deferred certificates held by the o stockholders, representing about $500,0 and these will be retired at par as soon as the Directors believe the bank is in a position to do so.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Corner of John and Nassau Streets Leased for One Hundred and Five Years at About $4,000,000—Deal in the Chelsea District — Marlborough Hotel May Be Department Store.

One of the largest leasehold transactions of the year in the old business section of the city, aggregating about $4,000,000, was announced last evening by Louis Bial, Vice President of the United Cigar Stores Company, who leased for a term of 105 years the northeast corner of John and Nassau Streets.

The plot, which is owned by George Ehret, the brewer, is covered by old two and three story buildings, and has a frontage of 100 feet 4 inches on John Street and 69 feet 7 inches on Nassau Street.

No definite plans have been decided upon, but it is understood that the old structures will be razed by the lessees shortly, and a modern skyscraper similar to the Liberty Tower erected on the site.

The aggregate rental for the first term of twenty-one years agreed upon amounts to $800,000. At the beginning of each successive term of twenty-one years the property will be reappraised and the rental fixed according to the valuation.

Deal in Chelsea District.

An important deal in the Chelsea district, involving the purchase of a new eight-story loft nearing completion at 418 to 426 West Twenty-fifth Street, by the original lessees of the property, and the leasing by the latter of the upper half of the building to a large printing firm, has just been concluded by Colin M. Eadie of James N. Wells's Sons.

The building occupies a plot 125 by 100 feet, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues. It was purchased by the McKeon Realty Company over a year ago through the same brokers, and the new eight-story structure was leased at that time from the plans to the Rome Metallic Bedstead Company, which, with its subsidiary companies, will occupy the four lower floors and the basement. When the lease was made the Rome Metallic Bedstead Company obtained a short-term option to buy the property, and this is about to be exercised, and the transfer will be made within a few days.

The lease of the upper four floors has been made for the latter company to Isaac H. Blanchard & Co., printers and lithographers, now located at 268 Canal Street, who have taken a twenty-one years' lease, at an aggregate rental of $400,000. The Souvenir Post Card Company of 23 Sullivan Street, a subsidiary company of the Blanchard Press, will occupy part of the space leased to the Blanchard Company, thereby consolidating all its forces under one roof.

Paul C. Herter is the architect of the building, which is the largest commercial structure erected recently in the Chelsea locality.

Marlborough May Be Department Store.

The old Marlborough Hotel, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street, which was sold last week to a Philadelphia syndicate, may be altered for a department store within the next few months, being operated as a New York branch of the Philadelphia store of Snellenberg & Co., who were interested in the purchase. Leopold Weil, who, with Adolph Meyer, negotiated the deal, stated yesterday that the hotel would be continued under the present management for six months at least, and possibly longer.

Negotiations are now in progress regarding the ultimate disposition of the property—whether the ground floor only will be remodeled for business purposes and the remainder retained as a hotel or whether the entire building will be altered or give way to a purely commercial structure. The Sweeney-Tierney Company, the old lessee, will continue to manage the house for the present. The deal included the sale of its lease, which still had thirty-seven years to run.

Buys Site for Duplex Apartments.

The five-story dwelling 832 West End Avenue, on a lot 15.11 by 100, has been purchased by Julius Tishman from Rosamond Woolf. The property adjoins the southwest corner of 101st Street and West End Avenue, which Mr. Tishman purchased recently.

With this latest purchase the buyer now controls a plot fronting 116.10 feet on West End Avenue and 110 feet on the street, which will probably be improved with a twelve-story structure containing duplex apartments.

Tenements in Good Demand.

Sanford & Green have bought for investment from William S. White and others the two five-story flats 115 and 117 East Twenty-seventh Street, on plot 33.4 by 96.9. This property is on the north side of Twenty-seventh Street, just east of Fourth Avenue, and has been held by the sellers for thirty years. N. A. Berwin & Co. were the brokers.

David Lion has sold the six-story new-law tenement 315 and 317 East 107th Street, which he recently purchased, to Antonio Naro. George N. Bruno & Co. were the brokers in the transaction.

An investor has purchased from K. Hildenbrand 10 and 12 East 107th Street, two five-story flats, on a plot 50 by 100.11, between Central Park West and Manhattan Avenue.

Old Greenwich Village Dwelling Sold

The Hill estate has sold through Francis E. Kruger 36 Perry Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 20.10 by 95. The house in its day was one of the finest in the old Greenwich Village section, and has not changed ownership since 1854.

Bronx.

A. T. Flack has sold to M. McNulty the triangular plot, with residence thereon, on Kingsbridge Road and Kingsbridge Terrace, 163 by 171 by 100, for $18,500. S. H. Raphael & Co. were the brokers.

The Hadden Realty Company has sold through J. E. Johnson & Co. 316 and 318 East 165th Street, two five-story new-law houses, each on plot 35.8 by 100.

They are two of five houses occupying the block front on 165th Street from Teller to Findlay Avenue, recently completed by the sellers. The buyer is an investor.

Long Island.

D. P. Shea has purchased from Henry J. Miller, for investment, a plot 42 by 112 on the east side of Harriman Avenue, Jamaica, adjoining Fraternity Hall. The parcel brought about $10,000.

John C. Creveling has sold to John M. Kerr of Richmond Hill a parcel having a frontage of 101 feet on the west side of Remington Avenue and 146 feet on the south side of Broadway at West Jamaica, subject to a mortgage of $26,900.

John T. Watson has sold to Theodore P. Brokaw, Jr., of Flushing, a parcel 45 feet on the east side of Lawrence Street and 193 feet on the north side of Prospect Avenue, Flushing.

Burt Tucman has sold to George F. Marriott of Whitestone a parcel, 50 by 182, on the west side of Eleventh Avenue, Flushing.

Richard Mold has sold to William F. Fippinger of Whitestone a parcel having a frontage of 102 feet on the north side of Nineteenth Street and 50 feet on the east side of Bayside Avenue, Bayside.

A $200,000 New Jersey Deal.

The Standard Investment Company purchased through Frank Hughes of Passaic, N. J., 125 lots fronting on Carmita and Montross Avenues, Rutherford, N. J.

Ninety-six of the lots have been resold to M. Boon, a builder, who gave in part payment seven houses on Upper Mountain Avenue and Valley Road, in the town of Montclair. The total amount involved in the transaction was about $200,000.

Fort Tryon Apartment Leased.

James E. Barry & Co. have leased through J. Romaine Brown & Co., from the estate of Susan B. Livingston, the Fort Tryon, a six-story apartment house, with stores, on the northeast corner of 180th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, on a plot 100 by 100, for a long term. The building is adjacent to the 181st Street Broadway Subway station, and was built about four years ago, and was sold by J. Romaine Brown & Co. to Susan B. Livingston shortly after being completed.

Leases.

The Ernestus Gulick Company has leased the store and basement in the building at 298 Fifth Avenue, southwest corner of Thirty-first Street, for the Mauser Manufacturing Company to the George Bernard Company.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased for a long term of years the entire sixth floor in the Herald Square Building, 145 West Thirty-sixth Street, for E. W. Browning, through the Frederick Fox Company, to the Bureau of National Literature.

Myer Bondy has leased the store and basement in the building 64 East Eleventh Street to the Federal Paper Supply Company, for Harry C. Hallenbeck.

Tucker, Speyers & Co. have leased for W. W. Astor to Ehret & Quigley a store in the Astor Court Building.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for E. A. Roos to the American Kitchen Products Company for a long term of years from May 1 next, at $4,000 per annum, the entire eight-story building 281 and 283 Water Street, corner of Dover. This building is now under lease to Evans, Almirall & Co., who vacated some months ago to take possession of their new building at 1 to 7 Dominick Street and 21 to 25 Clarke Street, leased to them by the Charles F. Noyes Company, and erected by Trinity Church.

Notes.

A special meeting of the North Side Board of Trade will be held in the board rooms, Carr Building, 138th Street and Third Avenue, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 7, at 8 o'clock, for discussion and action on the Bronx County bill.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet Thursday evening at 147 East 125th Street.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—ETHEL TURNBULL, plaintiff, against MORRIS FOGEL and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 30th day of January, 1912, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 29th day of February, 1912, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows, to wit:

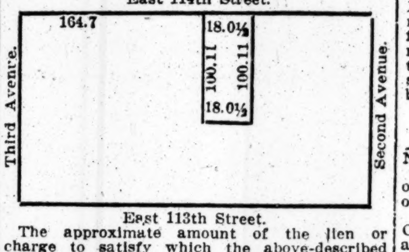
Beginning at a point on the southerly line of One Hundred and Fourteenth (114th) Street distant one hundred and sixty-four (164) feet and seven (7) inches easterly from the southeasterly corner of Third Avenue and One Hundred and Fourteenth (114th) Street; running thence southerly and parallel with Third Avenue and part of the way through a party wall One hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block between One Hundred and Thirteenth and One Hundred and Fourteenth Streets; thence easterly along said centre line eighteen (18) feet one-half (½) inch; thence northerly, again parallel with Third Avenue, and part of the way through a party wall one hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the southerly side of One Hundred and Fourteenth (114th) Street, and thence westerly along said southerly side of One Hundred and Fourteenth Street eighteen (18) feet one-half (½) inch to the point or place of beginning, be said several distances and dimensions more or less, being the premises now known by the Street Number Two Hundred and Twelve (212) East One Hundred and Fourteenth (114th) Street.

Dated New York, February 5th, 1912.

M. SPENCER BEVINS, Referee.

GEORGE WADDINGTON, Attorney for Plaintiff, No. 79 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 212 East 114th Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is seven thousand four hundred and thirty-seven dollars and thirty-four cents ($7,437.34,) with interest thereon from the 20th day of January, 1912, together with costs and allowances amounting to three hundred and ninety-two dollars and eighteen cents, ($392.18,) with interest from 30th January, 1912, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is one hundred and sixty-four dollars and 02-100 and interest. The above premises will be sold subject to covenant against nuisances and in respect to buildings contained in deed recorded Liber 1,610, Page 140, and condition of things shown on survey dated 19th November, 1907, by F. BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The following were appointed yesterday for service in the evening elementary schools, their appointment to take effect upon assignment to duty by City Supt. Maxwell:

Teachers of Singing—Mary A. Breihof, Martha B. Hyatt, Edith D. Lubitz, Philomena E. McGarry, Frances C. O'Rourke, and Eleanor V. Partridge.

Teachers of Physical Training—David H. Perlman, Rose Tuckerman, and Ethel Natelson.

Pianists—Estelle A. Sparks and Hazel S. Bloom.

Samuel R. De Witt was appointed yesterday a teacher of common branches in evening schools of the Bronx. Anna E. Clemeney was appointed general assistant in Evening School 150, Brooklyn.

The Board of Education yesterday accepted the offer of the Henry Street Settlement, 265 Henry Street, of the use, rent free, of a front and rear parlor on the first floor of 297 Henry Street for the establishment of an ungraded class. The rooms will be made an annex to Public School 12.

The report of the Committee on Sites, favoring an issue of $10,000 special revenue bonds for the purpose of making a study of population and conditions incidental and necessary to the location of school premises, was adopted by the Board of Education yesterday.

The Board yesterday approved the recommendation of the Committee on Care of Buildings that Mrs. Theresa Cloos, cleaner in Public School 20, Queens, and Isaac A. Edmunds, janitor of Public School 49, Manhattan, be dismissed from the Department of Education on charges preferred against them.

The report of the Committee on Elementary Schools, denying the request for a rehearing in the matter of charges of general inefficiency, insubordination, and gross misconduct, preferred against Joseph D. Reardon, Principal of Public School 23, Manhattan, by District Supt. Wade, was adopted by the Board of Education yesterday.

On motion of Abraham Stern the Board of Education yesterday adopted a resolution praising the Principals and teachers recently retired under the seventy-year limit rule on their long and honorable service in the cause of education, and wishing them success and good health for the rest of their lives.

CARDINAL TOO ILL TO BE AT A DINNER

Knights of Columbus, Entertaining in His Honor, Dine Regretfully Without Him.

LAID UP WITH A COLD

Announcement was to Have Been Made Before Him That $365,000 of University Fund Had Been Raised.

Cardinal Farley was unable to attend the dinner given in his honor by the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor last night, and after the dinner had been delayed for more than an hour in the hope that some further message might be received, it was finally announced that the Cardinal was suffering from a severe cold and on the advice of his physician had been forced to cancel all immediate engagements. In giving that message to the 800 diners William P. Larkin said that the dinner without the Cardinal was much like a presentation of "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out.

"But, great as our disappointment is," said Mr Larkin, "and as much as is our regret that we cannot testify to him personally our loyalty and love, "we would have regretted even more of he had by venturing out suffered a more severe illness."

Elaborate preparations had been made for the reception of the Cardinal. The great room was gayly decorated, and over the seat of honor were draped the American flag and Papal flag. On the table on the speakers' platform was a miniature replica of the spires of the Cathedral in sugar, with the crozier and the Papal cross surmounted by the Cardinal's baretta. The organist had been instructed to play a march, "Hail to the Cardinal," as the distinguished guest entered the room.

It had been planned, too, to make the first announcement at the dinner and in the presence of the Cardinal that $365,000 of the $500,000 endowment fund which the Knights of Columbus have undertaken to raise for the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., of which Cardinal Farley has been a trustee since its inception, and in which he has taken great pride, is now in the hands of the Treasurer of the organization.

All hope that the Cardinal might be able to attend the dinner was finally given up at 8 o'clock, when Mgr. Mooney arrived at the hotel and entered the ballroom. Then the rumor got around that the Cardinal was seriously ill, and many anxious inquiries came to the committee in charge of the dinner.

It was said to them that the Cardinal had been confined to his home for the last forty-eight hours, and would probably not keep any engagements for at least two days more. He had been deeply affected, also, it was said, by the death of his friend, Mgr. R. L. Burstell, who died on Sunday. Mgr. Burstell was a member of the Cardinal's suite on his recent trip to Rome.

Mgr. Mooney brought this message from the Cardinal, addressed to the toastmaster:

> It is needless for me to say that I am keenly disappointed in being deprived of the pleasure of attending this evening the dinner of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, who have, I understand, made elaborate preparations to honor their Archbishop on his elevation to the Cardinalate by our Holy Father, Pope Pius X.
>
> My absence is due to a cold contracted some days ago, and my physician warns me that it would be very unwise and imprudent to venture out in my present condition.
>
> The Knights of Columbus need no assurance of my friendly attitude, of which I have given evidence on repeated occasions. I wish to state here what I would be happy to say to you, were I present in person, that I am confident your every endeavor is to advance Catholic interests and keep before our laity a high spiritual standard of faith and conduct. I desire also to congratulate your order on what has been already so nobly accomplished by unity of effort, and feel convinced that it is only the beginning of what you will do in the future for God, Church, and country.
>
> Praying for you all every blessing, and regretting my inability to be with you to-night, I am, with sincere appreciation of your loyalty and affection, faithfully yours in Christ, JOHN CARDINAL FARLEY.

Mgr. Mooney had the seat of honor which had been reserved for the Cardinal, and others at the guest table were City Magistrate Henry W. Herbert, Frank W. Smith, Chief Clerk of the Court of General Sessions; Tax Commissioner John J. Halleran, Deputy Commissioner Charles J. McCormack, Daniel J. Griffin, Mgr. Charles M. McCready, Mgr. P. J. Hayes, Justice Victor J. Dowling, Mr. Larkin, Mgr. John J. Dunn, William A. Boylan, the Rev. Father Thomas F. Murphy, John O'Brien, Bishop James A. McFaul of Trenton, and Mgr. M. J. Lavelle.

"All the country rose up to honor our Cardinal when he returned from Rome," said Mr. Larkin, when the addresses began, "and we have longed for this occasion; that we might proclaim our joy and our gladness and the assurance of our fealty and love." Turning to Mgr. Mooney he continued:

"We bid you carry back to the Cardinal this message, and may the years that are to come carry with them the full fruition of his every purpose and desire."

James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Order, was unable to attend, and Father Francis J. Sullivan, Chaplain of the Chapter, responded.

"We of the Knights of Columbus, are true to God, and that means true to man," he said. "We need fear neither Socialism nor anarchy. We are ready to defend the flag even with our lives, and we are ready to follow our beloved Cardinal because we know he is true to God, true to the Church, and true to his country."

Justice Dowling was greeted with a great outburst of applause when he rose to speak. He referred to the demonstration that greeted Cardinal Farley on his homecoming as one of the most remarkable in history, and added:

"The striking keynote in the whole demonstration was the spread of toleration in this country. In the lifetime of his Eminence himself we have seen a very different condition. We have seen manifestation of hatred, not only of race but of religion, manifestations so severe that they seemed unbelievable. Contrast that day with this. And there exists in this community, and in the country outside this community, less intolerance than in any other country in the world to-day.

"The Church has profited by this toleration, and you have been doing and can do much good, gentlemen. The Knights of Columbus have been giving a practical demonstration of Catholic loyalty to its spiritual superiors."

"The Cardinal feels," answered Mgr. Mooney, "for it has been brought closely home to him in a most practical way, the help and spirit of the Knights of Columbus, and that particularly in your great and unexampled endowment fund to the Catholic University. His great regret is that he has been unable to come here and express his sentiment in the matter."

At least 200 women occupied seats in the gallery of the ballroom, and at the close of the addresses they rose with the men and joined in giving three hearty cheers for Cardinal Farley.

GIRL DIES; LAWYER ACCUSED.

Clyde W. Portlock, Indicted in New Jersey, Arrested Here.

Clyde W. Portlock, a lawyer, was arrested in his office at 20 Nassau Street yesterday afternoon. The arrest was made on a warrant issued on Feb. 2 by Magistrate McQuade charging him with being a fugitive from justice.

Portlock was taken to the Tombs Court, where he was held to await requisition. He has been indicted in Hudson County, N. J., in connection with the death of Miss Alida Tramblay of Bonhamtown, near New Brunswick, N. J. She died at Wells Hospital recently, following an operation performed in Hoboken.

The police here telephoned to Prosecutor Gavin of Hudson County, notifying him of the arrest and asking what bail would be required. Bail was fixed at $2,500. George Gordon Battle has been retained to defend Portlock.

Portlock, who lived in a furnished room at 25 Livingston Avenue, Brooklyn, is said to have become acquainted with Miss Tramblay when she lived in New York with her parents. His attentions were distasteful to the girl's parents, it is said, and the family built a house at Bonhamtown last year and moved there in the hope of breaking up the attachment. But the young man, it is alleged, followed the girl and met her secretly while she was on her way to and from the store in which she was employed.

In the latter part of January the girl disappeared from her home, and Mrs. George Tramblay, her mother, finally came here and called at the office of Portlock. He was not there, and the mother went to his other office on Broadway. Portlock saw her coming, and, it is said, locked himself in his private office, but the woman remained there for three hours and created such a scene that the young man appeared and told her he would have her daughter home within twenty-four hours. Soon after the mother reached home the daughter appeared, exhausted with her trip, and was at once placed under medical treatment. Mrs. Joseph Burger-Passens of Hoboken, who has been arrested, says that a young man who said he was Miss Tramblay's brother called that afternoon and took her away.

JUMPS WITH GIRL AT FIRE.

Button Works Employes Badly Injured, but May Recover.

Eli Deutsch, an employe of the Standard Button Works, on the third floor of 158 West Twenty-sixth Street, knocked a step ladder against a gas jet yesterday morning. The hot gas jet broke off and fell into a pile of celluloid. The celluloid exploded, starting a fire and a panic among the employes.

Deutsch shoved several of the girls into the hallway, and went back to rescue Lena Levine of 515 East 144th Street, who was so frightened she could not move. As he reached Miss Levine, his way to the stairs was cut off by the fire. He dragged her to the front windows of the third floor and stood with her on the window sill.

Patrick O'Gorman, an employe of the branch office of the American Express Company, next door, tried to reach them with a ladder, which was too short. The crowd shouted to the two on the window sill to wait for the firemen. They disobeyed the arning shouts and jumped. Both were badly injured by their fall.

At the New York Hospital, to which they were taken, it was said last night that they might recover.

WOMAN IN TUNNEL FOR HOURS

Fell from Train on the Way from Baltimore to This City.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 5.—Mrs. Frances Fraser, 50 years old, who says her home is 225 West End Avenue, New York City, is in the Homeopathic Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain, caused by falling from a passenger train in the Pennsylvania Railroad tunnel under this city last night.

Mrs. Fraser told the physicians to-day that she was about to pass from a Pullman car to a day coach, and as she stepped on the platform the train lurched. She lost her hold on the side rail and fell. She lost consciousness, but soon revived.

Several trains passed through the tunnel, and she pressed her body close to the wall to escape. Every moment she feared to be drawn under the wheels, and she was almost suffocated by smoke.

She was making up her mind to crawl to the entrance, the light of which she could see, when she saw several policemen coming, and in a few minutes she was on her way to the hospital. She had lain in the tunnel nearly four hours, it being after midnight when she was rescued.

CLEVELAND MONUMENT PLANS

Richard V. Lindabury Succeeds John F. Dryden as Head of Movement.

At a meeting of the Trustees of the Cleveland Monument Association yesterday in the Directors' room of the Prudential Insurance Company in Newark, Richard V. Lindabury was elected President of the association to fill the vacancy left by the death of John F. Dryden.

George W. Rouzer, Secretary of the Executive Committee, reported that the committee has $111,584, while the cost of the proposed Cleveland Memorial Tower will be $125,000. When this was officially announced, Moses Taylor Pyne of Princeton pledged the balance.

By being elected to the head of the association Mr. Lindabury becomes Chairman of the Executive Committee. Mr. Pyne was elected a member of the committee in the place of Mr. Dryden, and Forrest F. Dryden was named as Trustee to succeed his father. Virgil P. Kline of Cincinnati, President John G. Hibben of Princeton, and Bayard Henry of Philadelphia were elected additional Trustees.

NON-UNION TRUCKMAN SHOT.

Boss Teamster Taken to Hospital Seriously Wounded by Four Bullets.

Following a labor dispute yesterday afternoon, Joseph Forkey, a non-union truckman, living at 206 West Street, was shot four times in front of the loading platform of Shimer & Co., egg dealers at 33 Washington Street, where he is employed.

Forkey told the police he was shot by Gilbert Tier. The four bullets took effect in the left thigh. At the Hudson Street Hospital Forkey's condition was reported as serious.

Forkey is the boss truckman for Shimer & Co. He has been in their employ twenty-five years. Efforts have been made recently, it is said, to induce him and drivers under him to join the union. The labor situation in the trucking busness in that neighborhood, it is declared, has recently become acute. Forkey's voice was heard in argument on the loading platform by men on the inside of the building, but the four shots were fired from an automatic revolver so rapidly that it was all over before they could get to the platform. The assailant escaped.

DEMANDS REMOVAL OF JUSTICE ZELLER

Woman Charges That He Used His Judicial Position to Compel Payment of a Debt.

BAR ASSOCIATION INVOKED

"Merely Asked Her to Pay a Servant's Overdue Wages," Is the Justice's Reply to the Complaint.

Eagerness to assist a servant girl to collect wages he believed had been unjustly withheld from her led to charges being sent to the Bar Association last night against Justice Lorenz Zeller of the Court of Special Sessions. The Justice is accused of acts "prejudicial to the upright and skillful administration of the law; of gross misuse of the judicial office, and of conduct unprofessional and improper in a member of the bar."

The papers were prepared by Lawyer Hyacinthe Ringrose, who specifically states that his complaint is based only upon information and belief.

In October, 1910, Justice Zeller employed as a servant a woman whose name figures in the papers as Miss Anna C. Shaw. She had been recommended to him by a woman probation officer of the court, and had been in some trouble with the law. Justice Zeller was willing, however, to give her another chance, and employed her.

The Justice and his wife became interested in Anna. They learned that she had been previously employed by Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, a widow, who keeps a rooming house at 6 West Twenty-first Street, and that Mrs. Reid owed her wages for a month and twenty-one days. The servant told how she had made an effort to collect what was due to her and failed. Justice Zeller determined to assist her, and on Oct. 4, 1910, on the stationery of the court, he wrote a letter to Mrs. Reid.

Zeller's Letter to Mrs. Reid.

This letter is now in the possession of Mr. Ringrose, and a copy of it is included in the complaint sent to the Bar Association. It reads:

> Chambers of Lorenz Zeller, Justice of the Court of Special Sessions, First Division, > 32 Franklin Street, Oct. 4, 1910.
> Mrs. E. Reid, 6 West Twenty-first Street.
>
> Madam: Miss Anna Shaw, who is employed by me, tells me that she has worked for you as a domestic and that you owe her for one month and twenty-one days. I cannot conceive how anyone can employ a poor girl and not pay her, and unless you, upon receipt of this, pay her by sending the wages to me, I shall see to it that you are compelled to do so. Yours,
>
> LORENZ ZELLER.

Mr. Ringrose calls attention to the fact that the Court of Special Sessions, of which Justice Zeller is a Justice, is a court of criminal jurisdiction only, and that its Justices have no authority to hear or determine actions for debt or for the recovery of wages.

The next section of the complaint is based upon information alone. Mrs. Reid paid no attention to the letter, and she charges that a few days afterward a court officer called upon her and notified her that she must appear before the Justice, who was then sitting in the Children's Court. Mrs. Reid hastened to obey. She said that she went to the court with a Mrs. Peabody Smith, and it is charged that Justice Zeller conducted a hearing on the subject of the amount due to Anna in the Judge's chambers.

In the charges sent to the Bar Association this proceeding is set down as a mock trial. Mrs. Reid says the Justice used such sharp and abusive language that she was made to weep, and as a result she suffered a nervous breakdown.

Mrs. Reid's Letter to the Justice.

When Mrs. Reid recovered from her nervousness, and after she had given much thought to the matter she sat down and wrote this letter to the Justice:

> The Hon. Judge Zeller.
>
> Dear Sir: When you demanded me to appear before you last Saturday in reference to a claim made by Anna Shaw, who says I owe her, when as a matter of fact she is indebted to me through her failure to return articles she stole from my apartments, and also from tenants in my house, I was insulted by your ungentlemanly manner toward me, which made me very nervous and caused me to cry in your presence, and made me feel humiliated in the presence of a lady who was with me during our conversation.
>
> I now look forward to an apology from you for your severe treatment of me and toward me, as I look upon a Judge presiding on a bench to be a gentleman in all the word implies. If you ignore this letter by refusing to reply, I shall be compelled to place this matter before higher officials through the influence of my friends in the business world. Respectfully,
>
> ELIZABETH REID,
> 6 West Twenty-first Street.

The petition to the Bar Association asks it to investigate the charges to the end that truth may be established and proper proceedings instituted for the removal of Justice Zeller, or for such other procedure in the premises as may be just and proper.

Justice Zeller heard of the action taken by Mr. Ringrose while attending a meeting of the New York Schuetzenfest Society in Terrace Garden last night. He said that he had only a hazy recollection of the affair, but he was emphatic in denying that he had sent a court officer to Mrs. Reid to summon her to court.

"There was, I remember, a woman recommended to me by a Probation Officer," he said. "The girl complained either to me or to my wife that she had wages coming to her. I did what any one else would have done for a woman who was to a certain extent in his care. I wrote a letter to the person who owed the money telling her that she must pay up. My action was taken not in any official capacity, but as an employer of the girl.

"This woman called upon me about the matter and we talked it over. I told her frankly that she ought to pay. She said that the girl had taken things belonging to her, and she may have been right. I investigated her story, and as a result the girl did not stay with us more than a week or two. She left suddenly. That is all there is to the matter. I cannot understand why it is stirred up at such a late day. This is my answer to the charges."

BEATTIE CASE IN SCHOOL.

Catholic Organ Protests Against Public School Boy's Assigned Topic.

Because a boy from a parochial school was permitted to select the Beattie murder case in Virginia as a subject for composition while taking an examination for entrance into a public high school, the Tablet, which is looked upon as the official organ of the Roman Catholic diocese of Brooklyn, in its current issue, severely criticises the Board of Education. The article in the publication, headed "Studying Unusual Wickedness," is in part as follows:

> A parochial school boy came home from the recent examination for entrance into the public high schools and told an inquiring nun, his teacher, that he had written a composition on the Beattie murder case in Virginia. The nun was horror-stricken, and asked him why he had chosen such a topic, when the boy responded, "Well, they asked for a composition on a subject like that, so I wrote it." Then the nun looked over the carefully prepared list of questions on the subject of English, and to her horror, saw that the boy of 13 years was right. Here's the question:
>
> "From accounts that have recently appeared in the newspapers or the popular magazines, select some one instance of unusual bravery or of unusual wickedness. Tell about it. Make a suitable title."
>
> Think of it! A supposedly enlightened official of the public educational department of our city asking children of 12 or 13 years of age to describe an instance of unusual wickedness! Such a question is an insult to the school children of the day and directly antagonistic to the desires of the vast majority of parents. The filth of the world is daily dished up to the reading public, charily by the decent press, but lavishly by the sensational journals and with all the embellishments of incident and dialogue thrown in. The cultured classes unite with the Catholic Church in condemning the sensational press as unfit for adults, and especially so for children.
>
> "All the news that's fit to print" is the motto of one of New York's newspapers, in its desire to obtain the support of the decent element. Yet, lo and behold! here's a genius of a pedagogue who so far reveals his character as to show himself in this absurd and stupid question, which demands a working knowledge of the scandals of the day from a schoolboy.

QUOTES COURT TO SAVE RENT

Blau's Landlady Says He Backed Up His Logic with a Revolver.

Julius Blau, an inventor, read in the newspapers a few days ago the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to the effect that a tenant is not compelled to pay rent to a landlord when his rooms are rendered uninhabitable for a length of time as a result of not being sufficiently heated.

He was arraigned last night before Magistrate Krotel in the Men's Night Court on a charge of disorderly conduct. Mrs. Razen of 537 Lexington Avenue said that Blau threatened to shoot her with a revolver when she requested that he pay the rent due her on a room he had occupied there. She said that a newspaper clipping, telling at length of the decision of the Justices, had been mailed to her, together with a letter stating that the defendant would not pay his rent, as his rooms had not been properly heated or lighted. Blau admitted that he had mailed the letter.

"What do you want done with him?" asked Magistrate Krotel.

"I don't want him sent to the workhouse," replied Mrs. Razen, "but I want him to stay away from my house."

He was discharged with a warning.

Lawyer and Reporter Held.

Recorder Yost of Montclair, N. J., held Edwin C. Harvey, a Brooklyn lawyer, and Edwin Connors, a Brooklyn reporter, in $1,000 bail each for the Grand Jury yesterday on a charge of attempted burglary preferred by Harvey's wife. The two men are said to have visited Mrs. Harvey's home at 14 Elston Road, Montclair, in an effort to get possession of the two Harvey children, which their mother has been keeping since she left her husband's house at 403 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn. Mrs. Harvey expressed a desire to substitute a charge of disorderly conduct against the men and have them bound over to keep the peace. Recorder Yost refused to permit her to alter her accusation.

ROCKEFELLER CLASS DINES.

Detective Burns Talks to Fifth Avenue Baptist Bible Class on "Graft."

The Young Men's Bible Class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church—John D. Rockefeller's Bible Class—listened to Detective William J. Burns, President Faunce of Brown University, and George W. Perkins after their fifteenth annual dinner at the Cafe Boulevard last night. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., now Vice President of the class, was at the speakers' table, and there were about 250 members and guests present. Hunter S. Marston was the toastmaster.

"You are of the class of citizens," said Detective Burns in his speech, "to whom I like to talk and give the results of my investigations. I should like to tell you, so that you can bring it home to men you come in contact with, that crime always brings its punishment. Of course, no one in this audience could take to himself anything I say, but if I can show you how inevitable discovery is, you can perhaps keep another man from making the first mistake."

Mr. Burns's theme was "Graft." The worst form of graft, he said, was the municipal graft that he had uncovered in San Francisco. He told the story of Abe Ruef and Mayor Schmitz in detail.

President Faunce told of the organization of the Bible class fifteen years ago with eight men.

George W. Perkins spoke on "Modern Industrialism." He pointed out what he termed the inconsistency of the Government in eliminating ruthless competition in railroading and favoring it in inter-State industrial concerns, Married a Year, Wants Separation.

A suit for separation against Robert G. Furey, a real estate man, with offices at 206 West Fourteenth Street, was started yesterday in the Supreme Court by his wife, Mrs. Helen L. Furey. Mrs. Furey says her husband has an income of $5,000 a year. She bases her suit on allegations of desertion and non-support. Her husband denies the charges. They were married in December, 1910.

Old Church Changes Its Name.

The Broadway Presbyterian Church is the new name of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The Fourth Avenue was formerly at that avenue and Twenty-first Street, but sold its property there for $660,000. A new Broadway church is building on the corner of that thoroughfare and One Hundred and Fourteenth Street. The pastor is the Rev. Dr. W. D. Buchanan.

THE STATE OF ABSORBED INTEREST
LESSON No 4
BY ELMER DWIGGINS
THE SCHOOL OF MODERN SELLING

A Millionaire whose success came through developing himself and his men in Selling has hit upon a little plan of his own for doing good in a practical business way. Instead of building a library or endowing a college, he has decided to place our copyrighted Course of Ten Correspondence Lessons (over 300 pages), covering the entire field of salesmanship, in the hands of 1000 deserving men.

He has paid for 1000 of our Complete Courses, but he specifies an original method of selecting the men. He directs us to ask $1 for the Course (which sells regularly at $25) and then to return the dollar to every man who does not find the First Lesson alone worth more than the charge for the entire Course. Thus he eliminates those whose ambitions cannot be aroused, nor their minds stimulated.

Every Man of Action with red blood in his veins will jump at this wonderful opportunity! Send $1 today under above Money-Back Offer.
